Truman See $4.7 Billion Surplus by July 1948

President Offers No Promise for Tax Reduction In Fiscal 1949

(Mr. Truman's Statement, Page 9)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman, in a mid-year budget review, yesterday estimated that the Treasury would wind up the 1948 fiscal year with a record-breaking surplus—$4,700,000,000.

He said this surplus, due largely to "the rise in prices and national income," will be used to reduce the huge national debt.

The Chief Executive, who vetoed two tax-reduction bills sent to him by Congress at the last session, held out no promise for tax reduction in the fiscal year of 1949 which begins next July 1.

Promises "Same Prudent Policy"

"The same prudent policy of planning for a surplus and for further debt retirement will be followed in preparing the budget for 1949," he said.

Mr. Truman feels that no decision can be made about tax reduction until the Government knows what the Marshall Plan and other foreign commitments are to cost.

"The amount that may be required to enable the United States to bear its proper share in world recovery," Mr. Truman said, "cannot be determined until a later stage in the studies of the international situation now under way."

Some well-posted officials would not be surprised if Mr. Truman again finds it necessary to battle with Congress over tax reduction.

In yesterday's review, prepared for him by the Bureau of the Budget, Mr. Truman credited the Republican-dominated Congress with reducing his '48 budget by $1,520,000,000.

Offset by New Requirements

He pointed out, however, that this had been largely offset by new requirements such as the 320-million-dollar appropriation for aid to Greece and Turkey, and more money for the veterans' program, flood control, and so on.

The "actual reduction" in his '48 budget, the President said, was an indicated 528 million dollars.

Mr. Truman thought this outlook confirmed what he had said last winter—that it was, in fact, a "tight" and "hard-boiled" budget that he had sent to Congress in January.

That '48 budget estimated receipts for the year at $37,700,000,000 and expenditures at $37,500,000,000—leaving a surplus of 200 million dollars.

$4,700,000,000 Surplus

Mr. Truman's revised estimate, given out yesterday, anticipates receipts at $41,700,000,000 and expenditures at $37,000,000,000—leaving a surplus of $4,700,000,000.

The President, after saying that this larger indicated surplus was due to "the rise in prices and national income above the levels anticipated in January," added that

District Real Estate Brokers Called in Jury Investigation

More than a score of Washington real estate brokers have been ordered to appear before a grand jury here as part of a reported investigation into their operations by the Department of Justice.

The investigation is believed to involve alleged restraint of trade including whether the local policy of setting real estate brokers' commissions is in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The Justice Department would not comment on the investigation. John F. Sonnett, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the anti-trust division, was out of the city.

It was estimated that between 20 and 47 real estate brokers have been subpenaed for appearance before the grand jury. Nearly all are members of the Washington Real Estate Board. The city's more successful brokers are included.

Heads of several firms admitted their records had been subpenaed, their certificates of incorporation and lists of officers, but said they were still in the dark as for the reasons.

Charles Hillegiest, president of the Washington Real Estate Board, said he was "terribly disturbed" about the grand jury action. Hillegiest was not subpenaed but his secretary was ordered to appear before the grand jury Monday.

"I'm proud to be associated with the Washington Real Estate board," said Hillegiest. "We have worked long and hard to establish standards of conduct for realtors and to perfect ways to protect the public in dealing with real estate agents."

He said he had heard indirectly that the investigation would center around "restraint of trade."

Hillegiest explained that the local board has established recognized commission rates for the sale of property, but said no restraint or monopoly was involved.

"I'll cooperate with any broker regardless of race or creed as long as his ethics are satisfactory," he added.

Throughout the country, the standard commission rate among brokers for the average real estate transaction is 5 per cent.

F. Moran McConihe, president of Randall H. Hagner Co., Inc., said the secretary of his firm had been

VA Charges UPWA Asks For 'Slowdown' by Employes

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The left-wing United Public Workers is campaigning for what Veterans Administration officials interpret as a "slowdown" of work in its New York offices.

The CIO union has distributed leaflets to the more than 13,000 VA employes in that city to warn them of "productionitis," and to urge them to join UPWA, and, in effect, to pay no attention to supervisors who urge greater production.

The UPWA campaign, it was learned, was brought to the attention of Gen. Omar N. Bradley, VA administrator, at last week's conference here of branch managers.

It's no secret that the VA top staff considered the campaign as an "outrage" and as a deliberate attempt to slowdown the work in those offices.

A VA spokesman yesterday flatly and emphatically denied that "intolerable" working conditions exist in the New York offices that led to "nerve-wracked" employes as the union contends. Instead, he said, the offices are among the best-managed in the entire VA system.

Further, it was learned that the UPWA representatives were asked at a meeting with VA officials to produce evidence of "slave-driving." No evidence, it was said, had been produced up to yesterday.

A VA official here told this reporter that the New York branch director had sought on several occasions to go further in dealing with his employes than the established Government labor and salary practices. "He doesn't appear to be a slave-driver to us and our inspections don't support the charges," he said.

VA officials concede that among 13,000 employes there are bound to be individual employes who suffer injustices. Officials promise to clean up such cases when brought to their attention.

In the pre-Bradley days at VA,

Judge Raedy Says Friend Had Her Auto

The mystery of who was driving the car of Municipal Judge Ellen K. Raedy Tuesday night when it was involved in a hit-and-run accident may be answered at a meeting today in the corporation counsel's office.

Clark F. King, assistant corporation counsel, will preside at the meeting which has been set for 10 a. m.

Asked to attend the meeting were Judge Raedy, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Wimbish, 910 1st st. nw., owner of the parked car which was struck by the Raedy automobile, and Hilton Rheubottom, 1504 Stevens rd. se., an employe in a filling station at 1st and K sts. nw. and a witness to the crash.

Judge Raedy told The Washington Post yesterday that a friend, an out-of-town newspaperman, had borrowed her car to drive to Union Station and pick up a friend. She said she instructed the newspaperman to return her car, a 1946 Buick convertible, to a parking lot near her home.

She declined to identify the newspaperman friend who had borrowed the car, but said she would furnish his name to police if they asked her.

Police apparently did not press that point. Lieut. William J. Liverman, head of the Accident Investigation Unit, said he talked to Judge Raedy by telephone yesterday and that she informed him her car had been borrowed by a

U. S. Relaxes British Loan Agreement

Britain to Give Up Converting Pounds, Agree to Stop Drawing Dollars

Post Reporter

Agreement was reached yesterday by the British and American Governments on emergency action to halt the drain on Britain's dwindling dollar supply.

The agreement contains two provisions:

1. Britain is permitted to abandon, temporarily, the free convertibility of British pounds into American dollars—one of the conditions of the $3,750,000,000 loan agreement.

2. Britain agrees to halt further withdrawals from the loan, now down to 850 million dollars, until after the present negotiations on modification of the loan provisions are completed.

Dalton, Snyder Exchange Letters

The agreement was contained in an exchange of letters between Hugh Dalton, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder. It was announced simultaneously both here and in London. Both letters were dated yesterday.

The British government has "found it necessary to take immediate stringent measures to counter the recent excessive drain" on its dollar resources, Dalton wrote.

"Unless this drain is checked at once, His Majesty's government will be unable to pursue the objectives of the international monetary and economic policy of which the Anglo-American Financial Agreement is a signal expression," he added.

"Accordingly the system of transferable accounts will be modified at the close of business today, August 20, so as to make it possible effectively to control dollar outpayments."

The letter repeated the British view of the desirability of maintaining "full and free convertibility of sterling."

"Such convertibility," he added, "is an indispensable element in British financial policy."

In his reply, Snyder stated that the United States "takes sympathetic note of the grave drains" to which British dollar resources are being subjected.

Action Only Temporary

He noted "with satisfaction the intention of the United Kingdom government" to consult with this country on future plans concerning dollar-pound convertibility.

The British letter made it plain that the action is only temporary, to be in effect until the negotiations now under way at the Treasury Department are completed.

It is understood the action to Halt the free exchange of dollars for pounds was decided in London last week, even before the arrival of the British loan delegation in this country.

The original loan agreement provided that Britain permit other countries to exchange British currency for dollars after July 15. As soon as the clause took effect several nations, including Argentina and Canada, with large sup-

U. S. Changes Plan to Quit Italy Due to Soviet Delay on Treaty; Assembly Gets Balkan Issue

55-Nation Body Gets Issue After Red Vetoes Block Action in Council

Lake Success, Aug. 20 (AP).—The United States today placed the explosive Balkan problem before the 55-member United Nations General Assembly after repeated Soviet vetos had blocked action in the Security Council.

The new United States move came less than 24 hours after the Council admitted its inability to solve the problem which had plagued the U. N. for more than 18 months.

Herschel V. Johnson, deputy United States delegate, proposed specifically that the Assembly act to halt "threats to the political independence and territorial integrity of Greece."

Secretary-General Trygve Lie assured him that the question would be placed on the provisional agenda of the Assembly, which meets in New York September 16.

Lie Rejects Soviet Demand

Earlier, Lie had taken a firm stand against Russian demands that the U. N. recall its team of observers from the Balkans.

Lie said that as far as he was concerned the subsidiary group of the Balkan Investigating Commission was in Greece on orders of the Security Council.

the Security Council and was going to stay there until the Council ordered it to leave.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko took the position yesterday that both the Balkan commission and its subsidiary group were automatically "liquidated" when his two vetoes killed the last proposals to solve the Balkan problem

Council President Faris El-Khoury of Syria, backed by a majority of the Council, contended that these groups would continue indefinitely in the absence of any specific Council action.

The Soviet attitude led El Khoury and other delegates to express the belief that Russia and Poland might withdraw immediately from the commission and the subsidiary group, but neither Gromyko nor Polish Delegate Juliusz Katz-Suchy was ready to disclose his government's next move.

In any event, it was considered almost certain that the subsidiary group would be barred from entering any of the Soviet satellite countries on Greece's troubled frontier.

Lie went on to say that the group would eventually be disbanded if, and when, the Council dropped the case to clear the way for action by the General Assembly which meets September 16. He expressed the belief that the case could be taken off the Council's agenda without difficulty since this was a procedural question on which the veto did not apply.

Russians Ignore U. S. Requests For Release of 3 GIs in Korea

American soldiers reportedly held in Korea by Reds

Seoul, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Three teen-age GIs have been held incommunicado by Soviet military authorities since August 12 and two letters from Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, United States Commander in Korea, requesting their release have gone unanswered, an Army spokesman said today.

The three were said to have been making "a routine telephone line check" along the thirty-eighth parallel border line between the Russian and American occupation zones when they were captured in "broad daylight."

The spokesman added that all three had arrived in Korea only 10 days before they were picked up at the town of Yohyon-Ni. On the day of their seizure the Soviet commander at Yohyon-Ni asked an American officer and an interpreter to meet him to arrange for their release. When the Americans arrived, they were told that

American Forces Now Preparing For Another Winter On Morgan Line

By Barrett McGurn

Leghorn, Aug. 20.—The United States suddenly has reversed its preparations for military evacuation of Italy and abandonment of its positions along the Morgan Line at Trieste, it was learned today.

The American Government evidently is convinced that Russia has no immediate intention of ratifying the Balkan and Italian peace treaties, which would have created the new Free State of Trieste and would have withdrawn Russian, British and American troops from Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Italy.

Since June 30, the American Army had been ready on a day-to-day basis to evacuate Italy. Now suddenly preparations have been launched for another winter in Italy and along the Morgan Line.

Upheaval in Plans

The precipitous change in American plans for Italy has meant an immense upheaval at Army headquarters here. An entire train load of stoves and piping alone must be shipped back to the Morgan Line. This line is the boundary between Anglo-American and Yugoslav forces in dispute northeastern Italy.

Under the terms of the peace treaty, it would have been succeeded by a new Italo-Yugoslav boundary manned in regular peacetime fashion by nationals of the two neighbors. American troops on the Morgan Line had been so sure Italy's treaty would come into effect that they shipped all their winter equipment here to the opposite side of Italy for disposal.

As one of the most significant signs of the American expectation of a long wait for Russian ratification, the Army has begun plans for bringing to Italy more families of officers and enlisted men. Since March, no families had arrived. In another 30 to 60 days a new group is expected, and after that more will be brought as soon as the Army finds quarters for them. Army agents are out hunting such quarters now in Rome, Pisa, Florence, Leghorn, Lucca and Trieste.

Communists Create Discord

The changed plans are bound to have political repercussions in Italy. The Communist Party has been playing up to the latent Italian nationalistic spirit by attacking the continued Allied occupation as an infringement on the country's independence. On the other hand, some anti-Communists have appealed to Allied forces to stay to protect unarmed Italy from its hostile Communist neighbor, Yugoslavia.

The Army's hunt for new quarters is also likely to have unfavorable reactions. Italians have complained against the requisitioning of some of their most luxurious hotels and mansions.

About 20,000 American troops are still in Italy. Most are stationed in Leghorn, Trieste and Rome, with a few in Florence and Milan. Leghorn is a huge supply center for Trieste. Last week it was used also, at the orders of the War Department, to send a shipload of "all kinds of military supplies" to Greece.

Library Sees Risk of War In Red Policy

Congressional Aides Assert Soviet Aim Is World Revolution

By John L. Steele
United Press Reporter

A special study prepared by experts of the Library of Congress last night denounced Russia's foreign policy as intolerant, suspicious and distrustful and said it was keyed to a policy of world revolution, even at the risk of World War III.

The study was prepared for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Begun last year at the request of Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), former committee chairman and a top Administration foreign policy spokesman, it was recently completed under the direction of Dr. Francis O. Wilcox, formerly of the library's legislative reference service and now head of the committee staff.

Red Aim in Nutshell

A copy of the report was made available to the United Press. It summed up Soviet foreign policy in one brief paragraph:

"The summit of Communist hopes and aspirations is, in the last analysis, today as in Lenin's time, a complete change of the world's political, economic, social and cultural setup, and at the base of Soviet foreign policy lies the desire to make the world safe for communism or sovietism."

Connally, in a brief preface, said that it was "extremely important . . . that we in the western world leave no stone unturned in our attempt to understand the foreign policy of the Soviet Union."

Ernest S. Griffith, director of the legislative reference service, said the work embraced an attempt "so far as humanly possible to make the study completely objective."

But its authors minced no words. They maintained that Soviet leaders have adopted a "zigzagging"

Chile Fires Reds in Bread Strike Fight

Federal Department Heads, Four State Executives Ousted

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 20 (AP).—Four state executive officers and several heads of federal government departments, all Communists, were dismissed summarily today as Chile coped with severe strikes that President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla said were inspired by the party.

The president said last night he would ask Congress for emergency powers to deal with the "revolutionary strikes," precipitated when the government allowed bread prices to increase. Railroads and coal mining were the main industries beset by the walkouts.

The Communists asserted it was "absurd and malicious" to suggest that they had "any seditious purpose." Separate criticisms were aimed at the President by the political committee of the Communist party, the Communist-dominated Federation of Chilean Workers and the Communist newspaper, El Siglo. All asserted the strikes were spontaneous and provoked by hunger.

Chest Sets Goal Of $3,900,000

The Community Chest Federation here will seek $3,900,000 in contributions this fall.

The fund goal, announced by Federation President Daniel W. Bell last night, is about $182,000 more than last year's collection. But it is $300,000 short of last year's goal, which was never realized.

Covered by the campaign are Washington, Alexandria and the nearby counties of Arlington, Fairfax, Montgomery and Prince Georges.

Green Demands McCann Be Fired For 'Brutal' Act

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor yesterday demanded the immediate removal of Irving G. McCann, counsel for a House Labor subcommittee, for his "shocking and disgraceful" attack on Joseph A. Padway, AFL general counsel.

McCann grabbed Padway and punched him three times during a hearing in Los Angeles Tuesday.

Green wrote Subcommittee Chairman Carroll D. Kearns (R., Pa.) and Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.) that the "continued employment of Mr. McCann after the brutal exhibition which he gave at Hollywood must be interpreted as approval of his disgraceful conduct by those who employ him."

"Neither labor nor its friends can hold any confidence in your committee so long as it continues Attorney McCann in its employment," he said.

Europe's Rehabilitation Vital To Americas, Marshall Says

Quitandinha, Brazil, Aug. 20 (AP).—Secretary of State Marshall told the inter-American conference today that the United States had assumed heavy economic burdens. This was done, he said, to meet the challenge of political and moral problems in a Europe "now threatened with starvation and economic chaos" and that "the economic rehabilitation of Europe is vital to the economy of this hemisphere."

It was obviously a reply to persistent demands for a "Marshall Plan" for Latin-American countries. But he pledged that the United States would continue to help Latin-American countries to seek "a sound basis" for practical economic cooperation.

Marshall was given a thunderous applause at the end of his speech. Among his listeners was Senora Eva Duarte de Peron, wife of the Argentine President. She took a seat directly behind the Argentine delegation.

Marshall included in his address an indirect reference to totalitarian states when he declared "we must reject encroachment upon the fundamental rights of the individual with the same determination that we reject any encroachment upon the fundamental rights of the state. I am confident that we all agree that the state exists for the man, not the man for the state—and that we abhor any limitations upon the freedom of expression of men throughout the world.

"For only when we have access to the thoughts of men, to the forces of public opinion free of coercion or connivance, only then can we develop a wholesome common interest while at the same

'Ads' Aim to Raise Citizenship Level

'Freedom Is Everybody's Job' Slogan Of Advertising Council's One-Year Drive

Americans are to be given a new understanding of their rights and obligations as citizens in a Nation-wide, year-long campaign, the Advertising Council announced yesterday.

Purpose of the campaign is to "raise the level of active citizenship in the United States." The campaign slogan, "Freedom Is Everybody's Job," will be carried in newspapers, magazines, outdoor advertising, radio, car cards and window posters, the council announced.

The campaign is sponsored by the American Heritage Foundation, a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization. It was created to carry out an education program urging Americans to preserve their freedoms through greater participation in the processes of national, State and local government.

Charles G. Mortimer, chairman of the council, declared the basic objectives of the American Heritage program are:

1. More active participation by all citizens in the affairs of the Nation, State and community, and in fulfilling the duties of American citizenship.

2. An increased awareness of our individual rights and liberties as guaranteed by the Constitution and expressed in other historical documents.

3. Greater pride in our past and in our accomplishments.

4. A wider recognition of our obligations to the world to maintain our free institutions as an example of democracy preserving the rights and dignity of the individual.

Thomas D'Arcy Brophy, a director of The Advertising Council and president of the American Heritage Foundation, declared that to accomplish this, the campaign would emphasize "the relationship of our hard-won civil liberties to our development as the greatest Nation of free people in the world's history."

The council is the medium through which American business donates about 100 million dollars each year in advertising space and time to noncontroversial campaigns in the public interest.

It is currently campaigning for the sale of United States Savings Bonds, a safety educational program, a campaign on the crisis in education, and campaigns to recruit nurses, promoting religious and racial tolerance and supporting CARE for European relief.

The campaign will open on Constitution Day, September 17, with the first public showing of the "Freedom Train" in Philadelphia. The train will carry the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, the Constitution and numerous other historical documents on a tour of 48 States. It is sponsored by the American Heritage Foundation.

The train will be on display in Washington November 27 and 28. It will visit four Maryland cities and seven Virginia cities.

Chairman of the foundation is Winthrop W. Aldrich. The heads of the AFL and CIO, William Green and Philip Murray, and Robert G. Sproul are vice chairmen. Louis A. Novins is vice president and secretary, and J. Edward Shugrue is executive director.

The Advertising Council's public advisory committee which approved participation in the campaign includes:

W. B. Potter, director of advertising for Eastman Kodak Co., is the council's volunteer coordinator of the campaign.

Advertising materials have been prepared by a committee headed by John C. Cunningham of the Newell-Emmett Co.

Solicitation of sponsorship by national advertisers is being handled by a committee under Ivor Kenway of the American Broadcasting Co.

William B. Lewis is national chairman of the radio committee.

Britons Work on Bomb Dredged Near Docks

Southampton, England, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Bomb disposal squads worked feverishly today to render harmless a live 1000-pound bomb lying within 500 yards of the teeming Southampton docks. It was brought up yesterday by a dredger.

Warnings were flashed to all ships in and around the docks. The bomb was described by disposal officers as being in a "precarious condition." Its warhead was broken off and the fuse badly damaged.

Air Transport Group Wants More Landings

The Air Transport Association objected vigorously yesterday to the recent recommendation of a House subcommittee investigating flying safety that air line schedules to and from congested terminals be limited to all times to their landing and take-off capacity during instrument-weather conditions.

In a communication to members of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee group which reported last month on "aids to Air Navigation and Landing," Vice Admiral Emory S. Land, retired, president of the ATA, said the air lines' trade organization "does not subscribe to the remedial action" proposed by the subcommittee. The ATA analysis of the House report added, "It is far more realistic to attempt, by electronic means, to increase the frequency of landings."

Liverman said he asked Judge Raedy if he could contact the friend and that she answered the friend had left town. He said he did not ask her the name of the friend and she did not volunteer the information.

The hit-and-run crash occurred at about 9:20 p. m. Tuesday at 1st and K sts. nw., Rheubottom, the witness, told The Washiington Post that the Raedy car struck the parked car at the curb, was almost stopped by the impact, then whipped through a red light, cut across a curb and turned right into K st.

Driver Ignored Shouts

Rheubottom said he was concerned because Mrs. Wimbish had left her car with him to be simonized. He said his shouts to stop to the driver f the car were ignored. Rheubottom said a middle-aged woman was driving the car and that a man was sitting on the seat beside her.

The filling station employe jotted down the number of the hit-and-run machine, DC-182, which proved to be the one issued to Judge Raedy. The AIU estimated damage to the parked car at about $15.

Liverman said police recovered a piece of chrome trimming ripped from the hit-and-run car at the scene which was identical with a part missing from Judge Raedy's car.

Walkout Holds Liner America At Pier in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Sailing of the largest and fastest U. S. passenger liner, the America, was delayed today by a walkout of about 5000 longshoremen dissatisfied with a new agreement won by their union.

The contract, which provides for a 10-cent hourly wage hike, will be submitted tonight to 65,000 members of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association in locals along the Atlantic Coast from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va.

The result will be announced tomorrow.

The walkout tied up at least 10 piers on the Hudson River waterfront and made idle several vessels besides the America.

RCA Contract Signed

Camden, N. J., Aug. 20 (AP).—A two-year contract, first national wage agreement between the RCA-Victor division of Radio Corporation of America and the CIO-United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, was signed today with some 11,000 workers in four plants to receive a 5-cent hourly wage increase.

A separate union security pact, also signed today, continues the union shops at plants here and in Lancaster, Pa., Hollywood, Calif., and Pulaski, Va., until August 22, 1948, a joint company-union statement said. The date coincides with termination of union shop contract under the Taft-Hartley Law unless specifically approved by the workers.

Carburetor Output Halted

St. Louis, Aug. 20 (AP).—Production at the Carter Carburetor Corp., which supplies carburetors to a large portion of the automobile industry, was halted today by an authorized strike of 2400 CIO United Auto Workers over wages.

The company's final offer was a general wage increase of 11½ cents an hour and the union's demand was 18 cents, scaled down from an original 23½ cents.

Police Cut Picket Line

Dowagiac, Mich., Aug. 20 (U.P.).—The strikebound Heddon Bait Co., closed by powerfully reinforced United Auto Workers (CIO) picket lines yesterday, resumed partial production today under the watchful eyes of State police rushed to the scene with orders to smash so-called "goon squads."

Before NLRB

Labor Cases Await Filing Of Affidavits

Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, announced last night that more than 3000 cases before the board would be thrown out unless the unions involved registered and filed non-Communist affidavits within 20 days.

This ruling put new pressure on labor leaders to provide the documents called for in the Taft-Hartley law. There was no immediate comment from the CIO or AFL. Generally speaking, CIO unions had planned not to file.

Starting Friday, the new law will prohibit a union from using the services of the NLRB unless the union and its parent bodies have complied with the filing provisions.

A large independent union, the International Association of Machinists, with 600,000 members, announced its registration yesterday and made public that President Harvey M. Brown receives $12,000 a year, Secretary-Treasurer Eric Peterson, $10,000, and the resident vice president, Albert J. Hayes, $9000.

Peterson wrote the department that the machinists have barred Communists from membership since 1925.

In another development, Edgar L. Warren, retiring director of the Federal Conciliation Service, urged in his final report that we avoid "renewed Government interference and regulation." He said that labor and management have found this to be "a crutch upon which the parties rely, rather than helping them along the path to self-government."

Convicted Nazi to Take Case to U. S. High Court

Nuernberg, Germany, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—The United States Supreme Court will hear an appeal for the review of the life imprisonment sentence imposed on former Air Field Marshal Erhard Milch by an American war crimes tribunal, his attorney said today.

The attorney, Dr. Fredrich Berghold, said that he had been officially informed the case would come before the court in October. Milch was found guilty two months ago of war crimes and crimes against humanity, involving medical experimentation and slave labor.

Consolidate Labor Forces, ITU Urges

Cleveland, Aug. 20 (AP).—The AFL International Typographical Union convention today called for "immediate steps" to unite the AFL, the CIO and the railroad brotherhoods into one labor organization and urged defeat of legislators who voted for the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Merger of all organized labor into one "mighty" organization was proposed because of "recent attacks on labor and labor unions, particularly the Taft-Hartley slave labor law."

In addition, the convention called for joint political action with other unions and "progressive organizations" throughout the Nation to fight off such legislation in the future as the Taft-Hartley law.

U. S. Dismisses Red Publisher In Frankfurt

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 20 (AP).—Emil Carlebach, Communist publisher-licensee of the Frankfurter Rund-Schau, one of the largest newspapers published in the American zone, was dismissed from his post today by the United State military government.

In Berlin, Col. G. E. Textor, chief of the military government's information control division, said Carlebach was being dismissed because of his "unsuitable politcial views and traits of character."

Carlebach, one of the zone's most influential editors and a former inmate of the Buchenwald concentration camp, said he believed he was dismissed because "it is not intended to allow the Communist Party to state its opinions."

The action reduced to two the number of Communists among the 80 publisher-licensees authorized to put out newspapers in American-occupied Germany.

50 Drowned in Egypt

Cairo, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Fifty persons were reported today to have drowned when their boat foundered while crossing the swollen Nile River in the upper Egyptian province of Guirga during the Ramadan festivals. Eighteen other passengers were rescued.

Arkansas Youth Is Held For Passing as Army Officer

A 22-year-old youth from Hot Springs, Ark., well-equipped with blank Army discharge papers and Adjutant General's Office passes, was charged with impersonating an officer by the FBI here yesterday.

Identified as Ralph W. Walker, he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, who ordered him held under $5000 bond. The hearing was continued to August 27.

The youth was arrested Monday by the War Department's Criminal Investigation Division in his apartment at 3512 Massachusetts ave. nw., for investigation of three bad checks, totaling $300, passed at the Walter Reed Hospital post exchange, CID said.

He was turned over to the FI yesterday after CID agents learned he had been discharged from the Army.

Walker wore a first lieutenant's uniform, CID agents said. They said they found three discharge papers made out in his name and about 50 blank discharge papers in his apartment. Also found were three Adjutant General's Office passes, made out to himself, and about 150 blank AGO passes, they said.

300 Dead, 4000 Hurt in Cadiz Blast

Cadiz, Aug. 20 (INS).—The Spanish government said officially tonight that the death toll in the naval arsenal explosion at Cadiz would probably exceed 300.

Mayor Sanche Cossio estimated that 4000 persons were wounded in the blast which so terrified many they thought an atomic bomb or earthquake had struck the city.

The government said that of the 200 bodies thus far taken from the ruins only 114 had been identified because of their mutilated and burned condition.

Conventional Arms Canvass Is Sought

Proposal by Australia and Syria Would Not Take Atom Into Account

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Australia and Syria today proposed a canvass of all 55 United Nations for detailed information on the size of their armies and stockpiles of conventional armaments.

In a resolution submitted to the working committee of the U.N. Conventional Armaments Commission—in reality the full commission meeting informally—the two nations called for the appointment of a subcommittee to work out a detailed questionnaire.

The survey would touch on nothing but conventional armaments, and the United States would not have to reveal any data on its atomic program and A-bomb stockpiles.

The meeting today was the first since the Security Council voted more than five weeks ago to adopt a United States work plan separating the problems of atomic control from the general problem of conventional armament reduction.

Text of Marshall's Speech

Here is the text of Secretary Marshall's address in Brazil, as released by the State Department:

I WELCOME this opportunity to participate with so many distinguished statesmen in the inter-American conference for the maintenance of continental peace and security under the direction of the permanent chairman, His Excellency Raul Fernandes. It gives me an opportunity to renew friendships with many of you and to meet others for the first time. May I express to you particularly, Mr. Moairman—and through you to His Excellency President Dutra—the appreciation and admiration, which I, my associates and my Government feel for the generous hospitality of Brazil in its role as host to this conference.

While this is my first experience in a Pan-American conference, I did have a rather intimate experience in conferences with your military representatives during the war years. It was my honor and pleasure on one occasion, in 1940, to have all of your chiefs of staff as my guest. So I do not feel quite a stranger to the proceedings of this gathering.

We are here to add to the strength of the structures for peaceful stability in this hemisphere. The foundations of this structure have already been laid at Buenos Aires, Lima, Panama, Habana and Mexico City and we are molding it within the framework of the Charter of the United Nations, which our governments joined in writing. The frame of reference for this meeting has, therefore, been clearly established.

THE immediate task we face at this conference is to draft the treaty contemplated in the Act of Chapultepec. In that act we jointly declared that every attack by a state against an American state shall be considered as an act of aggression against all, and we provided for collective sanction against the aggressor. This principle of collective responsibility for our common defense is a natural development of inter-American collaboration.

We have been for years a community of nations, with deep traditions of cooperation, and mutual respect. We turn now to the drafting of a treaty to establish a community responsibility, to defend by collective action any member of our regional group that may be the victim of an aggression.

This is but one step. Our broad objectives require that we simplify and make clear the exact procedures of pacific settlement whereby such inter-American disputes as may arise can be effectively settled through peaceful means. At Bogota, in January, we shall formulate the treaty designed to give effect to that purpose. This treaty, together with the comprehensive organic pact on the inter-American system we conclude at this conference, will strengthen the principle of collective responsibility and the rule of law in our international affairs.

The results of our labors will demonstrate to all the world that peoples and nations who really want peace can have peace by living in an atmosphere of increasing cooperative action and good will. We all recognize, I am sure, that we are living in a sick and suffering world. By the grace of God, through the development of the strong bonds of an Americanism we have been spared the horrors and devastation of the war in our countryside. Perhaps distance from the scenes of the great tragedy makes us slow to comprehend the necessities. Nor do I think we are sufficiently aware of how vastly important to the future of the old world is the unity of the new.

THE GRAVE political problems confronting the world today are largely due to the complete disruptions of normal economic and social relations. The extent of this confusion is much more marked in Europe and the East than in this hemisphere. Our problems are long-range peacetime problems requiring more intensive economic planning for the more efficient use of the tools of production and of the abundant resources at our disposal with which to raise the general standard of living of this hemisphere. The resources and technical skill of private enterprise, the resources of our Government and of international agencies such as the Pan American Union, the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, must be intelligently applied to the efficient and fair development of this productive capacity.

The Government of the United States of America has assumed unusually heavy burdens in a determined effort to meet the minimum economic requirements of the areas devastated by war and now threatened with starvation and economic chaos. In assuming this burden we have not lost sight of the economic problems of the western hemisphere. As a matter of fact the economic rehabilitation of Europe is vital to the economy of this hemisphere. My Government will continue to take up economic questions, with its sister republics and seek a sound basis for practical cooperation. Each of our countries must do its part in the achievement of this goal.

The ecomonic problems caused by the war have developed political and moral problems in Europe and the east which cannot be ignored. We of the American republics won our freedom in the name of democracy. We have fought for the dignity of the individual—an individaul endowed with certain inalienable rights that can not be taken from him by any law or decree, an individual whose standards of moral conduct are the essence of a peaceful world. But what is more important, we are devoted to the principle that states and nations should be bound by the same standards of moral conduct we set for the individual. Good faith and fair dealing, honesty and friendly cooperation, mutual respect and freedom of intercourse—these we expect of each other as individuals, these we should demand of each other as states.

This is the basis of our fundamental belief in the equality of individuals, of the equality of states.

WE MUST reject encroachment upon the fundamental rights of the individual with the same determination that we reject encroachment upon the fundamental rights of the states. I am confident that we all agree that the state exists for man, not man for the state—and that we abhor any limitations upon the freedom of expression of men throughout the world. For only when we have access to the thoughts of men to the forces of public opinion free of coercion or connivance, only then can we develop a wholesome common interest while at the same time respecting separate national traditions.

We of the Americans, I think, have achieved this goal—we have no secrets from each other—we have confidence in our pledged words because we know the forces of public opinion from which they stem. We stand to all the world as an example of states trying to live in harmony, determined to abide by the same principles of moral conduct we demand of the individual citizen.

With a foundation of these principles we can have faith and assurance that we can solve the problems that may present themselves in the years to come. Today, at Rio de Janeiro, our concern is with mutual defense and security; tomorrow at Bogota we shall go on to reorganize and strengthen our inter-American system and to make it a more effective agency of cooperation in the pursuit of our common interest. With good will and mutual respect for one another, both of the objectives will be attained. And the world will learn, I hope, a great lesson.

Prior to his address before a plenary conference session, Marshall continued his "get acquainted talks" with various foreign ministers. Ricardo Alfaro of Panama said his conference with Marshall centered around "the very disquieting international situation," and that "we agreed peace has not been consolidated in a way which people desire so as to really be free from fear."

Marshall made clear that the United States feels that it is the sole business of the present conference to draw up the treaty for mutual defense and security contemplated by the Act of Chapultepec at Mexico City in 1945, and that economic considerations should be left over for the subsequent meeting in Bogota in January of next year.

"Today, at Rio de Janeiro, our concern is with mutual defense and security; tomorrow at Bogota we shall go on to reorganize and strengthen our inter-American system and to make it a more effective agency of cooperation in the pursuit of our common interest," he said.

Cuba has asked for a clause against "economic aggression" in the treaty. Argentine declarations have emphasized the importance which that country attaches to economic matters.

Marshall's comment on the talk with the Panama foreign minister Alfaro was that "we discussed matters in relation to the treaty."

Alfaro told newsmen he and Marshall discussed such threats to peace as "displays of war of nerves" and the "foci of agitation here and there."

Storm Cracks Heat, Destroys 4 Barns in Md.

A brief electrical storm cracked Greater Washington's 95-degree heat yesterday afternoon but left considerable property damage in the Montgomery County area.

Temperatures, which had reached 95 degrees at 2 p. m., skidded 16 degrees in the hour between 3:40 and 4:40 p. m.

Violent lightning, accompanied by driving rain, fired at least four barns in the Layhill, Md., area, struck six residences and dropped power lines and trees between Bethesda and Rockville.

Before the cool air moved in, two persons were taken to hospitals in Washington for heat exhaustion. They were Mrs. Alice Nelson, 79, of 709 H st. nw., who was overcome in the 800 block of G st. nw., and Walter Hutchinson, 43, of 1601 Columbia rd. nw.

The Montgomery County storm spent its fury along Route 240 and nipped at Silver Spring, Takoma Park, Four Corners and Layhill.

At Bethesda Naval Hospital, power was off temporarily, but no operations were in progress and the hospital switched to its own emergency power system. High tension lines were reported down at 201 and 15 W. Bradley la., in Bethesda, and police stationed guards until repairs were made.

Barns were destroyed on the George A. Willson and the Bible farms in the Layhill area; on the farm owned by E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery County Democratic leader, near Norwood, and on the Louis farm near Kensington. Several other farm structures were reported hit by lightning near Hillandale.

Sneezers Now Can Keep Check On Pollen Saturation of Air

Air-borne enemies, lilliputian in size but capable of wreaking indescribable misery on humans, are hovering menacingly over Washington.

Once again the ragweed pollen is infiltrating the area, leaving many bleary-eyed victims.

Keeping scientific score on the one-way battle is a little gadget atop the Weather Bureau. It aids in recording the ragweed pollen count—an index to the sneeze agony of hay fever victims.

Two small metal discs, held together by wires; cradle a glass slide, greased with petroleum to snare the pollen.

After 24-hour evposure, the slide is stained, then the pollen is counted under a microscope.

As of 9:30 a. m. yesterday, the 24-hour count tallied 12 grains per cubic yard of air, the District Medical Society reported.

Starting with today's issue, The Washington Post will carry daily, for the duration of the hay fever season, the D. C. Medical Society ragweed pollen count.

More sensitive hay fever sufferers achoo when only one grain of pollen is present per cubic yard of ozone; some of the less sensitive can resist up to 70 grains or more. The average victim whips out a handkerchief when the count hits about 20.

Ragweed, chief cause of hay fever, begins pollenating in mid-August, hits a peak in early September, and is finished about October 1.

Here is the score so far: It started with a "low count" on August 5; registered none present until August 13, when one grain was spotted; August 14, one; August 17, four; August 18, three, and August 19-20, 12.

Taken here and elsewhere in the country, the count helps doctors judge effectiveness of hay fever treatments; aids in diagnosing factors other than pollen concentration which contribute to allergic symptoms, and provides a travel guide for victims.

The count should also assist in determining the effectiveness of the new chemical weed-killer, 2-4-D, which National Capital Parks is using extensively this year.

(But be it added, the fiendish stuff, wings of winds, can always drop in from other areas).

An aero-biologist once figured out some seven tons of the sneeze-inducer invade Washington annually.

And just one short, well-developed rag weed, in but one season, germinates one million times a million grains of pollen.

1500 Paraguay Rebels Taken, Rest Trapped, Loyalists Say

Asuncion, Aug. 20 (AP).—The Paraguayan government announced tonight that Loyalist troops had captured more than 1500 rebels and surrounded the rest of the insurgent force near Villeta and Angostura, 40 miles south of Asuncion on the Paraguay River.

A government communique said leaders of the five-months-old revolt were fleeing to Argentina and that two rebel gunboats, the Paraguay and Humaita, had surrendered to Argentine authorities.

Members of the "Communist internal brigade under direction of Obdulio Barthe," leader of the Paraguayan Communist Party, have fled into the woods near Ypecua, the bulletin added. The government also claimed that all transport services in the country had been restored to normal operation.

An earlier government communique stated that the rebels had ceased organized resistance. It said the rebel radio transmitter was captured yesterday when the insurgents surrendered their river merchant boats. The transmitter was the insurgents' only means of direct communication with the outside world.

Segregation Ban Adopted In N. J. Charter by Slave's Kin

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 20 (AP).—The grandson of a Virginia slave who bought his freedom today succeeded in having the New Jersey constitutional convention adopt his proposal to make the State the first in the Nation to ban segregation specifically in the public schools and militia by a proposed new charter.

He was Oliver Randolph, Newark lawyer and the only Negro delegate in the convention.

His grandfather, Joseph, adopted the famous Virginia name of Randolph when he purchased his right to live as a free man shortly before the Civil War. The family moved to Pass Christian, in Harrison County, Miss., where Oliver was born in 1884.

A Harrison County school today bears the name of his father, Dr. John W. Randolph, who was a leading educator, and acting speaker of the Mississippi Legislature during reconstruction days.

Oliver Randolph was praised by fellow delegates for his accomplishments since he came to New Jersey in 1915 after being educated in the Washington, D. C., Howard University.

He was admitted to the New Jersey bar in 1917, elected to the State Assembly in 1922 and 1923, when he was appointed assistant United States attorney for New Jersey. He served in that capacity for 10 years, during which time he was a delegate and alternate to Republican national conventions.

He is now a deputy attorney general in the State law department.

To Its Senders May Be Costly

Tell your chain letter friends with that $2048 look in their eyes that the Postoffice Department says it's illegal.

Not onl yis it illegal but the Postoffice is out to get its participants and promises that convictions may bring maximum penalties of $1000 fine and two years' imprisonment.

It makes no difference, says the Department, that participants mail onl ythe $2 cash, without explanatory note. It's still a violation of postal law.

"The transportation of the $2 by mail without the chain letter list constitutes a violation," said a Department statement. "Any person participating in this scheme either directly or indirectly is subject to criminal prosecution for using the mails in furthering a lottery."

Backers of the present scheme to get rich quick devised the method of selling the lists of participants personally to new entrants, with the mails used only to carry the profits to those heading the list. The dime chain letter of the 30's was dead-ended when postal inspectors cried "Foul," over the mailed listings.

In the meantime, there are residents within Greater Washington who are now getting stacks of "$2 mail" from the scheme, which postal authorities said started in the Midwest and spread rapidly over the country.

Theoreticall, at least, the unbroken chain promises a return of $2048 for the original $4 investment—$2 to the man who sells you the list and $2 to the name heading that list.

China 'Closes' Red-Controlled Port of Dairen

Nanking, Aug. 20 (AP).—China today officially closed the Russian-controlled port of Dairen "to all foreign shipping" but gave no explanation of how she expected to carry out even a token enforcement. She has no navy, only a few destroyers and a number of small gunboats.

The action was interpreted as directed against Russia, which had refused consistently to relinquish control of Dairen to the Chinese, as provided in the Sino-Soviet treaty two years ago. The treaty decreed Dairen a free port, but the Russians in effect have closed it to all shipping except their own.

Hollington Tong, director of information, said the government was studying closely frequent reports that Russian ships were supplying Chinese Communist forces through Dairen.

No American ship has been permitted by the Russians to enter Dairen since March 6, when the Soviet abruptly ordered the immediate departure of a United States courier vessel that had overstayed its 48-hour permit by two hours. That official ship carried an American correspondent who the Russians refused to permit ashore.

the soldiers were being held for further investigation.

The spokesman said that Hodge and his staff had been unable to discover the whereabouts of the men or why they were being held.

American liaison officers in Pyongyang in the Soviet zone were informed, meanwhile, that "the situation is being handled by General Korotov himself." Korotov is the Soviet commander to whom Hodge addressed his protests.

Hodge wrote that he "strongly objected to the prolonged retention of these soldiers . . . who were in broad daylight, in full uniform" when they were apprehended.

According to U. S. Army headquarters, those held are Pfc. Gerald K. Geffen, Port Chester, N. Y.; Pfc. John D. Hopfe, Seattle, Wash., and T/5 Tommy F. Pugsley, Renton, Wash.

Don't Let Heat Fool You, Boy; School Is Near

The involuntary shudder a youngster gives nowadays when he sees a calendar is a sure sign that summer vacation days are fast running out.

No matter how high the temperatures, come September 3 Arlington County youngsters will go back to classes. And September 3 is less than two weeks away.

The following day students from Loudoun and Fairfax Counties and Alexandria and Falls Church will return to school.

In nearby Maryland, public schools both in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties will resume September 10.

District school children will receiv a long post-Labor-Day reprieve. Classes in the city public schools will not open until September 22. Parochial school students, though, are scheduled to go back September 8.

Condition of Bilbo 'Continues Good'

New Orleans, Aug. 20 (AP).—The condition of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi, "continues good," officials at Foundation Hospital here said this morning. The Senator, under treatment here during the last two weeks, was reported resting well but still in "serious condition."

Indonesians Set to Fight On in Sumatra

Batavia, Java, Aug. 20 (AP).—Indonesian leaders prepared today to abandon their capital in anticipation of renewed full scale war with the Dutch as the Netherlands governor general bitterly charged the Indonesians with a two-year record of "murder, arson and torture."

Members of the Indonesian cabinet met in Jogjakarta with top military leaders, who made no secret of the fact they believe the Dutch will launch a drive soon to capture the interior capital city of the republic. A mountain fortress in Sumatra was seen as the possible new capital.

Dr. Hubertus J. Van Mook, Dutch governor general, announced in a broadcast here that Indonesian authority over the rich regions of Sumatra and Madoera occupied by Dutch troops since July 21 would not again be recognized by the Dutch.

In the sharpest criticism he has ever voiced of the republic, Van Mook declared the Netherlands cannot indefinitely continue to leave the way open for the republic to "change its attitudes and methods."

Neutral observers in Batavia said his remarks possibly presaged a drive on Jogjakarta. Dutch military and civil officials are reported to have recommended such action to the home government at The Hague. (A dispatch from the Netherlands capital said the cabinet met in another emergency session to consider the Dutch-Indonesian conflict.)

The Indonesian cabinet appointed Vice President Mohammed Hatta as vice supreme commander of the Indonesian armed forces. He is in Bukittinngi, a mountain stronghold in Sumatra, and would automatically assume formal leadership of both the civil government and armed forces if President Soekarno should be unable to function as the chief executive and supreme commander.

The cabinet prepared to transfer all the functions of the central government to Sumatra.

Reds Stalling On Austria, U. S. Charges

By The Associated Press

The United States in effect charged Russia yesterday with stalling in the stalemated four-power negotiations at Vienna on the Austrian peace treaty.

Robert A. Lovett, Acting Secretary of State, announced the recalled of Joseph M. Dodge, American representative on the Austrian Treaty Commission, to Washington for consultation. Lovett said the United States is "deeply concerned" at the lack of progress.

Lovett read to a news conference a statement by Dodge on the reasons for his recall. It said the Russians had arbitrarily seized disputed properties in their zone in eastern Austria. These include the Lobau oil refinery.

The Russians, Dodge said, displayed "indifference" to factual material submitted by other delegations, even when conclusions were unanimous, wherever there was a conflict with Soviet claims.

Dodge reported that Russian members of the commission, which started work more than three months ago, have failed to take part actively in the development and presentation of concrete facts and to carry out instructions of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

The treaty commission was set up at the Moscow Foreign Ministers' meeting in April to try to iron out long-standing differences between Russia and the Western powers on a draft of a peace treaty for Austria.

Taylor Reaches Paris

Paris, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Myron C. Taylor, President Truman's personal representative at the Vatican, arrived today by plane from London. Taylor, who is en route to Rome to resume his post, said he would remain in the French capital "a few days."

Writer Sought in General Lee Investigation

Leghorn, Italy, Aug. 20 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee hitched up his belt, smoothed his shirt-front, braced his shoulders and prepared today to face an investigation of his command.

Like any GI preparing for an inspection, the grizzled 60-year-old commander of American forces in the Mediterranean theater stood at stiff attention in the hot sunshine of the Pisa Army Airfield as his old friend and fellow West Pointer, Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, inspector general of the Army, stepped down from Lee's own plane to start the inquiry into charges of varied abuses in his command.

Noncommittal about his procedure, Wyche said he was trying to get in touch with Robert Ruark, Scripps-Howard writer whose series of articles led Lee to ask for the investigation.

Wyche said he would like very much to have the "cooperation of Ruark in the investigation."

Amvets Ask Full Probe

By the United Press

The American Veterans of World War II last night threatened to withdraw its support of universal military training legislation unless a "complete and impartial" investigation is made of charges against Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee, commander of the Mediterranean theater.

National Commander Ray Sawyer demanded that Lee "be immediately recalled to the United States pending an impartial investigation of the situation lest this become a case of Army generals whitewashing Army generals."

opportunist policy first outlined by Lenin, in their efforts to drive the Soviet aims forward.

"The Bolsheviks are prepared to play any card available at any time," the report said. "This might be one day an international, and the next day a national card; a conservate or revolutionary, an Orthodox or a Mohammedan, a Pan-Slavic or a Pan-Arabic card; the ends certainly count more in the eyes of the Communists than the means applied in attainment."

Russian policy, as practiced before the United Nations and in world chancelleries, is marked by "intolerance . . . one of the most obvious features," the report continued. Likewise, it said, "suspicion and mistrust are two other basic elements of Soviet foreign policy" and often are quoted by those administering the policy in defense of diplomatic moves "which could otherwise not easily be understood."

Russian diplomatic moves, the report said, spring from fears, partially imagined, and suspicions which can be "artificially generated."

"It is often an organic part of the totalitarian technique for keeping the population in a state of heightened tension," it said. "The ever-present phantom of an unprovoked foreign war serves as a welcome excuse for the drabness of Soviet everyday life, the constant shortage of consumer goods and commodities, and for the further exertion and sacrifices asked from the Soviet population."

Its authors drew heavily on the writings of John Foster Dulles, a leading Republican Party foreign policy spokesman, and on those of other former Government officials, university professors and newspaper correspondents.

The study cited the writings of Dulles to back up what it termed an "element of a possible miscalculation on the part of the Communist leaders and the danger of continued Soviet aggressiveness bringing world peace to a sudden end."

Remarks of former Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson that Soviet activities were "aggressive and expansionist" were defended as words that "could hardly be challenged."

Other factors cited by the study included:

1. A reported "consensus of Russian experts" that the Soviet people could not "sleep quietly," or expect the original philosophy of a "withering away" of the state as long as the Soviet Union was faced by countries with non-Soviet types of society. The study attributes to this fear recent Russian moves in central and southern Europe—a desire for "establishment of a Pax Sovietica (Soviet peace) for the entire world."

2. The revolutionary theories of Marxism and Leninism are today—as before—recognized official dogma of the Russian state, notwithstanding the 1943 dissolution of the third (Communist) International.

3. Communist leaders now are intent on preserving Russia as a starting point for world revolution in the belief that capitalistic countries soon must enter a period of depression, hence a "revolutionary situation" in Soviet eyes.

U. N. a Platform for Propaganda

4. Soviet acceptance of membership in the United Nations seemed to offer Russian leaders a "welcome platform" for propagation of Soviet thought and a new line of defense in addition to Soviet satellites and the Russian army.

5. Soviet policy on atomic energy control has led to some anti-Soviet sentiment in America for a "preventive war" against Russia now. But such a course was described as "dangerous . . . Difficult," although possession by both the United States and Russia of the atom bomb was an alternative "equally frightening."

In summary the report stated that the relationship between the United States and Russia had "deteriorated dangerously" since the years of wartime cooperation.

Besides Wilcox, who served last fall as an adviser to Connally at the U. N., the research work for the study was contributed by Dr. Sergius Yakobson, analyst in Russian affairs, and Francis Valeo, both of the legislative reference staff.

Women to Wear Those New Skirts, But Won't Like It

Chicago, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—The women of the land hemmed and hawed over the new long-skirt styles today, but wound up with a typical women's decision.

They don't like 'em, but they'll wear 'em.

A survey of 13 cities showed that only one woman infive liked the calf-length hemlines, but two out of three said they'd go along "to keep from looking funny."

One dance master stuck the male neck out here:

"That'll about mean the end of jitterbugging," he said. "The girls can't do all of those fancy splits in a Mother Hubbard."

Mere hemletting won't be so easy. Tailors said that last year's hems are too skimpy for the required letting down about 5 inches.

Army women will be in style though, and there isn't much the gals can do about it. The War Department has ordered that the Wac's skirts be lowered.

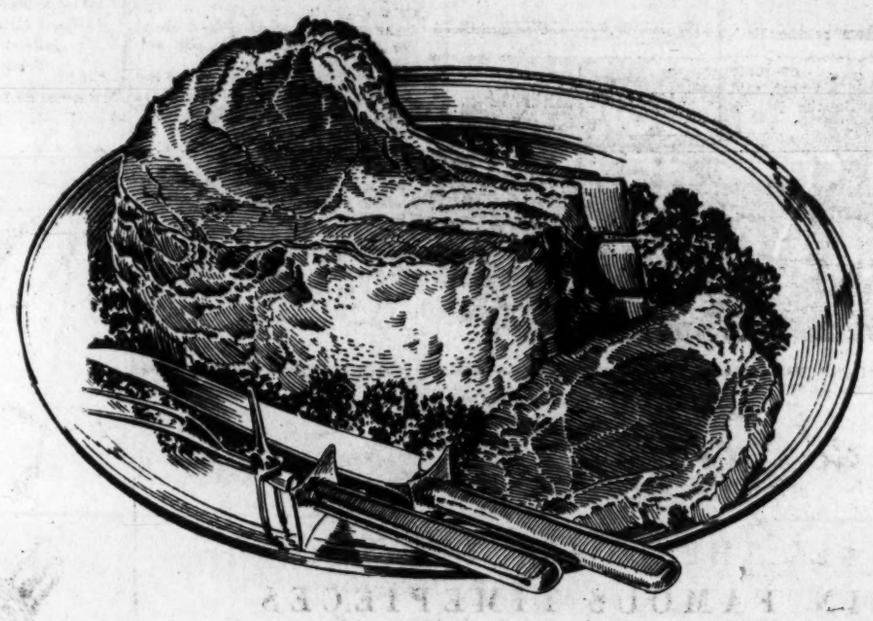
SAFEWAY'S ANSWER TO HIGH BEEF PRICES



The price of live cattle and dressed beef is now at or near record levels which has resulted in beef prices beyond the reach of many customers and we, at Safeway, realize that something must be done to place meat prices within the reach of all. Therefore, until further notice, Safeway will carry "U. S. Good and Choice" grades of beef at one price and "U. S. Commercial" grade at a lower price.

These prices are as follows:

		"U. S. CHOICE or GOOD GRADES"	"U. S. COMMERCIAL GRADE"
PORTERHOUSE STEAK	lb.	89c	69c
SIRLOIN STEAK	lb.	89c	69c
ROUND STEAK	Boneless lb.	89c	69c
RIB ROAST	7-inch Cut lb.	69c	59c
CHUCK ROAST	Bone In lb.	55c	45c

A WORD ABOUT BEEF GRADES All beef handled by Safeway is graded by Government expert graders while the meat is still in the packing plant. The various grades are determined by certain standards pertaining to the conformation, fat covering and finish of the animal. The grades most commonly sold at retail are, "Choice," "Good," "Commercial" and "Utility." Each carcass is roller-stamped according to its particular grade.

While the fat covering on "Commercial" grade is not usually as heavy or as evenly distributed as on "U. S. Choice" and "Good" grades, you can be assured that it will give entire satisfaction. The most important point to consider is that all cuts of meat have the same nutritive value regardless of grade and in purchasing "U. S. Commercial" grade, you are not denying your family any of the nutrition so necessary to human life.

SAFEWAY'S GUARANTEE STILL STANDS
Our "U. S. Commercial" beef will carry the same guarantee as the "Choice" and "Good" grades; namely: All meat sold at Safeway meat counters regardless of cut, price, or grade is Guaranteed to please you 100% or all your money back without fuss or quibble.

Prices effective until close of business Saturday, August 23, 1947, in the Washington, D. C. Trading Area only. NO SALES TO DEALERS. WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES.

Britain Curbs Pound Exchange for Dollars

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton told the British nation in a radio broadcast tonight that after midnight persons who receive pounds in payment for business transactions with British firms or the government or in foreign exchange dealings "will no longer have an automatic right, as at present, to change this sterling into dollars."

Dalton said in his unexpected announcement that "What are called American accounts" were excepted from the new ruling.

Pointing up the gravity of the United Kingdom's present economic crisis, Dalton said his government had withdrawn $2,750,000,000 of the American loan as of the end of July and that since August 10 she has withdrawn an additional 242 million dollars, leaving a balance of 758 million dollars.

Disturbance Seen

The chancellor said sterling would be freely exchangable into the currencies of other nations than the United States.

The decision to clamp down on the dollar convertability of the pound "will inevitably cause a disturbance of trade over a wide area," Dalton predicted, "and may lead to some interruption of supplies."

He warned the British people that the decision meant further shortages of overseas supplies and probably some reduction in Britain's already skimpy food ration. Then he appealed for the highest possible production in the United Kingdom and declared: "In this emergency, idleness is a crime. There is no substitute for hard work if we are to restore our national economy."

Public Falls to Grasp It

Earlier, Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison told a news conference that Britain was doing its best to conquer economic distress by its own efforts.

In an apparent reference to the United States, Morrison added that "we must convince others that we mean business." There were signs, he said, that "progress" had been made in the Nation's battle for fiscal recovery, including record July exports and increased coal production.

Dalton's announcement apparently had little meaning to the British public which confessed generally it had no idea what it meant.

A typical reaction was that of a newspaper delivery man who heard the broadcast in a pub and then inquired.

"What the hell is he talking about?"

Attlee's Deputy Ridicules Report Of Resignation

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—The London Daily Mail said today Prime Minister Attlee intended to resign "in the near future," but the report was challenged by Attlee's deputy, Herbert Morrison.

"I only saw it in one paper," Morrison said, "and, as far as I can see, the story does not know what it's talking about."

The Daily Mail, independent conservative newspaper, said Attlee intended to step out because of deteriorating health and nervous exhaustion after the British-American loan revision talks in Washington passed their most critical stage.

As lord president of the council, Morrison is second to Attlee in the organization of the British government. The story said Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin would be Attee's choice as successor.

Big Consumption Of Water in D. C. Disputes Census

The District Commissioners are scratching their sparse hairs over this watery mystery. They want to know who's doing all the drinking.

It may be that Washington has collectively jumped aboard the wagon. That's the only explanation suggested to explain why last year's population of 860,000 drank water sufficient for 910,000 persons.

David Auld, District Water superintendent, reports there has been a continual increase in water consumption since the end of the war, although the population is going down. Last fiscal year we drank (or bathed in) 149,750,000 gallons. That's three million more than 1946 and eight million more than 1945.

Army engineers in charge of the Washington Aqueduct don't believe the official census figures. They announced as far as they are concerned Washington has 910,000 persons.

U. S. Relaxes Loan Agreement

plies of pounds began converting them into American dollars. This caused Britain to make heavy inroads on the American loan, reducing it from $3,750,000,000 to about 850 million dollars, and threatening to wipe it out entirely within a few months.

Earlier in the day Snyder told newsmen that this country would ask "any pertinent questions" about British internal affairs that bear on the British loan agreement.

He emphasized that the United States, although "sympathetic" to the British problem, wants full details on the causes of the crisis, and the uses to which the American loan is being put.

His statements were in response to questions about reports this country is interested in British domestic affairs, particularly nationalization of basic industries and lagging production.

When asked if he was being "very tough" about Britain's "socialistic experiments," as reported earlier in London, Snyder replied:

"I don't know of any such questions that have come up. As far as being tough is concerned, I have assured Sir Wilfrid Eady (head of the British loan delegation) that we are viewing the British problem with a great deal of sympathy."

He emphatically denied that Britain had requested discussion of a clause providing for revision of the loan agreement through act of Congress.

He announced that two technical groups, made up of members from both countries, are considering problems dealing with modification of the loan agreement.

One, a trade group, is handling matters such as the British request for permission to increase her buying, with British pounds, from British dominions. Such purchases would be at the expense of purchases from this country, but would aid, the British argue, in conserving its dollar supply.

A financial group is studying such questions as the free convertibility of pounds into dollars—the provision temporarily suspended by the Dalton-Snyder agreement.

"We feel," Snyder said, "that we are making good progress."

Later, he said, the trade group would take up discussion of the 75 per cent tax recently imposed by Britain on imported American motion pictures.

Taber Believes Truman Surplus Too Low

Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, told the Associated Press at his Auburn, N. Y., home last night that he believed the Federal surplus would be even greater than predicted by President Truman in his budget review. He said:

"I believe the President's receipt estimate is low and his expenditure estimate is high. I can't see any reason why expenditures would run to 37 billion unless very large increases are authorized for foreign relief this winter. I look to see receipts larger than the $41,667,000,000 that Mr. Truman estimates. I would figure the surplus will be between five and six billion dollars."

Taber added that receipts for the rest of the year are going to run over receipts for the corresponding period last year because of boosts of from five to 10 per cent in average wage scales this year, largely since July 1, and a consequent increase in withholding tax receipts.

Taber also said: "The people of the United States are entitled to tax relief because if we do not get tax relief we are going to throttle production and thereby create inflation."

Senator Young (R., N. Dak.) said the Chief Executive's estimate that Congress saved $1,500,000,000 is a "political" stroke and evidently "an attempt to delude the Nation into believeing that Republicans are incompetent of carrying out an economy program."

Young, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the fairest figure on saving on appropriations for this year is $3,163,672,303 and that in addition Congress trimmed $4,017,332,946 from previous appropriations.

Truman Sees Huge Surplus

the revision was predicated on "a continuance of employment, prices and incomes close to their present levels throughout the fiscal year."

Mr. Truman's statement bolstered by a number of charts and tables prepared for him by the Bureau of the Budget, was the Administration's salvo in what has been called the Battle of the Budget.

It was not an angrily-worded salvo. Twice the President interpolated remarks chiding Republican economy claims, but for the most part his statement was a business-like fiscal report.

The so-called Battle of the Budget began with the convening of the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress, when the House pledged itself to trim Mr. Truman's budget by six billion dollars and the Senate by $4,500,000,000.

When Congress adjourned for the summer, there was a bewildering controversy over the amount that had been saved. Representative Taber (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, claimed a saving of $4,423,000,000. Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the savings totaled $6,616,578,029.

Democrats Taunt GOP

Democrats taunted the Republicans for their failure to get together on a good story, and charged that most of their alleged savings were "phony."

President Truman announced on August 7 that he had asked the Bureau of the Budget to make a study of "all the facts" and yesterday's White House statement was the result.

That part of Mr. Truman's statement that raised doubts about tax relief was as follows:

"The indicated surplus of $4,700,000,000 applied to reducing the national debt, will be an important bulwark against the severe inflationary pressures to which the country is now subjected.

"The international situation has also made it imperative that we plan for a surplus, both in view of the problem of promoting world recovery and of the need for a reserve against emergencies, whether at home or abroad.

"Elementary prudence requires that we be prepared to face the unforeseeable as well as the foreseeable. This, we are now in a much stronger financial position to do than we were last year."

4% for General Government

The first interpolation made by Mr. Truman in reading his statement came after he had pointed out that three-fourths of Federal expenditures relate directly to war, the effects of war, or the Nation's efforts to prevent a future war. Only 4 per cent of the budget, or $7,600,000,000 goes for the "general government" he said, and interpolated:

"And I have heard it said that they were going to take nine billion dollars out of that and there's only seven billion dollars in it."

He didn't identify those he had in mind, but it was obvious that he was talking about Republican economy advocates.

In winding up his prepared statement, Mr. Truman said:

"Don't let anybody fool you about how the surplus for 1947 came about. It was by cutting expenditures $1,500,000,000 by the Executive and in no other way."

In the fiscal year of 1947, his statement said, "the Budget was balanced for the first time in 17 years and a surplus was achieved—which in the long run is the only way to retire debt."

Young Assails Savings Figure

A Democratic Senator, O'Mahoney of Wyoming, commented: rather than to reduction of the debt, it could easily make it possible for this country to lead the world to economic rehabilitation and peace."

O'Mahoney said the public is safe in accepting Mr. Truman's statement on savings, since the varying figures embraced by Republicans cannot all be correct. He said the Chief Executive "makes it clear that the Republican reductions were made at the expense of necessary Government services."

The Administration offers some support for Taber's views on a higher Federal income. Its key financial figures say they try to keep their estimates of income "on the conservative side" and to arrive at a "comfortable" figure that will be safe.

Text of Budget Statement by The President

Following is the text of a statement by President Truman yesterday in connection with his budget review:

In any analysis of the Federal budget, we must always keep in mind the fact that about three fourths of our expenditures relate directly to war, the effects of war, or our efforts to prevent a future war. Thus, as finally approved by the Congress, 28 per cent of our expenditures for 1948 are for national defense, 20 per cent for our veterans service and benefits, 14 per cent for interest on our national debt (which is largely a result of war), and almost 12 per cent to support our international programs and activities for world peace. This leaves 26 per cent for all other Government programs, of which the share of "general government" is only 4 per cent, and I have heard it said they were going to take nine billon dollars out of that, and there's only 7.6 in it.

From another point of view, 40 per cent of the civilian employes of the Government are engaged in national defense activities, 10 per cent in the conduct of our veterans' programs, and 22 per cent in the postal service. This leaves only 28 per cent to carry out all other Federal activities.

We cannot disregard these facts if we are to reduce our expenditures intelligently and without crippling those public services to which we are by law committed.

When I transmitted the 1948 budget to the Congress last January, I said that it was a realistic budget and as complete as I knew how to make it. I added that in its preparation we had been forced to make drastic reductions in the requests for a number of worthwhile programs because of the urgent need to cut expenditures.

Now after eight months we can look back on many events which were then hidden in the uncertainties of the future, and on new conditions which could not then be anticipated. Nevertheless, the fundamental fiscal policy on which the budget was based has proved sound. Furthermore, the searching review of the budget by the Congress and the country must convince everyone willing to look squarely at the facts that it was a tight budget. It was, in fact, a hard-boiled budget predicated on an efficient and economical administration of the programs established by the Congress.

The budget included in detail for the first time all Government corporations and war agencies. This enabled both the Congress and the people to get a better perspective and a clearer understanding of the necessarily complex ramifications of the programs of the Federal Government. These programs are all authorized by the Congress in response to the needs or demands of the various segments of our democracy. They are carried out only so long as the Congress continues its authorization and supports them through appropriations. Hence, it is essential that all citizens and the Congress continuously weigh the need for these services against the costs if we are to strike a just balance between the two.

The actual reduction in expenditures of 528 million dollars for the fiscal year 1948, as indicated in the budget review, reflects this balancing of needs against costs by the Senators and Representatives in the Congress, as they came to grips with the problem during its session just ended. The indicated surplus of 4.7 billion dollars applied to reducing the national debt, will be an important bulwark against the severe inflationary pressures to which the country is now subjected. The international situation has also made it imperative that we plan for a surplus, both in view of the problem of promoting world recovery and of the need for a reserve against emergencies, whether at home or abroad. Elementary prudence requires that we be prepared to face the unforeseeable as well as the foreseeable. This we are now in a much stronger financial position to do than we were last year.

I want to add to that, too, that—don't let anybody fool you about how the surplus for 1947 came about. It was by cutting expenditures a billion, 500 million dollars by the executive, and in no other way was that 700 million dollar surplus arrived at.

Main Budget Review Figures

Receipts

Here are the salient figures in President Truman's budget review:

Last fiscal year (ended June 30, 1947)	$43,259,000,000
This fiscal year, January estimate	37,730,000,000
This fiscal year, today's estimate	41,667,000,000

Expenditures

Last fiscal year	42,505,000,000
This fiscal year, January estimate	37,528,000,000
This fiscal year, today's estimate	37,000,000,000

Surplus

Last fiscal year	754,000,000
This fiscal year, January estimate	202,000,000
This fiscal year, today's estimate	4,667,000,000

The President says the 528-million-dollar reduction in spending estimates since January comes about this way:

Reductions he attributes to Congress	1,520,000,000

Price Support Plan for Turkeys Advanced to Sept. 1

The Agriculture Department announced yesterday that its turkey price-support program will be ready for operation on September 1 instead of October 1 as originally planned.

The starting date was advanced in view of present high feed prices, which are expected to cause many producers to market their turkeys earlier than usual and well before the Thanksgiving holiday demand.

As originally announced, the program for this year's turkey crop ends next January 31.

Purchases of turkeys will be made by the department at prices to be announced about September 1. Those prices will be designed to reflect a national average price of 90 per cent of the August 15 parity price for turkeys.

Texan Resigns As Sullivan Aide

Creekmore Fath, 31-year-old attorney of Austin, Tex., has resigned his post as executive assistant to Gael Sullivan, director of the Democratic National Committee, it was announced last night.

Democratic headquarters here said Fath will return to Texas on September 1, to practice law. His successor has not been named.

Austria Due 43 Millions Relief Soon

By the United Press

The State Department said yesterday that it plans to buy 43 million dollars of post-UNRRA relief supplies for Austria by October 1 despite its dispute with Russia over the American-Austrian relief agreement.

Russia objected to the terms of the agreement laid down by Congress in the over-all 350-million-dollar program as a violation of Austria's sovereignty. The State Department hopes, however, to distribute the supplies in the Soviet-occupied zone of Austria as well as in the American, British and French zones.

About three-fourths of the 43 million dollars will be spent for food, including such surplus items in this country as canned fish and dried fruit.

Most of the supplies will be bought in the United States, but the department said it will buy some fertilizer from Belgium and Czechoslovakia because of the shortage in this country. Some coal will be bought from Poland.

World Trade Charter Drafted

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 20 (AP).—The final text of the projected international trade charter, subject to action by a world trade conference in Havana next November, was prepared today for adoption at plenary meetings of the preparatory commission Friday and Saturday.

The commission approved a United States compromise proposal to give the International Court of Justice jurisdiction in disputes between members of the proposed international trade organization.

The compromise was interpreted as favoring contentions of France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, which wanted the International Court of Justice to judge economic facts as well as interpret law.

The charter provision for negotiation of movie film quotas in individual countries as described by American sources as a Hollywood victory, although the United Kingdom, Czechoslovakia and Holland made provisional reservations. A commission source said the provision would have no immediate effect on the British 75-per-cent-tax on American films, but laid the foundation for future negotiations.

Election Holiday

We are wholly in sympathy with the AFL's objective of having every working man—and every other citizen, for that matter—go to the polls in 1948. Democracy functions best when there is a large turnout on election day. But we can see no point in the plan announced by AFL President Green for a Nation-wide holiday from work for "all but essential industries" on election day next year. The implication seems to be that workers will have to go on a one-day strike to get to the polls, and that seems to be quite unwarranted.

The present law requires Federal agencies to allow their employes time for voting on election day without loss of pay. It is our understanding that some of the States likewise insure their employes an opportunity to vote. Industrial employes are usually less privileged in this respect. So far as we can determine, most of them have to vote on their own time, but the polls are usually open for long hours so as to give ample opportunity for workers to vote before or after the day's toil is done. Perhaps it would be desirable to require by law that every employe be granted sufficient time during working hours to cast his ballot. In any event, it seems to us that this is the avenue through which the problem should be approached—rather than a one-day election strike.

Experience has shown in some instances that making election day a holiday does not bring out the vote. If workers are freed from their daily tasks on that day, there is a strong temptation for them to go on pleasure-seeking excursions instead of going to the polls. Of course, AFL's proposed election day walkout might also backfire by drawing too sharply the issue between union leaders who are fighting the Taft-Hartley Act to the last ditch and the great body of rank and file voters who wish to curb the abuses of labor's great power. By all means let every worker go to the polls, but if there is to be a relinquishment of work on election day let it be by law and not at the cost of a full day's wages to every employe.

Basing Point

The basing point system for steel is again under attack by the Federal Trade Commission. This is the system whereby the price of steel is determined by the price leadership exercised by a dominant company at one of about 80 basing points. Whether or not there is collusion in arriving at the price is a problem that may or may not be determined at the forthcoming hearing.

However, there can be no doubt that the system does not jibe with the theory of pure competition. It is a system of administered price-fixing. This has been the object of the Administration's opposition since the about-face of the Roosevelt Administration after the unlamented burial of the Blue Eagle. Under NRA the steel code authority were given an almost unrestrained grant of power to regulate prices and every other factor in the industry. No sooner was NRA put to death than the Administration went off on the opposite tack of seeking to prevent any kind of pricing system other than f. o. b. mill.

The problem is an exceedingly difficult one to determine. We ourselves feel with Judge Thurman Arnold that the Government must stick to the task of preventing the illegitimate use of organized power. But, granted there is no collusion, we see no mystery in price leadership, especially in heavy goods. All the conditions of the business make for identicality in prices. The tremendous investment required in an integrated steel plant so limits the number of independent companies that no producer can ignore the effects of his own actions upon his competitors. Once the investment is insured, moreover, overhead costs vary very little with the rate of operation, and a machine adapted to one produce or type of produce can seldom be used in the production of another. Our Mr. Livingston, on the financial page Monday, mentioned as an example of price identicality where no collusion occurs the price of popular cigarettes.

The FTC, evidently, has in mind as an alternative the f. o. b. mill system, or lack of it. This would be pure competition, but, in our view, it would be pure competition with a vengeance. In other words, it would be cutthroat competition, and would speedily wind up in some kind of monopolism. Would that be beneficial to society? Of course not. The fact is that the pricing structure for steel has become an integral part of our economic system—whether because of design or because it was inevitable in the evolution of capitalism, we do not know.

All we know is that any return to "sound competition" would, as the FTC admitted several years ago in its statement to the O'Mahoney Committee, cause "considerable trouble and expense." In our view, indeed, this is a light view of what a transition would entail. At the same time Government supervision of the price structure is rendered essential by the existence of price leadership. The steel industry has become a semipublic utility precisely because of its price structure. Less interference would be required nowadays because industry as a whole is far more alive to its public responsibility than it was when Mr. Roosevelt was swinging a club over it.

Revised Budget

The long-awaited estimate of the experts of the Budget Bureau giving revised figures of receipts and expenditures as well as of the savings in expenditures effected by the Eightieth Congress is at last available. In his midyear review of the 1948 budget the President states that "the total effect of revisions due to congressional action—aside from reductions which will require offsets by deficiency appropriations—is to reduce 1948 appropriations by 1578 million dollars, to increase contract authorizations by 327 million dollars, and to reduce expenditures by 1520 million dollars."

This is only a fraction of the 4.4 billion dollars in savings that Representative Taber attributes to the budget-paring activities of the Eightieth Congress. The public is left to choose between these unofficial and official estimates. No doubt the controversy will continue indefinitely, and in view of the complexities of budgetary procedure, even the final accounting will not settle the issue. However, while there is room for some justified differences of opinion about the savings effected by congressional rescinding of appropriations, the President's statement will, we think, convince any dispassionate reader that the modest official estimates of savings resulting from congressional action are supported by convincing evidence, based on careful, expert analysis of appropriations measures.

Of more immediate interest than the savings estimates, however, are the estimates of receipts and expenditures contained in the President's revised budget statement, revisions made necessary not only by congressional action but also by changes in requirements not anticipated when the January budget estimates were transmitted. The net result of all changes in expenditure items is to reduce total expenditures from 37.5 billion dollars (the January estimate) to 37 billion dollars. This revised total, the President is careful to note, does not allow for the ultimate effect on the budget of the overseas emergency situation. "The amount that may be required to enable the United States to bear its proper share in world recovery," he says, "cannot be determined until a later stage in the studies of the international situation now under way." He warns, however, that these uncertainties must be considered in deciding our budget policy and that they underline the need of maintaining a budget surplus to meet emergencies.

This warning is all the more necessary in view of the fact that the President now expects a budget surplus of 4.7 billion dollars in 1948, instead of 200 million dollars, owing chiefly to a four billion estimated increase in receipts. A surplus of that size will undoubtedly increase the pressure for immediate tax reduction unless the public understands how essential it is to have funds in reserve for financing foreign-aid programs. It is not easy to espouse a policy of surplus financing when the public is growing restive under the combined pressure of high taxes and mounting living costs. But, as the President indicates, a prudent policy of planning for a surplus and for further debt retirement is the part of wisdom in the present uncertain state of the world.

Mr. Attlee's Future

Whether the report that Mr. Attlee is about to resign is correct or not, it looks as if a reshuffle of the British cabinet is imminent. Mr. Attlee's great attribute is his gift as a go-between. It was this gift, together with the mutual jealousy of Messrs. Bevin and Morrison, that made him the logical choice for the Premiership. But the times now call imperatively for a leader, and Mr. Attlee lacks the quality of one. His speech on the economic crisis appears to have been a first-class anticlimax.

Whoever takes up the helm in present-day England will have a tremendous burden to shoulder. He will have to try to rally the country against the unseen enemy of economic deterioration. It is relatively easy to invoke solidarity when the enemy is seen and personal. But a super-Churchill is required when no animate target exists. Moreover, how can the nation combine when the cabinet is divided? Mr. Attlee has in his cabinet representatives of the Keep Left faction in the Labor Party. To them, doctrinaires to the last, the crisis could be settled by more nationalization, or socialization, particularly of the steel industry. This is the veriest fiddling, of course, when the problem is avowedly one of production, but the Keep Lefters are fanatics, and a fanatic has been defined by Santayana as a man who redoubles his effort as he forgets his aim. Mr. Attlee's lot in the presence of his Left-wingers is unenviable.

The only man on the Labor scene who has a sort of Churchillian authority is Ernest Bevin. "Our Ernie" is a hero to the British. Like many of his colleagues, his health has suffered from the strain of office, but he seems now to have recovered. It is said that he regards the economic crisis as a sort of personal affront. How can he run the Foreign Office when his rear is weakened by economic deterioration? With Herbert Morrison still reported far from well, he seems the logical candidate for Mr. Attlee's shoes, in the event that Mr. Attlee resigns.

But the crisis confronting England is of a magnitude to warrant a truce to party politics and a return to coalition government. The trouble is, evidently, that the dimensions of the problem are not generally appreciated. This is not surprising in view of the British characteristic never to cross bridges till they come to them. Particularly is it understandable in view of the lack of awareness that was demonstrated in the cabinet itself in connection with the flight from the pound. This was bound to happen as soon as the British on July 15 made pounds interchangeable with dollars under the Anglo-American loan agreement.

Indonesian Snag

Some idea of the difficulties of the Dutch in Indonesia is now available in the Security Council. Even such a moderate as Sutan Sjahrir, formerly Premier of the Indonesian Republic, was unable to convince the unprejudiced observer that a serious desire exists in Jogjakarta to try to work out the independence agreement with the Dutch. Evidently that is the American conclusion. For, on the heels of Mr. Sjahrir's statement, in which he held out no hope of compromise, the State Department withdrew its proffer of good offices. Doubtless the Sjahrir speech fortified the report of our consul-general in Batavia, who has been in consultation with the Indonesian Republic.

Nobody knows better than Mr. Sjahrir what kind of extremism is in the saddle in Jogjakarta. For he was thrown out of office by the very same crowd whose spokesmen he now is. We hold no brief for the Dutch, but the Sjahrir statement that the Dutch are bent upon destroying his country is plainly inadmissible. What made the Dutch take action was the inability of the Indonesians to assume any kind of authority. During the two years in which the Republicans controlled most of the interior, nothing was done to care for the people's livelihood. The result was plain to see when the Dutch arrived. The people had little or no rice, and were clothed in sacking. The Dutch now are trying to restore the channels of trade which have been blocked by the Republicans.

How much pro-Republican sentiment remains in Indonesia is difficult to determine. Probably very little. Certainly the Dutch, in addition to meeting little opposition from the Republican army, encountered a lot of good will from the inhabitants. This they have increased by instituting a distribution system for rice and cotton clothing. The Republicans in Jogjakarta are understandably angry. Instead of accepting our good offices, they are seeking to stall by insisting on interminable discussions in the Security Council, while at home giving free rein to a campaign of burnings and terror. The age of colonialism is in liquidation, and we hope the Dutch will not forget it, but the plainest considerations of decency require that the liquidation be done in an orderly and responsible manner.

Lee's Command

A series of Scripps-Howard news articles by Robert C. Ruark has been responsible for an investigation of General Lee's Mediterranean command ordered by General Eisenhower. Mr. Ruark makes a number of charges, including waste of tax money, misuse of the privileges of rank, and humiliation of the men. General Lee, whose headquarters is at Leghorn, had himself anticipated the inquiry by inviting newsmen from Rome to look into Mr. Ruark's allegations. Judging from the Associated Press report, Mr. Ruark finds little support for some of his extravagant statements, though we prefer to await the official inquiry before making a final judgment.

Some of the charges against General Lee reflect, of course, a point of view. The life of our military chieftains abroad sometimes savors of the imperial. But in certain commands, as, for instance, in Germany, the commanding general must vest himself in the trappings as well as the atmosphere of authority. Aside from the demands of dignity, there are those of discipline, both of the men under him and of the population. Specifically we ourselves see nothing to which to take exception in General Lee's private train, his C-47 plane, his two automobiles and his trailer. He was, after all, a kind of pro-consul till the peace treaty had been signed and ratified. However, our own experience does not persuade us that the substance of Mr. Ruark's indictment is incorrect. General Lee's bad reputation wherever he has been is one of the GI's more distasteful memories. For all his aura, General Lee does not seem to us to have won much respect, and it is a surprise to us that the questioning of his ways has not come earlier.

It was always refreshing to note, as Mr. Ruark does, the contrast offered by Gen. Bryant Moore in Trieste. General Moore is under General Lee, but the latter leaves him more or less free to cope with his difficult assignment, which is to safeguard the frontier lines in Venezia Giulia pending the setting up of the administration for Trieste. General Moore has a strict sense of duty which keeps his famous 88th at concert pitch for their fatiguing and onerous job. Prior to the peace treaty the ebullient and aggressive "Jugs" maintained a healthy respect for this down-easter, who is as simple as General Lee is regal. General Moore never for one moment forgets that he is where he is to be an example as well as an instrument of what the United States stands for. If only General Lee carried America with him as General Moore does, there would not be the present fuss.

U. S. Obligations

In an effort to correct a misunderstanding that seems fairly prevalent, which evidently is shared even by some newspaper reporters and radio talkers, I suggest that you print the following statement, which, of course, anyone can readily verify.

Neither the State Department, the Secretary of State, the President of the United States, nor any member of Congress, nor anyone else, has any legal or moral right or power to commit the United States of America to pay money or to follow any other course of action in international or domestic affairs, save and except pursuant to and in accordance with the provisions and limitations of the Constitution of the United States and the statutes enacted pursuant thereto.

The whole world, Americans and foreigners, including representatives of foreign governments, are charged with knowledge of this fundamental fact. Presumably representatives of government nave actual knowledge thereof.

It necessarily follows that there is no possible basis for any "embarrassment," or the coming into existence of any "moral obligation," or the impairment of our reputation, as a consequence of the United States Government following or refusing to follow some course of action theretofore promised or suggested by one or more officials of the United States. All such promises and suggestions necessarily are made upon the condition, expressed or implied, that the Congress pursuant to the Constitution, approves the contemplated course of action and evidences such approval by enacting appropriate legislation in the form of an appropriation act or otherwise.

In view of a number of public statements that have been made by people who ought to know better, it may be a public service to remind your readers of the foregoing. No benefit will accrue to the United States by instilling in the minds of the citizens thereof a false notion that our Government is not acting properly simply because Congress, which has the right and the power so to do, disagrees with some course of action that other officials have thought desirable. Of course the converse is equally true. It happens, that Congress has the last say under the Constitution if there be any appropriation of public funds involved, and the Senate alone has the last say in the case of a treaty.

Welfare Slice

As one interested in the well-being of all citizens of the District of Columbia, I have been watching in vain for some comments on the Board of Public Welfare's decision to make some drastic limitations relating to those to whom they will give assistance. This policy was adopted not because there are persons receiving aid who do not need it, but because of the failure of Congress to appropriate sufficient funds to care for even the minimum needs.

Even though the method adopted by the board may be better than cutting off 10 per cent of all of the already woefully inadequate grants (based on 1942 cost of living) it is nevertheless a tragedy that this has to be done; and I believe if the truth were known, all citizens of Washington would see that a deficiency appropriation is granted early in the next session of Congress.

It should be pointed out to the appropriations committees of Congress that slicing $300,000 from relief payments is not only inhuman but is false economy. The Director of Public Welfare was quoted in The Washington Post of August 16 as stating there was some doubt as to the actual saving that will result. He pointed out that children in families cut off from relief might end up in foster homes at a greater expense to the District and that those denied special diet payments may have to be admitted to District hospitals.

Many prominent persons in the community testified before the House subcommittee that the public assistance division of the Board of Public Welfare conducts a thorough and careful investigation of need, and that the individuals served and the community are given the maximum benefit from the tax dollars spent on public assistance and that in spite of serious organizational, financial and legal handicaps, people are assisted in such a way as to preserve their self-respect and confidence, thus leading wherever possible to eventual rehabilitation.

The public assistance division of the Board of Public Welfare is then, an organization to be trusted, not to be handicapped by lack of funds.

Great Difference

As I contemplated your August 14 banner, "Tito Rebuffed by United States on Aid Charges," and the excellent photograph just below it of Secretary Marshall receiving the President's best wishes on his departure for Rio, I could not but reflect: "What an l of a difference there is between our Marshall and the Communist marshal!"

Daylight Saving

I have just read the letter written by Iva M. Oakes in The Washington Post of August 18, asking how the advocates of daylight saving time like it now. I did not take part in the controversy during the decision to have daylight saving time but read with incredulous wonder the many letters setting forth petty selfish reasons why each person thought that the time should be set according to his own personal whims. The letters against daylight saving time seemed especially selfish I thought. I cannot resist these comments on Miss Oakes' letter. All she seems to be in a dither over is that she could use another hour of sleep in the morning and that she doesn't like to come out of an air conditioned building in the middle of the afternoon.

Now this is a poor summer to try and pull the old "sleepless night" gag since Washington, until this last week, hasn't had a hot night. Has Miss Oakes driven around Washington and seen the many happy people enjoying the long evenings in cars, at the parks, in their yards? If she hasn't she should, and the five or six hours of sleep that she has lost wouldn't be so important to her.

Also let Miss Oakes be glad she has an air conditioned building to come out of. There are many people not so fortunate who look to the long cool evening for their only comfort of the day.

And as for daylight saving being foisted on an unthinking and gullible public, just let her and a few others like her start trying to change it and watch that unthinking public fly into action and start thinking.

The Mufti's Help To The Axis

In your issue of August 16, 1947, you published an Associated Press dispatch which stated, among other things that "Haj Amin effendi al Husseini, Mufti of Jerusalem, is in refuge in Egypt, having fled into exile years ago when the British sought him for allegedly stirring up Palestine Arabs."

The AP correspondent carefully used the word "allegedly," although there is ample authenticated evidence as to the activities of the former Mufti, not only in "stirring up Palestine Arabs" during 1936-39 but also as to his Nazi affiliations during the war. The use of the "allegedly" is thus likely to be somewhat misleading for your readers.

Haj Amin's "alleged" stirring-up of the Palestine Arabs began in 1921, when he was convicted by the British of participating in anti-Jewish riots but was later pardoned. Again, it was he who was mainly responsible for the 1929 riots during which many Jews and Arabs lost their lives, as was established at the time by the British committee of inquiry. During the four years prior to the outbreak of war in 1939, the Palestine Arabs, under the leadership of the former Mufti, had been engaged in both anti-British and anti-Jewish riots. The political contacts established by the Mufti with the Fascist powers in the early 30s bore fruit in the form of arms, guidance and in particular funds.

In October, 1937, Haj Amin fled from Palestine. He went first to the Lebanon and then to Syria, whence he continued to direct terrorist activities in Palestine, at the same time strengthening his connections with the Axis. At the end of 1939, the Mufti moved his "headquarters" to Baghdad where he was warmly welcomed by anti-British circles, including the government. With the help of other Arab countries and the financial assistance of the Axis, Haj Amin was enabled to maintain his political apparatus.

His influence in the internal affairs of Iraq was considerable and he was instrumental in the rise to power of Rashid Ali al Gailani. As is well known, Rashid Ali revolted against the British in April, 1941, his rising being designed to administer the knock-out blow to Britain's position in the Middle East at a time when the Germans were expected hourly to invade Syria and Iraq. The Mufti himself played an active role in this revolt, assisted by a group of Palestine Arab politicians, among them Mr. Jamal Husseini, a kinsman and a member of the Palestine Arab Higher Committee.

When the revolt was quelled, the Mufti and Mr. Jamal Husseini escaped to Tehran, the former making his way with the assistance of the Japanese Embassy, to Italy and later Germany. Mr. Jami Husseini was less fortunate, being apprehended by the British and sent to detention in Southern Rhodesia. In Germany, the Mufti became a tool of the Nazis, collaborating actively in Hitler's efforts to break the Allies in the Middle East and North Africa and becoming a partner in the German plan to exterminate European Jewry.

Much evidence has already been made public as to the former Mufti's record as a war criminal, but more light will probably be thrown on the subject when the Allied governments make public other material in their possession.

Soon after the end of the war, the British government allowed Mr. Jamal Husseini and most of the former Mufti's other lieutenants to return to Palestine, instead of putting them in the dock of Nuernberg alongside their Nazi friends. The Mufti managed to escape from Germany and took refuge, first in France and later in Egypt. While in Egypt, Haj Amin was elected chairman of the Palestine Arab Higher Committee and he is at present apparently engaged in planning new troubles in Palestine at a time best suited to his purpose.

There can be few men in the world today whose political record can compare with that of the former Mufti of Jerusalem for "alleged" conspiracy and murder.

Selling Our Wares

WHAT GENERALLY surprises foreign visitors here is that Americans aren't so rich as they had thought. The average home doesn't have servants nor is it operated painlessly by gadgets. Average men and women work hard for their livings, have their share of human difficulties. As a young British architect put it, "Things aren't so bright, new and like a picture postcard as I had expected."

However, those foreign visitors who have been listening recently to Russian broadcasts meet different disillusionment. They look in vain for the millions of homeless families, presumably sleeping in alleys and parks because of the depicted housing scarcity. They also find something unexpected—a numerous and comfortable middle class in a population they had heard consisted entirely of "monopolists" living in movie set palaces and "slaves" living in squalor.

These myths of American life do this country no good right now with Europe's rehabilitation the problem of the day, with ideological war developing throughout the world, and with the Nation's need of friends and allies increasing. Exaggeration of American luxury has already cost this country much foreign misunderstanding and ill will, and has hampered realistic diplomatic dealing. In addition, the Soviet radio is now broadcasting that the inflated American economy is about to collapse and hence is a hollow reed for Europe to tie to.

THE MOST effective way of refuting foreign fables is by having foreign visitors see American life firsthand. Both the State Department and private groups are encouraging this method.

Foreign delegates to international gatherings in this country are being entertained in private homes as much as possible rather than in hotels. Even the best informed of them are surprised at how different life is here from the impressions they had.

The State Department, its foreign information program recently enfeebled by Congress, is doing the best it can on a shoestring to offset these foreign distortions. It is particularly encouraging the exchange of students and professors. No means of obtaining lasting influence abroad is so effective as the training of foreign students in American colleges.

Typical example of the dividends it pays is the recent request by Mohammed Cabir Kahn Ludin, minister of public works of Afghanistan, for 40 American teachers to go to his country to help build a school program and teach English language courses to Afghanistan teachers. The minister in prewar days was a student at an American college where he became impressed with American education.

RIGHT NOW thousands of students in Europe, Asia, the Near and Middle East are clamoring to come to America to study. They are mostly the intellectuals of their generation, the future leaders of their nations. Since they would in the main do graduate work here they would not infringe on GI student programs. Certain colleges and universities are eager to receive them. They have the money to come—but it is in their native currencies. They will need dollars to live here. Their governments will not let them buy scarce American dollars to exchange for such an intangible thing as education when machinery, arms and food are so urgently needed.

Hence the world's dollar shortage is not only holding up foreign trade but also the flow of foreign students here. Two boats that took American students to Europe this summer had to return without the European students who had planned passage on them. So eager are some young foreigners to study here that against their government's order they buy dollars on the black market. But the majority wait—and hope.

Unless some plan of making special exchange available for these students—as has been done in the past to encourage certain tourist trade—can be provided they will continue to wait. And this country may lose the greatest opportunity in its history to extend its mental and moral leadership around the world and into the future.

"Elliott's Round"

Permit me a word of comment on the editorial, "Elliott's Round," in The Washington Post of August 6.

In the eyes of several of the unfair fair sex, you seem to have offended in championing, however guardedly, the record of a brave man, Elliott Roosevelt. There was also a letter of condemnation from Richard Lewis, jr., on August 11. When a man by implication damns a combat veteran who flew 39 missions over enemy lines it is difficult to be polite, let alone silent.

Gen. Elliott Roosevelt's fatal error in the view of people like Mr. Lewis is his choice of a father, F. D. R., and not his escapades as a White House kid. But when a man offers his young life on the altar of patriotism and looks clear-eyed and unblenching into the cruel sightless sockets of grim death himself, I think the vast majority of us, of all parties, creeds and opinions, men and women alike, are glad to overlook peccadillos and pay obeisance and all honor to this or any lad with a fighting record and a fighting heart.

German Problem

By Andre Visson

Report On Europe: I

WESTERN Europeans hailed the Marshall Plan as the statement of the American intention to help Europe economically. But they wonder whether this worthy intention of the Truman Administration will be approved by the Congress. And they also wonder whether the so-called Truman Doctrine, which they welcomed as the expression of America's continued political and military interest in European affairs, will be properly applied.

The most difficult problem facing western Europeans is the economic and political organization of western Germany. No intelligent western European questions the necessity of raising the present level of industry in western Germany, but they are worried that the American policy-makers may raise the German industrial level without having made it impossible for Germany to use her regained industrial strength for a new aggression. This worry is particularly strong in France. But one finds its echo in Belgium, in Holland, and even in England.

Western Europeans suspect that American policy-makers in Germany — especially Gen. Lucius D. Clay—are so hypnotized by the problem of Germany that they forget that Germany, important as is its rehabilitation, is only a part of Europe. The French, for instance, are convinced that Clay's policy in Germany plays directly into the hands of the French Communists. Strangely enough, some of the American observers in Germany hear from anti-Communist Germans that Clay's policy, until lately, has been playing into the hands of German Communists.

French criticism of General Clay has been pretty widely publicized, but the criticisms of General Clay's policy by anti-Communist Germans are less known. The keynote of those criticisms is that General Clay, in his anxiety to achieve the unification of Germany, continued to "appease" the Russians, even after it became obvious that there was no chance whatever for the realization of the Potsdam agreement.

Anti-Communist Germans wonder why General Clay left without proper protest a number of Soviet actions in Germany, especially why he did not react in a much stronger way when the Soviet Marshal Sokolovsky vetoed the election of Herr Reuter, a Social Democrat, who was elected mayor of Berlin by an 83-per-cent majority. They cannot understand how the American Military Government can leave without proper answer the vicious anti-American campaign of the Soviet-controlled Leipzig radio which daily accuses AMG in Germany of being both anti-German and inefficient.

Furthermore, one hears the complaint that while the Soviet officials and German Communists travel freely throughout the American zone, no German anti-Communists are allowed to use American military trains between Berlin and the American zone. Finally, German Democrats are shocked to see the German Communist press getting in the American zone the same allocation of paper as do non-Communist papers. As a matter of fact, the American-sponsored paper, Neue Zeitung, had its newsprint cut 50 per cent in order to give an equal amount of newsprint to the Communist-dominated Frankfurter Rundschau. And while we continued to admit the papers and magazines published in the Soviet zone, no publication in the American zone, with the exception of the Communist newspapers, was allowed into the Soviet zone.

THE ANTI-COMMUNIST Germans are also very perturbed to see Soviet-trained German propaganda agents arrive in the American zone at the rate of a thousand men a week. According to well-informed German sources, these Soviet-trained-propagandists have achieved a particular success in the Ruhr trade unions, where the Communists are said to have obtained lately a 63 per cent majority.

The latest change in the directive for American policy in Germany certainly marked the end of any appeasement of the Soviets, but, at the same time, it stirred up very serious French discontent. Not only French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault but also other members of the French Cabinet and a number of influential members of the French National Assembly belonging to moderate and Rightist parties, expressed to this writer their very serious worry over the American intention to start the rehabilitation of Europe with the rehabilitation of German industry. The French were reassured by the explanations of Secretary Marshall, but after the somewhat contradictory statements given by Secretary of War Kenneth Royall, they cannot help wondering whether the American foreign policy with regard to Germany is properly coordinated.

ONE HAS to go to France to understand to what extent the French are troubled about the possible revival of a strong Germany. There is, of course, a group of intelligent and politically influential Frenchmen who realize that at the present time the Soviet danger is more imminent than the German one. But the majority of the French people cannot forget that since 1870 France has been invaded three times by the Germans. The memories of the last German occupation are still too fresh in the French minds. And the Communists in France ceaselessly repeat that Americans will endanger France by building up once more a strong Germany.

Those are the political moods in France in the summer of 1947. We may deplore them, but we cannot ignore them if we are really determined to help western Europe organize herself and get back on her feet.

Greece In Peril

By Barnet Nover

The U. N. Is Stymied

ACCORDING to Juliusz Katz-Suchy, who represented Poland in the U. N. Security Council's latest and most depressing discussions of the Greek problem, the blame for Andrei Gromyko's fifteenth and sixteenth vetoes rests squarely on the United States.

"To purposely cause a veto by bringing in resolutions that we know beforehand are not acceptable to the Council," said the Pole, "does not serve the authority and the dignity of the Council, nor indeed the cause of peace."

In other words, the only reason why Gromyko exercised Russia's veto power, and thus brought about a complete deadlock on the Greek problem, was because the United States insisted that the Council vote on a resolution which Russia clearly did not like. Obviously, had the United States refrained from pressing its resolution the Russian veto would not have been applied.

THIS IS SOVIET logic as applied by a Russian stooge. By the same logic, a highwayman could argue that he was guiltless of murder when the victim he had killed had tried to defend himself.

However, we did not need this latest manifestation by Gromyko of his vetoing proclivities to realize that Russia is determined to play the role of international anarchist.

Almost from the moment that the United Nations came into being, and with only very rare lapses, Russia has made it a point to prevent the new world organization from serving as an instrument of collective security.

Her attitude with respect to the Greek issue is not the only if in some respects the most dramatic proof of that.

THE SECURITY COUNCIL has considered the Greek problem on no fewer than 60 separate occasions. It has discussed it from every angle and in millions of words. Yet its only constructive achievement to date was the appointment last autumn of a commission to investigate Greek complaints of border violations.

For still unexplained reasons, Gromyko permitted that commission to come into being. Yet soon after the Russian representative on the commission did all in his power to sabotage its labors.

He failed. The commission did succeed in carrying out an investigation of what was happenning on Greece's northern border. The majority of members became convinced that Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria were helping Greek guerillas and thus interfering in the internal affairs of a friendly neighbor.

Since then, however, the Council has found it impossible to act on the commission's findings. It was even blocked, by a Russian veto, from approving a mild Australian resolution that, while refraining from blaming anybody, would have called on Yugoslavia, Albania, Bulgaria and Greece to cease acts of provocation and enter into direct negotiations.

RUSSIA'S aims, so far as Greece is concerned, are exactly what they were at the time of the emergency last March which called forth the proclamation of the Truman Doctrine and the Administration's request to Congress to appropriate 400 million dollars to aid Greece and Turkey.

The United States was acting then, with the vigor and the dispatch that the situation demanded. Since then delay has followed delay. Greece's internal situation, pending the arrival of aid that is only now beginning to flow in her direction, has gone from bad to worse.

In the meantime, however, the Russians have done all in their power, and that has been considerable, to keep the Greek pot boiling.

As a result of recent conferences between Marshal Tito, the Russian-trained Yugoslav dictator, and George Dimitrov, the Comintern agent who is the boss of Bulgaria, new and additional measures to undermine the present Greek government and set up a Soviet-dominated regime in its place were agreed on. More arms and other forms of assistance have been made available to the Greek guerillas. Now the guerilla leader, General Markos, has proclaimed a "Free Greek" regime in the northern area.

The Russians, being hard-bitten realists, know that what happens in Greece is beyond and above all a test of power between the U. S. S. R. and the United States. We can take it for granted that they will stop at nothing to win that struggle. They have already succeeded in consolidating their authority everywhere else in the Balkans. Should they win out in Greece, too, the consequences, so far as American prestige is concerned, would not be pleasant to contemplate.

With the United Nations Security Council condemned to utter futility, the maintenance of an independent Greece has become very largely an American responsibility. It is not a pleasant burden, nor is it a light one. Yet we must bear it no matter what the cost and no matter where it leads.

BLS Finds No Signs of Depression

There is not a thing in sight to show a depression is coming, Director Ewan Clague of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said yesterday.

Also, the Nation is in the midst of the biggest summer housing boom in history, he reported.

He told a news conference that most of the 80,000 homes or apartments started in July should be ready by November because of better delivery of materials and increased labor efficiency.

Clague said that more dwelling units are being built more quickly this summer than during any period since the war. The summer months usually are the low-point in starting housing construction.

Not Alarmed Over Prices

Current high prices contain "nothing spectacular" of an economy-wrecking, explosive nature, he observed.

The railroads took a look ahead yesterday and thought they saw their own business falling off in 1948. Their figures were compiled for the Interstate Commerce Commission to support a request for an increase of freight rates again.

The data estimated this year's total of ton-miles of revenue freight will be 636,569,100,000, dropping to 620,01,200,000 next year. The railroads also predicted passenger business would be below 1947.

Meanwhile a Commerce Department report on manufacturers' sales so far this year said June sales of $13,600,000,000 maintained the "high level" of the first half of 1947.

Studies Employment

Clague's agency keeps close watch on the business pulse through constant studies of employment, wages, hours of labor and prices.

Employment topped 60 million in July for the second consecutive month—and even a drastic drop in exports would not mean a corresponding slump in employment, the official said.

Domestic demand, he declared, could "absorb a large part, if not all, of the difference." Only a "complete collapse" of the high export level could weaken the employment figures, Clague observed.

Unemployment reached a summer high of 2,600,000 but already has begun to recede, Clague said.

July's unemployment was 300,000 above that of July, 1946, and the increase was concentrated among teen-agers, indicating boys just out of school found it harder to connect with jobs than last year, he said.

Clague noted that only five industries showed downward trends in employment attributable to other than seasonal factors—machine tools, furniture, radios and phonographs, tires and tubes, and aluminum manufacturing.

Martin Softly Evades Nudge Toward 1948

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 20 (AP).—Fall River tried hard to be nonpartisan as it honored House Speaker Joseph Martin (R., Mass.) with its biggest clambake today, but Senator Brewster (R., Me.) injected a note of Republican presidential policies into the proceedings.

Brewster, himself a potential "favorite son" candidate from Maine, told a crowd that "the end may not be yet" for Martin's political climb.

But the House Speaker, subscribing to the Democratic-directed efforts to keep politics submerged, told a reporter he is not and does not expect to become a candidate for the 1948 Republican presidential or vice presidential nomination.

"America would do well to consider one of his character and caliber with a knowledge of the governmental machine possessed by few men," Brewster said.

Martin's disclaimer of his possible candidacy was not so sweeping that it eliminated him as a potential receipient of a Massachusetts Republican "favorite son" indorsement.

The Fall River sponsoring committee got unofficial credit for balking the plans of Louie Conos, restaurant-owner friend of the speaker, to erect a lighted sign reading "Welcome Joe Martin, our next President."

The sign Martin saw said merely, "Welcome Joe Martin."

Martin avoided any reference to political matters in his talks, but telegrams from two potential Republican presidential candidates added to the undercurrent of speculation.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, only announced GOP presidential candidate, called Martin "a great American" whose "life story is an inspiration to every American boy."

Symbolic Seed

Wallace Sees Brave New Strawberries

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace, who has been conducting farm experiments to produce "one highly vigorous strawberry variety with superior taste," said today he planned to cross some of his strawberry plants with a Russian variety and send some of the offspring "back to Russia."

The former Vice President said that "next year I am going to cross a Russian pistillate, or female sort, with some of my varieties."

Wallace said "seeds are symbols of the unity of life" and declared that when he conducted experiments to seek better food products "I am reassured about the wonderful possibilities for a world of peace and plenty for all."

U. S., British Rulers Deny Juggling Mark

Berlin, Aug. 20 (AP).—The United States and British military governments today formally denied allegations that in conducting Germany's foreign trade they were arbitrarily juggling the value of the mark in relation to foreign currencies.

These charges were first publicly made by the Belgian government in a memorandum on commercial relations with Germany circulated at a meeting of the Economic Commission for Europe in Geneva last month. Since then, it was understood, similar complaints have come from other western European countries whose businessmen have had export-import dealings with the combined Anglo-American zones of Germany.

Housing Probe Plans Begun in 3-Man Session

By The Associated Press

The congressional committee set up to make a $100,000 investigation of the housing situation yesterday agreed tentatively to begin hearings here in early October, then to split up into subcommittees for investigations in the field.

"We are determined to go out and get the facts," Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.) said. "We will come back here in January and make recommendations to Congress intended to solve the problems."

The committee, made up of Senate and House members, was organized Tuesday in a tense atmosphere reflecting bitterness between Senators Tobey (R., N. H.) and McCarthy (R., Wis.). The latter nominated Representative Gamble (R., N. Y.) for chairman and watched him win over Tobey.

Only two of his 13 committeemen responded to Gamble's call for a meeting yesterday and decisions were tentative. The other present, besides Sparkman, was Representative Sundstrom (R., N. J.). Tobey and McCarthy are out of town.

Sparkman and Gamble expressed belief the clash between the two Senators would not hamper the inquiry. Sparkman called the start "unfortunate," but said the committee now was "getting off very well."

Asked if the committee will investigate the so-called "real estate lobby," Gamble replied, "We could and would if this becomes relevant to the study of housing."

Hutchins Tells of Atom Plans Which May Change Our World

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago today announced details of a 12-million-dollar atomic research program which would seek to solve problems to "revolutionize industrial processes and change the world as we know it today."

The university's scientists who helped create the atomic age will continue at work, he said.

Hutchins said the program, financed by the university, involved experiments in cancer control and studies to bring about greater efficiency in use of metals.

It includes new building construction totaling $10,350,000 and the purchase of equipment.

Hutchins said the university believed the United States would hold world leadership in science and industry only as long as it maintained first position in knowledge of the atom.

He said more than 350 scientists, constituting a large proportion of the Nation's top atomic experts, were at work at the Argonne National Laboratory. The university operates the laboratory for the Government and 28 collaborating educational institutions in the Midwest besides itself, he said.

Hutchins also said there would be no restrictions on publication or use of information developed in the university's research program.

200 Employes Of RFC Move To New Building

Approximately 200 Reconstruction Finance Corp. employes, first of several contingents, last night completed a three-day moving job to their new—and uncompleted—12-story building at Connecticut ave. and H st. nw.

The employes, part of the comptroller's office, the United States commercial section and the accounting division of RFC, are occupying the second and third floors, which are without elevator service or air conditioning.

An RFC official said the employes had been transferred from the Commonwealth and Shoreham buildings, where Government leases had expired, thus ecessitating use of the new building. Completion is not expected before 90 days. By the end of this year the agency expects to take over the entire building, with the exception of the first floor, to be used for stores.

Ex-Head of Scouts Gets 6-Year Post

Moisson, France, August 20 (AP). Walter William Head of St. Louis, who retired last year after 20 years as president of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, was elected today as a six-year member of the International Scout Bureau.

About half the American Jamboree contingent, especially the scouts from the western half of the United States, spent today in Paris sightseeing. All were due to reassemble here tomorrow night and entrain for Le Havre early Friday.

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following callers at the White House:

11:45 a. m.—Wilson W. Wyatt, former housing administrator and chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.

Noon—James W. Huffman, former Democratic Senator from Ohio.

1 p. m.—Lunch.

3 p. m.—Budget seminar.

D. C. Postoffice To Hold Parcel Sale Today

At noon today bargain hunters will surge into room 3083 of the main Postoffice for the sale of the year.

Items in the big sale are "dead" parcels, ranging from packages of sterling silver to poultry netting that never reached their destination.

The 306 single items and lots will be sold to the highest bidders in a public auction. Similar sales in the past have netted as much as $4000, and the complete stock is usually gone within three hours

On display all day yesterday, and from 9 to 11 a. m. this morning, the collection may contain the answers to your Christmas shopping problems for the next few years, including the wrappings and holly wreath for the door.

There is one lot of 25 dolls and stuffed animals and all sorts of household equipment, including toasters and washing machine parts. In one basket there are enough brooms and brushes to keep the Capitol clean for weeks.

If you like books, the auction will provide a field day. One lot contains a collection on world affairs, history and human destiny. Or perhaps you need a copy of the City Code of Houston, Tex., or "The Sacrifices of Greece in the Second World War."

The sale also includes sporting equipment, clothing, cosmetics, household goods, garden implements, electrical appliances, war souvenirs, lamps and jewelry.

The Postoffice emphasizes that it makes no guarantee of quantity or quality, and all goods are sold "as is." A deposit of not less than 50 per cent is required on all bids, and the balance must be paid in cash immediately after the sale.

Divorce Suit Charges Deaf Mute Is Noisy

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 20 (U.P.)—Clyde Ross Graves, 29, deaf mute, sued his wife for divorce today on the grounds that Mrs. Graves, also a deaf mute, made too much noise.

Graves said his "high-spirited and excitable" wife was subject to fits of anger in which she "screeches so loudly that even I, though deaf, can hear her."

Farmer Claims Hog That Went AWOL From Truck

The Woodbridge, Va., boar hog, which dropped off in Washington en route to a Baltimore market Tuesday, was claimed yesterday.

Police were quite satisfied with ownership despite the fact that farmer Barklay H. Davis said he had 1500 other hogs.

The hog, one of seven being taken to Baltimore, escaped from the truck as it passed through Washington; had a ride in the police paddy wagon, was refused admittance to the city Pound and finally wound up at a policeman's home until the owner claimed it.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Food Problem Greeted Griswold in Greece

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

By Robert S. Allen

Former Nebraska Gov. Dwight Griswold didn't have long to wait to learn he has a man-sized job on his hands coping the ultra-reactionary Greek government in administering the Truman doctrine.

Griswold

It's still an official secret, but several days after Griswold arrived in Athens the Greek government blandly informed him that the country's food reserves were completely exhausted.

Such a "crisis," obviously, could be due only to two causes: Gross incompetence and carelessness, or deliberate pressure tactics. Confidential diplomatic dispatches indicate there are ample reasons to believe both factors were at the bottom of the affair. After a hurried check-up Griswold established that the Greek government was not lying. There literally was no food in its larder.

The situation was ominous. The United States was now officially in Greece. If food riots broke out, the reverbations could be catastrophic not only in Greece but throughout all of Europe.

The Communists would be able to scream their favorite refrain about the "folly of trusting democracies."

Griswold acted fast and decisively. And, for once, so did the State Department.

Upon his telephonic demand for an immediate emergency food shipment, State officials rushed to the War Department which, in turn, diverted two shiploads of flour en route to Germany. The ships, on the high seas with 20,000 tons of flour were wirelessed to change their courses and rush to Greece.

Thanks to this fortuitous improvisation, the ominous crisis was averted. But insiders aware of the character of the Greek government fear it won't be long before other and perhaps worse "hot potatoes" pop up.

Note: Griswold's staff is heavily Nebraskan. His deputy, Roy Cochran, is another former Governor, and other assistants are Dr. William Snyder, former State veterinarian, Kenneth Kellar, crack political reporter, and Arthur Dobson, successful Lincoln contractor.

New Coolidge

Masachusetts' GOP has a new Coolidge who is just as earthy, cautious and parsimonious with words and money as the late President Calvin Coolidge.

He is Lieut. Gov. Arthur W. Coolidge, fourth cousin of "Silent Cal."

Like his famed kin, Arthur also was formerly President of the Bay State Senate, another of Calvin's stepping stones to the White House. While somewhat older than Cal when he was lieutenant governor, Arthur resembles him in many respects, particularly in economy-mindedness.

Illustrative of this was an incident that occurred the first day Arthur took over the State's reins during a brief absence of Gov. Robert Bradford. Looking out of the window, the acting Governor observed the water-sprinkling system operating full force on the capital grounds. It was an overcast day, and suddenly a brisk summer shower broke. The sprinklers kept right on going.

Coolidge immediately telephoned the building superintendent and demanded, "Why waste the taxpayers money watering grass when the Good Lord is doing it for nothing? Shut off those sprinklers."

They were, forthwith.

Note: On another occasion, the lieutnant governor was luncheon host to a group of politicoes and reporters at the Boston City Club. They were handed menus presenting an enticing array of succulent a la carte selections. But before his guests could start ordering, Coolidge broke in dryly with, "Waiter, I'll have the Luncheon Special." The Luncheon Special cost 90 cents.

Our Fair City

One of the most difficult and obstinate barriers to efficient and progressive municipal government is the obstructionism of rural-controlled State Legislatures. Our Fair City, best-selling expose of municipal misrule, points out that this obstructionism is no mere accident.

"The stranglehold that State Legislatures have long kept on our cities," the book declares, is one of the major instrumentalities by means of which predatory political and other interests maintain their control on urban centers. These forces violently oppose every effort to liberate our cities from their hamstringing bonds."

One of the chief reasons why this widespread problem is so serious is that the average voter doesn't realize how vitally it affects him.

In an effort to drive this point home, one of the country's great newspaper publishers is waging a unique educational campaign. He is James M. Cox, former Governor of Ohio, 1920 Democratic presidential candidate, and owner of outstanding newspapers in Dayton, Ohio; Atlanta, Ga., and Miami, Fla.

In a series of articles, Cox's newsmen are explaining in detail to their readers exactly how the dead hand of State Legislatures is blocking good municipal rule.

Free Man

A civilian after 40 years in the Army, Secretary of State Marshall is insisting he be allowed to act like one. He noted this pointedly to an aide at a recent reception.

Marshall was contentedly enjoying a mellow highball, when several photographers popped up. He paid no attention to them, but a State Department functionary became excited. Springing in front of the cameraman, he advised Marshall to discard his highball.

Smilingly shaking his head, the Secretary said, "Why should I? I'm a civilian now and can take a drink any time I want to."

Cary Grant a 'Bachelor' Howl With 'Bobby-Soxer' at Keith's

By Leo Brady

(Mr. Brady, an instructor in the speech and drama department, at Catholic University, has been a frequent contributor to The Washington Post's theater page. He will handle theater reviews while Richard L. Coe is on vacation.)

Cary Grant is one of the best comic actors in Hollywood, and he proves it anew in "The Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer" at Keith's. He proves it by giving an excellent performance against the background of what looks like one of the season's loudest and longest laughs.

Scripter Sidney Sheldon and Director Irving Reis set out to create a nice, wacky-headed farce for the hot weather, obviously, but what they have achieved is something that will be just as hilarious come rain, sleet, snow or locusts. Credit for putting stitches in the sides of Keith's audiences for the next couple of weeks must be divided among all three of them, with large assists chalked up to Myrna Loy, Ray Collins, Rudy Vallee and even Shirley Temple.

In contrast to the rather awkward title, the film itself is honed right down to the funnybone, setting up one good situation after another with no time out for hokum. It is pure farce right through from chuckle to belly-laugh. Director Reis—who has labored in some obscurity in Hollywood after transferring from radio—proves himself an able and inventive traffic cop for this kind of comedy jam and he manipulates his megaphone with point and emphasis all the way.

Grant is the bachelor who almost loses his buttons when teen-ager Temple visualizes him as her own personal knight in shining armor. Hauled into court on a charge of luring the kid to his apartment, he comes up against Judge Myrna Loy who sentences him to companionship with the bobby-soxer until the infatuation wears off. Before it does, the script gives Grant a chance to get that wonderfully confused look on his face several times, to wrap his turned-down, mildly gutteral voice around some bright lines, to roll up his trousers, pork-pie his hat, win an obstacle race—and of course, fall in love with the judge. Choice shot: the audience seeing Grant through Shirley's eyes as a knight in armor, donning his visor with the casual aplomb of a man putting on a soft hat—which he is really doing.

Myrna Loy is pouty and arch as the judge, Shirley is making her way gradually toward maturity—like Skeezix—and this picture casts her at the right moment, and Rudy Valee, Ray Collins and Johnny Sands round up what laughs Grant leaves lying around.

This is the picture some bar association got excited about, claiming it would have the effect of lessening respect for law and order. Actually, it will only disturb the peace inside the theater and though it may knock you down and drag you out—it will only be with laughter.

THE BACHELOR AND THE BOBBY-SOXER—RKO release of Dore Schary production. Directed by Irving Reis. Original story and screenplay, Sidney Sheldon. At RKO-Keith's.

Seven German Doctors Get Death Penalty

Nuernberg, Aug. 20 (AP).—An American court today sentenced to the gallows seven German doctors, including the personal physicians of Adolf Hitler and Heinrich Himmler, for callous disregard of human life in medical experiments on concentration camp inmates.

The tribunal convicted 16 Nazi physicians yesterday on war crimes charges. Five received life and four others lesser prison terms.

The only woman defendant, Herta Oberhauser, got 20 years for her part in the experiments at Ravensbrueck, where thousands of women died.

Death sentence was passed on Hitler's physician, Karl Brandt, an SS (Elite Guard) general and chief of the Reich's medical branch, who was found guilty of such experiments as pumping sea water into men until they died.

Karl Gebhardt, also an SS general and president of the German Red Cross, who served as personal physician to Himmler, head of the dread Gestapo, also was given the death sentence.

asked to produce records before the grand jury. He said the action has been started "because the Justice Department has a lot of employes and has to keep them busy."

To Appear Monday

"I don't own any property," McConihe said, "so how could I set any prices? A broker has no effect on the price of housing. I don't have any idea what the probe is all about. But from the firms subpenaed, it looks like you'll be overlooked if you don't get a summons."

McConihe said he would appear before the grand jury at 1:30 p. m. Monday.

Rufus S. Lusk, real estate statistician and analyst, said he had received a subpena to appear Monday with records of all parcels of real estate sold in Washington during 1946. Lusk said all he knew was that he heard the Justice Department was investigating to see if restraint of trade was involved.

Knew Subpenas Were Served

United States Attorney George Morris Fay said he knew that subpenas has been served on a number of Washington realty dealers but added his only connection with the case was to authorize use of the July grand jury, now in session, by the Antitrust Division of the Justice Department.

F. L. Sandoz, Inc., 2 DuPont Circle nw., said the probe would offer a fine chance for the public to be shown "the good job the local Real Estate Board has done to protect clients from unethical real estate promoters."

"I have nothing to hide," he said, "and will be glad to answer any and all questions asked."

Sandoz said he did not know whether he would make a personal appearance before the grand jury because the subpena had named the secretary of his firm.

Stewart Gives His Version

Charles Stewart, public relations counsel for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said the investigation is apparently the result of previously announced statements by the Justice Department that it would probe the food, clothing and housing industries to see if costs were being upheld illegally.

Stewart said his organization attempted to find out what the Justice Department had in mind when it included housing in the list, but was not successful.

4400 of 'Exodus'

Refugees Face Return To Germany

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—Nearly 4400 Jewish "Exodus" refugees will be shipped back to Germany this week if they refuse to end their three-week "sit tight" strike aboard three British transports in a French port, authoritative government informants said today.

The immigrants, seized off the coast of Palestine in the "Exodus 1947," former Chesapeake Bay ferryboat, and other vessels last month, will be given one more chance to accept the French offer of sanctuary at Port de Bouc, France, before the ships sail for Hamburg, the sources said.

A spokesman for the Jewish Agency executive immediately declared "unimaginable repercussions" would follow what he called the "cruel, tragic, stupid" decision to send the refugees back to "that land of bitter memories."

Whitehall informants said the refugees would be taken to the British occupation zone of Germany but did not say whether they would be interned or given their freedom once they landed.

The Jews presently are awaiting news of their fate aboard the three British vessels which carried them back to southern France from Haifa.

This week Jewish sources said the refugees staged a 24-hour hunger strike as a protest against their continued detention. After the would-be immigrants reached Port de Bouc July 29, they announced they would not land voluntarily. Only about 100 of the original 4500 went ashore.

The Jews—most of whom are Poles from displaced persons camps—left Sete, a southern French port, for the Holy Land July 11.

Peace Returns to Border

Jerusalem, Aug. 20 (AP).—Hundreds of Jews and Arabs who vacated the Jaffa-Tel Aviv border area last week because of a racial war returned to their homes today and peace appeared to have settled upon that troubled melting pot. Streets were crowded with Arabs and Jews mingling freely.

Thirty-five persons had been killed and 150 wounded in eight days of racial clashes.

British troops were busy throughout Palestine conducting arms searches and identity checks in half a dozen places.

Luncheon Film Showing

A color film, "Yellowstone and the Grand Teton," will be shown today at a luncheon meeting of the Junior Board of Commerce at 12:30 p. m. at the Burlington Hotel.

U. N. Council Splits as Soviet Backs Egypt

Lake Success, Aug. 20 (AP).—Russia today backed Egypt's demand that the United Nations order the immediate evacuation of British troops from Egyptian soil while the Western powers lined up behind a proposal to toss the case back into direct negotiations.

The newest East-West split in the United Nations Security Council came as Brazil offered a resolution providing that Britain and Egypt resume direct negotiations and keep the U. N. advised. It was the first formal motion made in the case, which has been under debate since August 5.

"The request of Egypt for the withdrawal of British troops from Egypt is well founded and the Soviet supports it," Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko said in the first Russian reaction to Egypt's demand for the troop evacuation and termination of the British regime over the Sudan. "The question of the Sudan is a different matter, and the Council cannot make a decision on this question."

Gromyko said continuation of the dispute would threaten world peace and the Council was bound to act.

The Russian speech had little effect on the other delegates. France, United States, China and Belgium immediately supported the Brazilian move. Should Australia and Colombia join in, this would give the resolution the necessary seven votes for passage, subject, of course, to veto by Russia.

Poland and Syria said off the floor that they were opposed to the move and backed the Russian contention that the Council should order out the troops immediately.

Britain, which has no vote as a party to the dispute, indicated it would accept the Brazilian motion if it was clearly understood that the case would be stricken from the Council agenda immediately. This stand was in keeping with the continued British argument that the Council had no grounds to discuss the case because the presence of British troops was covered by a 20-year treaty signed in 1936.

Political Debut

De Gaullists Will Run in Fall Elections

Paris, Aug. 20.—Gen Charles de Gaulle and followers, who have hitherto described themselves as a nonpolitical rally of the French people", cutting across all party lines, stepped into politics today and announced that they would present candidates on their own party ticket in October's municipal elections.

The announcement came at the same time that 25 members of the French National Assembly declared their adherence to General de Gaulle. The Gaullist deputies, calling for a revision of the French constitution and strengthening of executive powers, said they were forming a group known as "Action for a Real Democracy." Later in the day members of the group said their ranks had increased to almost 100.

Most of the deputies who threw their support to General de Gaulle today are either radicals or independents, but about 20 who joined the group are said to be Popular Republicans (MRP) whose party does not support De Gaulle, and at least one member of the group is a Socialist, Georges Gorse, of the Vendee Department.

Truman to Meet Press Today

President Truman will hold a press-radio conference at the White House at 4 p. m. today. At his last conference, he said he probably would be able to announce appointment of those who are to head the War, Navy and Air departments under the unification setup.

Marine Fliers Test Speed of Mobilization

Written for International News Service

The United States Marines are carrying on all-out air combat maneuvers to find out how quickly their reserves can be mobilized to top efficiency in an emergency.

Nearly 60 per cent of the Marine air force, whose pin-point low-level bombing and strafing so effectively supported many Pacific beachhead assaults in World War II, are simulating the latest rocket, dive bombing and interception techniques at Cherry Point, N. C., and Elo Toro, Calif.

About 1500 officers and men flew into each Marine base last Friday for the unpublicized exercises, which will last until the end of the month.

The maneuvers are also designed to test the ability of the regular Marine Corps aviation forces to receive, service and direct the reserves in a crisis.

This activity was disclosed by Marine Air Force Headquarters as it was learned that the strength of naval aviation—including the Marines—has dwindled from a wartime peak of one million men to about 40,000 on active duty.

Trials Start Tuesday

Baltimore, Aug. 20 (AP).—Trials for nearly 100 persons charged with fraudulently receiving State relief fund checks will start Tuesday before Criminal Court Judge Herman M. Moser.

D. C. Folk Report Nearly Billion in Income for 1944

During 1944 a total gross income of $956,456,000 was reported to the Internal Revenue Bureau, by 373,654 Washington residents, who paid taxes totaling $151,273,000, the Treasury Department reported yesterday.

Taxpayers' income averaged $2559, while salaries averaged $2075, it was revealed, with District residents receiving a total of $775,419,000 in salaries and wages and $36,475,000 in dividends and interest.

For the country as a whole, 46,919,590 persons reported a total income of $116,406,018,000, and were taxed $16,034,025,000.

American in Australia May Keep Citizenship

American GIs going to Australia to live will not be asked to give up their United States citizenship, Arthur A. Calwell, Australian minister for information and immigration, said yesterday.

The American Government has not asked Australian wives of American servicemen to give up their Australian citizenship, Calwell said shortly before he left Washington for a trip to Pennsylvania and Ohio, and Australia will act the same way.

World Bank Head Urges $40 Million Lona to Denmark

A 40 million dollar loan to Denmark has been recommended by John J. McCloy, president of the International Bank, in a statement to be presented to the bank's executive directors Friday.

The directors will have to pass on it, but bank officials say approval is almost certain. Denmark's original request was for 50 million dollars.

McCloy recommended these terms:

1. Repayment starting February, 1953, to be completed in 25 years.

2. "Interest at the rate of 3¼ per cent per annum and a commission of 1 per cent per annum on the principal amount of the loan outstanding, such interest and commission to be payable from the respective dates on which the proceeds of the loan shall be withdrawn."

3. "A commitment charge at the rate of 1½ per cent per annum on any part of the loan not so withdrawn from the effective date of the loan agreement to the respective dates of withdrawal."

Veterans Face Eviction, Plan To Organize

A meeting has been called for 8:30 p. m. today to organize Naylor Gardens veterans who do not wish to join a veterans' cooperative group in buying the 748-unit housing project.

The meeting will be held in the Naylor Gardens community house, 3004 Naylor rd. se. Max Bloom, a representative of the Nalor Gardens Association, will serve as temporary chairman.

The latter association is opposed to the Veterans' Cooperative Housing Association's plan to purchase the project under a $5,125,000 option.

Bloom's group claims veterans and servicemen now renting apartments at the project are in danger of losing them because they do not want to join the cooperative. In a statement, the group said:

"Instead of providing additional housing for veterans, it proposes to evict one group of veterans to make room for other occupants."

Insulin Use In Diabetes Is Defended

Insulin is still a "medical miracle" of the first half of the Twentieth Century, despite, a New York physician's report that diabetics suffer ill effects after long use of the drug.

Officers of the Diabetes Association of the District of Columbia, Inc., said yesterday they wish to dispel 'doubts and fears" of diabetic patients who read recent press releases written from the doctor's perfectly competent" report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The articl told of vascular ravages among 200 diabetic persons under survey, regardless of how closely they watched their diets or regularity of insulin treatment. It was prepared by Dr. Henry Dolger from his observations at New York's Mount Sinai Hospital.

Speaking for the local association, Dr. John A. Reed, president, declared:

"From the press releases, many patients seemed to believe that there is no use in trying to control their diabetes by proper use of insulin, close adherence to a regulated diet, and other measures because of the frequency (among diabetics) of blood vessel diseases.

"These fears are ungrounded and, in fact, proper interpretation of the data justifies great hopefulness on the part of cooperative, well-regulated diabetics."

The association statement, also signed by Dr. Maurice Protas, chairman of the organization's celiniical society, and Dr. Joseph T. Roberts, chairman of its lay society, pointed out that only through insulin did diabetic patients reach the age of susceptibilitiy to hardening of the arteries and other vascular disorders.

"Beforeinsulin," said their report, "diabetic patients would have been expected to die within a few months after the diabetes began."

Wife to 'Stick' By Virginian Held in Slaying

Towson, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Pearl Mathis, twice married to a well-to-do Alexandria, Va., contractor, visited her husband at the Baltimore County Jail and said today she would "stick by Ray to the end" as he faces a murder charge for killing his second wife's new husband.

With Mrs. Bathis as she drove up to the jail was 9-year-old Bobbie, Mathis' son by Mrs. Buby E. Colbert.

Walter Ray Mathis, 40, 424 E. Glendall st., a former air transport command pilot, is awaiting grand jury action on a first-degree murder charge in the slaying August9 of Kenneth E. Colbert, 31-year-old steel worker.

"This thing should never have happened," Mrs. Mathis said after the visit. "I do not believe it was his fault."

The accused and Pearl Mathis first were married many years ago and divorced in 1936. He subsequently married Ruby and they were divorced last year. Ruby shortly married Colbert and Walter and Pearl remarried.

Police said Mathis told them he had ad ate with Ruby the night of the slaying and went to her apartment when she failed to appear. Mathis was quoted as saying he found Colbert at the apartment and drew a gun when "he rushed me."

Girl 'Walks Home' From Airplane Ride

Minneapolis, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—A 17-year-old girl said today that she had walked home from an airplane ride.

She said her boy friend had made an unscheduled landing at a small town about 30 miles from here, pleading that his plane needed repairs.

After a brief interlude, she got out and started to walk. He started his motor and few away.

Actress Jane Greer Announces Wedding

Hollywood, Aug. 20 (AP).—Jane Greer, 22-year-old actress, formerly the wife of Rudy Vallee, said through her press agent that she will be wed in Las Vegas late today to Edward Lasker, 35, son of Albert D. Lasker, New York and Chicago advertising executive. Miss Greer, who was married to Vallee for a year and a half before divorcing him in 1945(is from Washington, D. C.

Election Legal, Byrd Asserts

In an answer to the contest over his Senate seat, Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) has told the Senate that, poll tax or no poll tax, his election last fall was legal and constitutional.

He has asked that the contest against him be dismissed "for want of a valid, substantial," or cognizable ground of contest."

A copy of his brief, sent to the Senate Subcommittee on Elections and Privileges, was releasd yesterday by John Locke Green, Arlington County Treasurer and attorney for Republican Lester S. Parsons, who is contesting the election he lost to Byrd last fall.

Among Byrd's contentions:

1. Parsons' claim that 392,000 persons over 21 years of age were denied a chance to pay the poll tax "cannot affect the validity of the election." Byrd said it was the duty of all qualified persons to request that the poll tax be assessed against them.

2. That the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments of the United States Constitution are not violated by sections of the Virginia code prescribing voting requirements.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY
Do you feel like you are tied to a drag everytime you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.
Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

OSSIE BLUEGE'S LITTLE darlings, the Nats, are now in a pet and squawking their heads off at the mean old management and blaming him for all those lickings the've been getting in the American League. Bluege isn't nice to them any more, and their spirit is down and they wish they had a new manager, according to a story out of the West yesterday.

POVICH

They say they ain't cry-babies; they just don't like Bluege and the way he acts any more. They wouldn't be known as cry-babies for all the world, because that's an odious term in baseball and ill-becoming great big he-athletes who are supposed to be tough. But in their struggle to avoid eighth place, the evidence is that they now have not only the Browns to contend with but the high possibilities of colic, croup, German measles and whooping cough.

The poor, mistreated Washington players had to wait two hours in the Cleveland hotel lobby yesterday, before they could check into their rooms, just think of that. It made 'em even more sore against the management. And they say Bluege has been on their necks because they've lost nine games in a row, and what do you think of that? The manager of the club doesn't even dandle them on his knee, and how you gonna work hard for a fellow like that? They're disgruntled, that's what, and somebody ran away with their morale.

TO THE REPORTER to whom they poured out their woes they said, "Don't mention any names except Bluege's, because that would put us on the spot with the front office where we get our paychecks." They really let Bluege have it, according to the story, but none of them had the nicety to step forward and identify himself in the papers. That would cost them their jobs, perhaps, and they're not that mad at Bluege.

On the bench before a game, you wouldn't have suspected that these Nats were unhappy about anything at all. Far from being the morose, dispirited bunch who are unhappy about playing for Bluege, they're regular cut-ups, clowning around, ribbing each other and generally having fun. It's only when the game starts that they get down to the serious business of being dead-fish and taking their lickings and making Bluege look like a very unsuccessful manager.

The Nats this year qualify for one superlative. On performance, they're the most over-paid club in the league. If the pitchers have a gripe coming, it's not against Bluege but against the guys who are supposed to get 'em some runs and don't. It's the worst-hitting Washington club in a couple of decades and they're taking the club's money under false pretenses. In contrast to the squawking at Bluege, one thing can be said about the Nats. They take their beatings on the field graciously.

CLARK GRIFFITH, who owns the club, is on Bluege's side. He said so yesterday, emphatically. "I won't tolerate any cry-baby ballplayers. They ought to be put out of baseball. Bluege can't grab their bats and hit for them. I'll get to the bottom of this thing and make 'em come out in the open. I know ballplayers. One grumbler can poison the whole team against a manager."

He agreed that the 1947 Washington club was a drab cast. "They don't kick up their heels enough on the ball field. If they'd squawk more at the opposition or the umpires they'd be better off. Anyway, I don't believe they're mad at Bluege. Some of the stories don't ring true, like the one about George Myatt being railroaded to Jersey City because he had an argument with Bluege in the clubhouse.

"Myatt had no fuss with Bluege. I know that. He left our club on the best of terms, and I can show you letters from him asking to be taken on again as manager of one of our farm clubs. If Bluege did get a little bit sarcastic with any of the players maybe that was the right thing to do. I managed ball teams for 20 years and you have to get on the necks of some of those fellows."

GRIFFITH, THE OLD school baseball man, recoils at any suggestion of mutiny on a ball club, particularly his. "They won't get anywhere with me if they try to gang up on a decent fellow like Bluege. The fans have been second-guessing baseball managers ever since Abner Doubleday laid out the first diamond, and that's all right, but his own ballplayers ought to keep their mouths shut."

He liked the sound of that last crack, apparently, because he said, "Yes, they ought to keep their mouths shut at a time when we're going bad. They signed a contract to play to the best of their ability, and they can't talk like that and play to their best ability. Any manager of mine is going to get the full support of the front office in a case like this."

Does he think Bluege is doing a good job? "Yes, I do," said Griffith, "a good job. He's made some mistakes, but not as many as his players." Would Bluege's contract be renewed at the end of the season? Griffith didn't say yes or no, but Bluege thinks he'll manage the club next year. But if he has to manage the same cast, he's probably in a mood to sack the club bone doctor and hire a pediatrician.

Mize Slams Pair, Giants Earn Split

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Big Johnny Mize belted his thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth homers of the year today, but the best the New York Giants could do was split a double-header with the Cincinnati Reds. The Giants won the opener, 10-3, and the Reds came back to win the closer, 3-2.

In the first game the Giants thumped Bucky Walters and Ed Erautt for 12 hits including a homer for Mize and another by Mickey Witek. Rookie Larry Jansen found it easy to chalk up his fourteenth victory of the year against four defeats with an eight-hitter. Grady Hatton homered for the Reds.

Ev Lively and Harry Gumbert combined to hold the Giants to six hits in the windup with Lively getting credit for fifth win. He's lost five. Gumbert held the Giants hitless in the last three innings. Bert Haas topped the Reds' attack. He tripled in the first and came in on Babe Young's single and drove in a run in the third with a single.

Laurel Spending $250,000 on Improvement

To Be 'Area's Best'

By Walter Wood
Post Reporter

Put down that scratch sheet and gather 'round.

Come October 1, there's going to be some classy horse flesh on which to wager at the "new" Laurel race track.

So said Henry A. Parr 3d, dynamic prsident of the Maryland Jockey Club's recent acquistion half way between here and Pimlcio.

Parr, also head of the Baltimore track, was in town yesterday bearing news for the two-dollar bettor and others. He and Dave Woods, diplomat of public relations, held forth in the air-cooled climes of the Hotel Statler's mezzanine.

Through the din of clanking ice and gulps of stuff with soda the following was heard:

1. The owners of Laurel are spending $250,000 on the surface of the racing strip and adjoining barns to attract entries from American turfdom's biggest stables.

2. Ben Jones, trainer of three Kentucky Derby winners, will bring some of Calumet Stables' thoroughbreds for the fall meeting.

3. Present and long-range plans will groom Laurel to become "Greater Washington's best racing oval."

Lures Calumet

Trainer Jones, said Parr, indicated early this week that he would have Calumet's Devil's Red and Gold colors on the Laurel program.

Most of the big boys of racing have been reluctant to truck their class horses to nearby Maryland because of poor racing conditions.

Last year Jones brought a classy Calumet filly to Laurel, only to return her home without allowing her to race.

Much now like an invested saucer, Laurel will be leveled off and drainage ditches installed to carry surface water off both the inside and outside edges of the track.

For the present the stands and clubhouse facilities will remain the same, said Parr. But in the future—when building controls are further relaxed—look for more windows at which to lay your bets and a better house for clubbing.

Bluege Returns Fire of Sniping Nats, Who Lose 10th Game in Row

12-Inning Affair Ups Losing Streak

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—After Chico Pieretti and Tom Ferrick had failed to check the Nat losing streak, which now has reached the appaling figure of 10 straight, Manager Ossie Bluege called on Mickey Haefner to try and salvage the final game of the Cleveland series in the second game of tonight's twilight-night encounters.

Ferrick was tagged with the loss as the Indians pushed across a tally in the twelfth to win the opener, 4-3.

The Nats led the Indians, 3 to 0, in the second inning of the second game.

Haefner had Bob Lemon, a right-hander whom the Nats tried to get in June, as his pitching opponent. Lemon, a recent graduate from the relief ranks, was gunning for his sixth straight as a starter. Haefner was shooting for his eighth triumph.

Circuit Clouts Count

The home run played a mighty part in the Indians' triumph in the twilight game. Hal Peck hit one with Dale Mitchell aboard in the first to rub out a 1-0 Washington lead. And in the eighth Joe Gordon blasted his twenty-second to mess up a 3-2 advantage which Chic Pieretti was nursing at that point.

Gordon, incidentally, almost broke up the game in the tenth when he sent Sherry Robertson back against the leftfield fence, 365 feet away, to haul down his effort.

But it remained for Manager Lou Boudreau and Kenny Keltner, who hit two homers last night, to spoil the Nats' dream of a victory in the twelfth.

Lewis Misses Ball

Boudreau lofted Tom Ferrick's first pitch into left for a double. Ferrick, who took over when Chic Pieretti was removed for a pinch hitter in the eleventh, got rid of Robinson on an easy fly to Robertson. But Keltner whacked the second pitch into right for a solid single.

Buddy Lewis charged the ball in an effort for a fast pickup and a try to nail Boudreau at the plate. Buddy missed, however, and the 2-hour and 50-minute contest was over.

Revenge?

3 Skins May Turn Tables On Ex-Mates

Los Angeles, Aug. 20.—That one about chickens coming home to roost may be more than an adage when the Washington Redskins meet the Los Angeles Rams in the Coliseum on the night of September 5.

Three members of the 'Skin backfield used to be with the Rams.

The trio—Jimmy Gillette and Tommy Farmer at right half and Ralph Ruthstrom at full—could be the ones to plaster their old teammates two weeks hence.

Did it for Yanks

Gillette gave a fair country exhibition of what might happen last fall. Sold down the river to the Boston Yanks, Jim scored two touchdowns on runs of 46 and 43 yards and caught a 60-yard pass and run touchdown play for a third as the lowly Yanks beat the Rams 40 to 21.

Now with the Redskins, Jim has the same ideas, but he has more support from members of the Ram alumni. Coach Turk Edwards and staff have been greatly impressed with the speed, fine ball packing and pass shagging ability of Farmer, who will alternate with Gillette at right half.

And they are no less impressed with Ruthstrom. His forte in the league has been as a defensive fullback, especially against passers like the Rams' Bob Waterfield. Ralph stands 6 feet 4 inches, weighs 220 pounds and every ball carrier in the National League admits that when Ruthstrom hits 'em, they know they've been hit.

Ruthstrom's Knee Better

Ruthstrom had a bad knee with the Rams last year and didn't play much. But before they traded him to Washington, they got him the best operation that many could buy and it seems to have been highly successful. He hasn't favored the injured leg for a minute in practice so far.

Two former Rams in name only are Jim Youel, Sammy Baugh's understoudy at quarterback, and Fred Boensch, tackle. Youel was with the 'Skins last year while Boensch, former star Stanford tackle, is a rookie.

You can be sure of one thing—if the Redskins rise up and beat the Rams on September 5, one or more of these former wearers of the Blue and Gold will play a big part in the victory.

Suspension Faces Grumbling Players

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—The eight Nats who reportedly said that they would quit baseball if Manager Ossie Bluege is retained next season will be suspended at once if they own up to that statement, Bluege said today.

"The time has come for a showdown," Bluege said. "We are going to have a team meeting in Detroit tomorrow, I'll read the players the newspaper article and if any or all eight of them admit that they made that statement they are through."

Bluege was boiling made and it wasn't from the oppressive heat. He termed the newspaper article a "malicious bit of propaganda" and denied time and again that there was any dissension on his club.

In the Dark

"To my knowledge there is no dissension on the Washington club. The players are pressing, trying too hard to shake this horrible slump. I admit they are not in the best of spirits, but who would be after losing nine in a row?

"I do know this, however. There are a few players on this team who have been sharpshooting on me all season. I don't know who they are and if they are man enough to say so they'll admit it at tomorrow's meeting. This thing has gone far enough. Somebody has been talking out of school and I want to find out who it is."

Bluege said he had talked to Owner Clark Griffith at noon today, that Griffith read him the story and would mail him a copy in time for tomorrow's Detroit meeting.

Rick Embarrassed

"This whole business started in Chicago at the All-Star game when someone printed a story that I would be succeeded by Rick Ferrell next year. We held a meeting then, I read the team the story and pointed out that I was manager of the team and would continue so. That story was very embarrassing to Rick and he told me so. He knew nothing about it and I was in the same boat.

"Of course, now that we are in a losing streak is a fine time to rip us apart. And I'm the first one to be ripped up. I must confess that I don't know what to do to bring us a victory. I can't hit for the boys."

From this reporter's observations, however, everything is not exactly lovey-dovey with the Nats. The protracted losing streak has a lot to do with their downcast spirits.

Just Routine

They are a lifeless outfit who appear to have lost all zest for their profession and are merely playing out the schedule. Several of them have criticized Bluege, but not to the point of threatening to quit the comparatively lush life of a major league baseball player.

Trying everything to rid the Nats of their long losing streak, Bluege shook up his lineup again.

To the bench went Mark Christman and Eddie Yost. Johnny Sullivan returned to shortstop and Cecil Travis wat at his old third-base post. Bluege also moved Buddy Lewis into the cleanup role with Mickey Vernon batting third.

Yankees Win in 11th, 14-13

Detroit, Aug. 20 (AP).—Overcoming a 13-5 Detroit lead after the Tigers had scored nine times in the seventh inning, the New York Yankees came on to win today, 14 to 13 in 11 innings, tying it up with five runs in the ninth and winning in the eleventh on John Lindell's single and Phil Rizzuto's two-bagger.

Detroit, Aug. 20 (AP).—Overcoming an eight-run deficit in two innings to tie the score with a five-run rally in the ninth, the New York Yankees squeezed out a 14-to-13 decision over the Detroit Tigers today in the eleventh inning when Johnny Lindell singled and Phil Rizzuto doubled him home with the Yanks' nineteenth hit of the game.

Detroit chased Bobo Newsom in three innings but Larry Berra's two-run homer helped the Yankees take a 5-4 lead in the fifth before the game went completely wild.

The Tigers seemingly put the game on ice with a nine-run splurge in the seventh off Frank Shea and Joe Page that put them out front, 13-5, but New York wouldn't quit.

Lindell's triple helped the league leaders score three times off Virgil Trucks in the eighth and six hits—all singles—off Al Benton, and Hal White in the ninth enabled the Yanks to tie the score at 13-all, pinch hitter Lonnie Frey knocking the last two runs across with a single after two men were out.

Athletics' 3 in 10th Defeat Chisox, 5-2

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP).—The Philadelphia Aathletics, held scoreless for seven innings, came to life in the last three rounds to gain a 5-to-2 10-inning decision over the Chicago White Sox before 3806 fans today.

Rookie Cooper's pinch double supplied the A's first run in the eighth. Then Ferris Fain scored the tying run in the ninth when Don Kolloway booted Pete Suder's double play roller.

The A's sewed up the game with three runs in the tenth off Earl Caldwell, third Chicago pitcher. Fain singled for one and Sam Chapman drove two more home with another single.

Kurowski's Blow Edges Dodgers, 3-2

Brooklyn, Aug. 20 (AP).—Whitey Kurowski belted Relief Hurler Hugh Casey's first pitch for a homer in the twelfth inning today to give the St. Louis Cardinals an uphill, 3-2 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today in a dramatic finale to their four-game series.

The triumph enabled the Cards to slice the Dodgers' league lead to 4½ games and gave them an even split in the set.

It was Kurowski, a thorn in the side of the Brooks all day, who had spoiled a potential no-hitter for young Ralph Branca when he singled to start the eighth inning. He also had gotten on base twice previously on walks and it was his grounder that Spider Jorgensen fumbled in the ninth that let in the tying run.

Branca Relieved In Ninth

Branca was taken out in the ninth with two Cards on—both on walks—and two out and two balls on Ron Northey. Casey came in then and Northey rapped out a single to score Red Schoendienst. On the next play Jorgensen fumbled Kurowskijjs grounder permitting Country Slaughter to come in with the tying run.

The Dodgers broke into the scoring in the third inning off Murry Dickson. First of four St. Louis hurlers, on Ed Stanky's single and Jackie Robinson's double and they added their second run in the eighth on Dixie Walker's single which scored Stanky from third.

Cards Get First Hit

The crowd of 25,762 in Ebbets Field watched in stunned silence when Kurowski singled to left in the eighth for the Cards' first hit. Up to then only Kurowski and Musial—who had been hit by a pitch in the first inning—had been able to get to base on the 21year-old Brooklyn hurler whose fast ball and sharp-breaking curves had the Cards buffaloed.

Dickson also hurled superbly. He gave up only four hits until taken out for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

But in the end it was Howie Pollet, third St. Louis slinger, who received credit for the victory. The defeat was charged to Casey.

Armed Sets New Record In Whirlaway

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP).—Armed galloped to a new track record to win the $43,750 Whirlaway Stakes at Washington Park today. With Pleasure was second and Service Pilot third.

Armed, tuning up for his $100,000 match race with Assault August 30, ran the mile and an eighth in 1:48 3/5, knocking four-fifths off the former record established by Be Faithful a year ago.

Armed went to the post a 1-3 favorite and returned $2.60 and $2.20. The place price on With Pleasure, which had beaten Armed three times this season, was $2.20. There was no show wagering.

With Pleasure set the early pace, Armed catching him and going into the lead on the stretch turn.

Rare Sports Material In Library Exhibit

The Library of Congress is presently conducting an exhibit entitled "Prints and Books on Sports in America" which will be open to the public until September 15. The exhibit is located in the South Gallery, second floor of the main building and contains rare books, handbooks, pamphlets and lithographs on all forms of early sports activity in this country.

Protest Denied by Aussies

Chestnut Hill, Mass., Aug 20 (U.P.).—The U. S. Davis Cup selection committee, stringing along with the four men who brought the cup back from Australia last December, today named Jack Kramer, Ted Schroeder, Frank Parker and Gardnar Mulloy to defend the international tennis trophy against the Aussies at Forest Hills, August 30-September 1.

Non-playing Captain Alrick H. Man submitted the names of the four U. S. players to Australia's captain, Roy Cowling, at the National Doubles Championship Tournament here, in exchange for the list of challengers.

Jack Bromwich, Dinny Pails, Colin Long and Geoffrey Brown, members of the team that routed Canada and Czechoslovakia to reach the challenge round, will represent Australia.

Same Singles Foes

Announcement of the four American defenders was made first in New York by Jones W. Mersereau of New York, chairman of the selection committee, just 10 days before the opening matches as prescribed by Davis Cup regulations.

Singles and doubles assignments, to be determined by Man, will be withheld until 24 hours before the series, but Kramer and Schroeder were expected to handle the opening singles, probably against Pails and Bromwich, as they did at Melbourne last year.

The doubles selections probably will hinge on the outcome of the United States doubles championships at Chestnut Hill. If Parker and Mulloy again defeat Kramer and Schroeder they probably will get the bid.

Mersereau said the United States team would assemble at Forest Hills on August 25 and that several high-ranking players had been invited to help condition the squad.

They are Bill Talbert of Wilmington, Del., Tom Brown, jr., of Los Angeles, Bob Falkenburg of Los Angeles, Francisco Segura of Miami, Fla., and Enrique Morea of Argentina.

Protest Rumor Scotched

Nonplaying Captain Cowling denounced reports that he would protest the inclusion of Jack Kramer on the United States team because of the American's reported intention to join professional ranks.

"There is no thought in the mind of any Australian to enter a protest against the placing of Kramer in America's Davis Cup team," Cowling said. "On what grounds could such a complaint be made," he questioned.

"So long as he remains an amateur he is eligible to play. If he turned professional the day after the matches, my position still would be the same," Cowling said.

Australian Horse Bought for $87,360

Sydney, Aug. 20 (AP).—Shannon, generally accepted as the greatest race horse in Australia, was sold today for 27,300 pounds ($87,360), the highest price ever paid by an Australian for a thoroughbred.

The purchaser in an auction that lasted only a minute and 15 seconds was W. J. Smith, a stud owner who sold Beaue Pere to Louis B. Mayer, American movie magnate, for $100,000.

Shannon was sold from the estate of the late Peter Riddle, who bought the 6-year-old bay horse as a yearling for £367 ($1174). Since then Shannon has won 12 of 21 starts and £16,444.

Anacostia Wins Little World Series Title, 5 to 3

Yellow Cats, Banneker Win Games

The Anacostia Eagles captured one of the two 12-year-and-under Walter Johnson League Little World Series baseball championships by defeating the Takoma Black Cats for the second straight time, 5-3, yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

In the other two games played yesterday, Takoma's Yellow Cats came back to wallop Rosedale, 19-2, in a 13-14 year game, and the Banneker Yellow Jackets downed Kelly Miller, 6-0, in a 12-and-under contest. Both winning teams lost Tuesday, so their series stand all even at one victory apiece.

In making it two in a row over the Black Cats, Anacostia's Eaglets took advantage of 13 walks to clinch the series. The winners only collected three hits, same as Takoma, but the bases on balls handed out by the Takoma pitchers tell the story.

Watson Winner

Bob Rusvelyn of the winners collected the only extra base hit of the game, a triple, while Billy McCoy of the losers hit safely twice, Pitcher Bobby Watson of Anacostia went all the way to receive credit for the victory.

The Takoma-Rosedale game was decided in the first inning when Takoma scored 11 times. John Archipret's triple with the bases loaded was the big blow.

Bernie Foley starred on the mound for the victors, walking none and striking out four, while Rosedale's hurlers gave up 14 walks.

Finals Friday

Buddy Kay scattered six Kelly Miller hits, while Joe Alexander socked a triple and Bob Crockett a double for Banneker.

In Friday's final contests, Banneker faces Kelly Miller at 11 a. m. and Rosedale and the Takoma Yellow Cats complete their series at 2 p. m.

Isbell to Get Line on Colts Friday Night

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 20.—Baltimore's Colts of the All-American Football Conference will show a pretty fair resemblance of the team with which Coach Cecil Isbell will play the season when the Hosses collide with the Buffalo Bills in their exhibition game Friday night at Hershey Stadium.

Only four members of Isbell's squad of 52 will be missing.

One is Ernie Case, ULCA's star quarterback who is being counted on as a Colt regular. The same night the Colts make their pro grid bow Ernie will be playing with the College All-Stars against the National League Bears at Chicago.

The other three are on the injured list. Owen Goodnight, quarterback, is in the hospital recovering from a dislocated hip. Guard Bill Mempel and Fullback Don Reece are on hte sidelines with knee injuries.

Emile Fritz, stellar University of Maryland guard, also may be detained on the bench although he recuperated sufficiently from a shoulder dislocation suffered more than two weeks ago to answer workout calls this week.

In a way the injured are being severely handicapped by their absence. Seventeen players must still be cut by Isbell to trim his roster down to the league limit of 35 before September 5. And Friday's game is the best opportunity yet (the first under regular conditions against outside opposition) for the Hosses to show what they can do.

Brownies' Boss Denies Offer

St. Louis, Aug. 20 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns' president and principal stockholder, Richard Muckerman, today denied he ever had received a one million dollar offer from Emory Jerry of Chicago for his ball club and said that Perry yesterday told him he never had made such an offer.

Asserting that he had refrained from commenting on reports that Perry, a consultant engineer, represented a six-man syndicate desirin gto move the American League team to California, Muckerman added:

"While Perry had one meeting with my attorney he at no time made a firm offer to purchase either 51 per cent or my entire holdings."

Muckerman said recent newspaper articles had suggested that Perry had offered $6.25 a share for his 51 per cent interest and that there were no "ifs" attached.

Bout So Good He Pays Extra

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—During most of the past three years George Moran, an ardent New York fight fan, has been paying $12 for a ringside seat every Friday night at Madison Square Garden. Last week the price was cut to $8 for the Anton Raadik-Ernie Vigh bout.

Today Sol Strauss, acting president of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club which promoted the card, received a letter and $4 from Moran, saying the bout had been better than many of the costlier ones.

THE RUHR—
valley of decision

The Ruhr Valley of Germany is perhaps the most important spot on earth today. What happens there will have its effect on every citizen of the world. This subject is discussed in this editorial currently appearing in McGraw-Hill publications. It may be quoted or reprinted with or without credit mention.

This is the 60th of a series

FOR Americans and for American business the most important single spot on earth today is the Ruhr Valley of Germany—a valley no bigger in area than the State of Rhode Island. Upon recovery in the Ruhr hinges recovery in Europe. Upon recovery in Europe hinges the peace of the world.

No machine can run with its most important part missing. Western Europe without the Ruhr is a dead machine. Before the war, over half the coal and steel produced in the Western part of Continental Europe came from this one little valley. Today, the fact is that no other region in Europe has the technical skills and enterprise to produce the industrial supplies which Europe must have if it is to help itself back to a self-supporting economy. And, after observing Europe for many weeks, I am convinced that no one but the United States can successfully supervise the rebuilding of the Ruhr.

If you will keep four considerations in mind, as the international politicians gamble, you can easily tell whether the United States is playing its proper role in the rehabilitation of the Ruhr. Here are the four considerations:

I We are paying for the Ruhr rehabilitation (or lack of it).

II We alone have the skill and enterprise to supervise its rebuilding.

III It will be a tough organizing job requiring money, hard work, and outright sacrifice on the part of management men and technicians.

IV We had better do it well if we love our children.

I

WE ARE PAYING FOR REBUILDING THE RUHR—or we soon shall be. The British now control the Ruhr, its government and its industry. They have been paying out about four hundred million dollars—American dollars—a year to buy the food, raw materials and equipment needed to rebuild the Ruhr. The British must spend American dollars for these supplies because the supplies can not be bought anywhere but in America. Thus far the British have, in effect, obtained the dollars which they spend for the Ruhr by drawing them out of the $3,750,000,000 loan which we granted Britain last year.

Now the loan is fast running out. The British lack dollars and other assets. We must take over, directly or indirectly, the dollar expenditures for rebuilding the Ruhr. We shall pay for it. Therefore—

II

WE SHOULD SUPERVISE IT. The British have been running the Ruhr's industry. They might conceivably suggest to Washington that they continue to run it while we pay the bill. That we should never agree to. There is a sound old rule that he who pays the piper shall call the tune.

Perhaps we would not need to invoke that rule if the British had done a good job of reviving the industries of the Ruhr. They have done a poor job—physically and ideologically.

The physical output of the coal mines and steel mills of the Ruhr in recent months was actually smaller than at the first of the year. Production of coal amounts to little more than half of the pre-war 127 million tons per year. Steel production limps along at one-sixth of the pre-war rate—far below the volume permitted even under the present low level-of-industry plan for Germany.

Ideologically, the British Labor Government has tried to export to Germany the brand of socialism which is making such a dubious record at home. Foreign Minister Bevin—although he may now have misgivings about it—committed himself to nationalization of the Ruhr's coal and steel industries. British representatives have pushed hard to get General Lucius Clay, our able military governor in Berlin, to agree to socialization of the Ruhr. So far, he has resisted this pressure, but our State and War Departments and we as individuals must back him up to the limit if he is to continue to combat this pressure successfully.

Even if the British government were not socialist, there would be good reason for questioning the ability of Britain to rehabilitate the industries of the Ruhr. In recent generations, the British management class has shown itself more interested in cartels, restricting output and allocating markets, than in full-steam, ingenious enterprising production.

Certainly the British must remain full partners in the political administration of Germany. No one suggests anything else. However, their recent production record demands turning the job of revitalizing the Ruhr industries over to the nation which is paying the bill and which leads the world in production.

If we have any faith in the business philosophy by which we have lived and prospered for 170 years, we should demonstrate that that philosophy still is dynamic by taking up the burden of the Ruhr.

III

IT WILL BE A TOUGH JOB. It will require men and supplies and money from the United States. It can not possibly be done in less than five years. A list of some of the necessary steps shows how hard it will be.

A. Plans for socializing the Ruhr should be shelved quickly. The industries there should remain in trusteeship for five years. Then the Germans themselves should decide their ownership; let us hope that by that time we can demonstrate to them that private ownership and private initiative means high production, good distribution and high wages.

B. The top supervising management jobs—both the top policy and the top technical jobs—require outstanding business ability. That is why American business men must be willing to go to Germany, sacrificing comfort and leisure, and even income, if necessary.

C. Germans should take over the management job at the operating level. The Germans are good technicians. They have a greater incentive than anyone else for getting the Ruhr back in working order. That incentive should be harnessed.

D. Special effort should earn special rewards. There is nothing wrong with the Ruhr (or the rest of Europe) that hard work will not cure. Before a man will work hard, he must feel that his work will advance him and his family. That simple motive, which powers our whole economy, must be revived in the Ruhr. To revive it requires enormous ingenuity and work . . . a new currency . . . a logical customs union . . . a sensible ration system . . . enough food, clothing, housing and consumer goods so that the worker can buy something with his currency and his ration points.

E. America will have to furnish a good share of these foodstuffs and supplies. Certain key items of equipment also will be needed. Only as we succeed in our job can this flow be diminished.

F. A sensible priorities system must channel Ruhr coal and steel into those uses which, in turn, will further increase output. Repair parts for railroad cars should stand high on the list. Housing, coal equipment and machine tool parts should come ahead of the automobiles and permanent steel bridges which at times have been accorded preference.

German technical management of industry in the Ruhr—point "C" above—need not mean political control of the Ruhr by some future sovereign German state. As the French know, the Ruhr, next to the atomic bomb, is the most dangerous weapon in the world. It is the arsenal without which no European power, even Russia, would dare start a war. There is no sense in turning that arsenal back to the political control of a nation which twice in 25 years used it for aggression. (And three times since 1870.) Surely we have enough resourcefulness to let the Germans who live in the Ruhr run the industries there without turning political control over to a central Prussian state.

This partial list shows how much hard work and statesmanship the United States must put into the Ruhr. But—

IV

WE HAD BETTER DO IT IF WE LOVE OUR CHILDREN. If we do not do this job—if we should pull out of Germany or fail there—we leave behind us a vacuum which neither Britain nor France has the strength or ability to fill. Russia has the will and, if left unopposed, the power to fill that vacuum. Therefore, the day we fail or the day we pull out of Germany, the third world war takes a long step closer to us and certainly to our children. What greater incentive does any American need to work for than our success in this field?

If we succeed, the western zones of Germany in conjunction with Belgium and Holland can become self-supporting in three to five years. That way lies recovery for all Europe. That way lies peace for the world. That way lies vindication for the American business system in which we believe—the system of competitive private enterprise, with freedom for the individual and his initiative.

Md. Collects $1,115,700 From Tax on Sales in July

Complete Returns For Month Seen Likely to Reach $1,400,000 Total

July returns from Maryland's 2 per cent sales tax, although incomplete, have reached $1,115,700, State Comptroller James J. Lacy announced yesterday.

Indications are that complete returns for the month, the first the tax was in effect, will amount to $1,400,000, according to one sales tax official.

Lacy said some 35,000 returns had come in, but all had not been tabulated. An additional 8000 returns are expected.

Deadline for the returns was Friday, but the division is overlooking late returns this month because of the difficulty many firms had in setting up bookkeeping procedures and because blanks were late in reaching merchants, Lacy said.

The financial program of the State is based on monthly returns of $1,533,000. Retailers believe that the returns eventually will average more than two million dollars a month.

Lacy also announced that blanks were now ready for persons to use in reporting out-of-State purchases on which they must pay a use tax.

Controversy over whether Marylanders are required to pay a tax on each item in a multiple sale appeared ended yesterday with a statement by Attorney General Hall Hammond that buyers may add up the sales and pay but one tax.

Reject Prods, UPWA Asks

there were widespread employe complaints about working conditions. Bradley is generally credited with having worked toward a much more realistic and human policy toward his employes.

Instead of a "slowdown," VA officials say the agency must find new short-cuts and ways to streamline its work. The agency is in the process of firing 8000 of its administrative employes because of a 27-million-dollar cut made in its budget by Congress.

In some respects, the UPWA campaign is belittled in VA circles. An official said the UPWA campaign had not inspired any evidence of a work slowdown and that therefore no action had been taken to meet it.

However, he added that VA employes had certain standards to meet and that any employe who failed to meet them would be given a poor efficiency rating that would lead to his dismissal.

One of the UPWA leaflets starts off with this headline:

"BEWARE OF PRODUCTIONITIS!"

It goes on to define productionitis as "a disease caused by placing such emphasis on the word 'production' that other things are forgotten; all other values tend to be ignored in effort to achieve high production report; characterized by tension, nervousness, intense rivalry, distrust, and often ill-feeling.

"Does your supervisor have 'productionitis? Then b e w a r e! Don't wait until you too become a victim. Take joint action to stop the disease now."

Another leaflet has this headline:

"DOES THE WHIP CRACK OVER YOU?"

It continues.

"It probably does if you are working in Branch No. 2.

"Are you haunted by the word 'production?' Hounded by the constant questions, how many cases have you disposed of, how many units have you posted? Bothered by so-called honor rolls of clerks who made the highest production . . . one clerk pitted against the other . . . the fear that your neighbor is doing more than you are. Result: Nervous tension, dissatisfaction and inevitable decrease in efficiency.

"What is the purpose of Branch No. 2? Mere paper production or service to the veteran? What is production? Is it solely a figure to be put on paper? What about service to the veteran? Does he not deserve thorough handling?

"Do you deserve better conditions? Is being treated like a human being rather than a robot expecting too much? We spend eight hours a day here. It should not be a place of dread!"

Incidentally, this isn't the first time that UPWA has been charged with an attempt to slow down the work of Federal offices in New York City. A similar charge was made unofficially by Treasury Department officials in connection with the work of its processing division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. UPWA had a large local among its 2200 employes. The revenue office was moved to Kansas City on July 1 and the bulk of the New York employes lost their jobs.

VA now plans to move at least 1500, and perhaps as many as 2500 employes back here before the end of the year from its New York insurance offices.

PATENT OFFICE: The new Commissioner of Patents, it is reported, will be either:

Lawrence Kingsland, a St. Louis patent attorney, or Roy C. Hackley, jr., of San Francisco, a special assistant to the Attorney General.

The odds are heavily on Kingsland who's reported to have support of many members of the patent bar association. Also, Kingsland was in the running for the post several years ago. He recently reorganized the patent office of the Philippine Islands.

The Commissioner is now Casper W. Ooms. Although his resignation hasn't been announced, Ooms will leave within a month to resume his Chicago law practice.

FEDERAL SECURITY: Members of its loyalty board are: Joe McElvain, chairman who is also chairman of the Social Security board of appeals; Earl Simrell, a lawyer, and Arthur McLean, personnel officer. Alternates are: Glenn Stahl, Charles Henderson and Henry Sullivan.

Now that the FBI-Civil Service loyalty check is under way, FSA has discontinued its own check on references given by new employes after a person has been tried and not after he has been arrested) is a threat of physical violence to every citizen in the community.

"The police are paid to protect citizens against violence—not to use it against them illegally.

"We urge you to act vigorously and effectively in the present situation, so that the entire personnel of the Police Department, from top to bottom, is fully conscious of the necessity of preserving our rights inviolate," it concluded.

Clegg, an employe of The Washington Post, was arrested August 2 and was not permitted, he charged, to telephone to his wife or employer. Although no one could identify him at a police line-up, he was beaten at Police Headquarters and held 22 hours longer at the First Precinct, he declared in charges filed through his attorney, Roger Robb.

9000 Attend Marshall Hall Tiltng Event

More than 9000 spectators cheered their favorite tilters, both male and female, at the sixty-second annual jousting tournament at Marshall Hall, Md., yesterday.

Champion of the knights was Joseph Brady of Baltimore County, Md., who won $35 for sending his lance through more rings than any other competitor.

Officials said tournament attendance was a record.

Twenty-one male and four female jousters competed for glory—and cash awards.

Jousting is one of the oldest sports in Maryland, having made its first appearance, it is said, on the william Gilmore estate near Baltimore in 1840.

Because of the heat, yesterday's tilters were content to compete in modern-day attire, forsaking the colorful getup of the knights of old.

They rode down a 375-foot turfed track at full speed, with 16-pound lances aimed at a series of three rings suspended from arches midway along the track at 25-yard intervals. The rings become smaller as the competition progresses, until the smallest three are about a half-inch in diameter.

ADA Urges Commissioners To Curb Police

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Vigorous action by the District Commissioners to compel police to respect civil rights of citizens was asked yesterday by the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action.

A letter to Commissioner John Russell Young declared the ADA doubted that Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett "will take the necessary steps to rid the police department of the sadists" who resort to "third degree" methods.

Investigation of charges by Julius Willie Clegg, 26, Negro war veteran, that he was beaten by police and held without charges for 34 hours is now under way. Chief of Detectives Floyd A. Truscott said he expected to complete it Monday when a witness returns from vacation.

Organization Concerned

Benjamin C. Sigal, president of the ADA local chapter, declared in his letter to Young that the organization had been "for some time concerned with the attitude of the police . . . toward the use of 'third degree' methods."

"Disquieting, and apparently justified, reports have persisted over a long period of time that District police have resorted to such methods," the letter declared. "More recently evidence has come to light which seems to establish the accuracy of these reports.

"No citizen, white or colored, can feel secure in his fundamental civil rights if, after arrest, he may be held incommunicado, maltreated and denied counsel or the exercise of the right of habeas corpus.

"We feel that this is a matter deserving the immediate and personal attention of the Commissioners. We doubt very much that the new Police Chief will take the necessary steps to rid the Police Department of the sadists who employ such practices, which makes it the more necessary that the Commissioners themselves supervise the matter.

Third Degree Discredited

"Penologists all agree that third degree measures do not deter crime, nor do they constitute a trustworhty means of eliciting the truth.

TidewaterFleet To Get Base At Solomons

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—Maryland's tidewater fleet will have a new maintenance center at the former Solomons Island amphibian base ready by fall, Chairman John E. Clark of the Board of Natural Resources said today.

Negotiations for the once bustling naval base resulted in an agreement by the Bureau of Yards and Docks to transfer its facilities to the State at once. Although the actual cost of building and equipment will be settled in future talks, Clark said it would not top $5000.

The Navy will retain title to the 97 acres involved and occupy the base again in case of a national emergency. All but certain facilities, however, will be handed over without ties to the State.

State Engineer John Funk estimated salvage property would be worth $100,000. Building materials, plumbing and other fixtures can be used in maintaining and improving State institutions.

State police and the tidewater fisheries department have worked out a plan for policing the property.

Most of the buildings and equipment the Navy stipulated must be maintained on the base are suited to the State's plans.

Cricket Fight Near Victory At Staunton

Staunton, Va., Aug. 20 (Spl.).—Swarms of crickets which invaded this town last night fought a losing battle with its residents today. And unless reinforcements arrive in heavy number, only mopping up operations remain.

The crickets, estimated up to several hundred thousand in number, seemed to "spring up" in synchronized attack at 8:30 p. m., yesterday. They invaded stores, movies and houses, and made walking outdoors an unpleasant necessity.

The chirping insects, noticeably more numerous this season in rural sections, brought their meadowland din into the heart of town. And their disagreeable annoyance of hopping into faces.

No one was certain from whence they came or, more pertinently, when they would depart. A. M. Woodside, Virginia Agricultural Extension entomologist, declared they probably multiplied rapidly in the recent hot dry spell and grew to maturity close to the town. Because of the same dryness, they moved townward.

County Agent E. B. Morse, Augusta County, said he did not believe the cricket horde was any great danger to crops.

Virginia to Get $275,289 Share In Tenant Loans

By The Associated Press

Virginia is allotted $275,289 for participation in the 1948 farm tenant purchasing program.

The Farmers Home Administration said this distribution compares with $566,242 in 1947 obligations.

Congress made only 15 million dollars available for farm tenant loans in 1948 contrasted with 50 million last year. For the first time, however, it authorized the agency to insure in 1948 private farm purchase loans up to 90 per cent of the property's appraised value if the purchaser meets the requirements of a direct loan.

Virginia's allotment in production and subsistence loans in 1948 is $868,000 against 1947 obligations of $1,454,145.

The production loans are intended to aid the farmer in changing from one type of farming to another.

Sum Exceeds 1946 Collections About $182,000; Campaign Will Begin Nov. 12

The Community Chest Federation announced last night it would try this fall to raise $3,900,000—about $182,000 more than was collected last year.

Daniel W. Bell, federation president, announced this year's goal after a conference of chest committees. The objective is $300,000 below last year's goal, an amount never reached.

The campaign goal was announced after the Washington Community Chest board of trustees, on August 12, approved 57 agencies for shares in funds collected. All participated in the 1947 campaign.

Campaign Opens November 12

Date set for the campaign is November 12 to 26.

Bell declared the money collected "is to support essential welfare and health services in Washington, Alexandria, and the four counties of Arlington, Fairfax, Montgomery and Prince Georges."

"Every resident of the area must give his fair share to meet the needs of those community services in the critical year ahead," he said.

The goal is far less than the $4,100,000 declared by the budget committee to be the "irreducible minimum," the budget chairman, Chester Morrill, special adviser to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve, reported.

Asked Over Five Million

The budget committees of the six Community Chests that participate in the united campaign asked for a total of $5,087,288.

The campaign committee felt that the goal should be $3,700,000. The executive committee then recommended the compromise, which was accepted.

Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, declared "a short campaign, shared by our thousands of solicitors, is necessary this year."

"We think," he added, that keeping enthusiasm high and providing the possibility of exceeding our goal, are important factors in giving encouragement and satisfaction to volunteer campaign workers."

Mrs. Blodgett Estate Valued At $1,700,502

Mrs. Daisy P. Blodgett, 1515 New Hampshire ave. nw., who died August 1, left a $1,700,502 estate, a petition for probate filed in District Court revealed yesterday.

Bulk of the estate, including the Chicago Times building valued at $500,000, will go equally to two daughters and a son. They are Mrs. Helen P. Erwin, Upton st. and Linnean ave. nw.; Mrs. Mona Gaillard, of "The Rocks," Pierce Mill rd. nw., and Delos A. Blodgett 2d, New York City.

The petition revealed real property, including the Chicago Times building totaling $663,186. The building rents for $30,000 a year and is to be held in trust for the heirs.

Mrs. Blodgett's Washington home was given an assessed valuation of $93,711 in the petition. Included in the realty holdings were homes in Mackinac Island, Mich., Miami, Fla., and Grand Rapids, Mich.

Four executors and trustees will receive $5000 each. They are Robert V. Fleming, Delos Blodgett, 2d, Henry P. Erwin and David Gaillard.

Mrs. Blodgett came to Washington in 1913 after the death of her husband, a Michigan lumberman.

Maryland Fair Lists Its First 'Calf Scramble'

Timonium, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—The first "calf scramble" in Maryland will be held at the State Fair here September 3, with a repeat performance the following day. The fair opens August 31.

Already a proved feature in other States, the scramble consists of a competition in which 20 boys try to capture and halter 10 calves.

The chase takes place in a 60-foot enclosure, and the 10 lucky boys are allowed to keep the animals they seize.

Matt L. Daiger, president of the State Fair, and Agricultural Society, said the number of fair entrants this year will be the largest in the fair's 66-year history.

Arlington Man Is Held As Abductor

A 24-year-old painter of Arlington, Va., was jailed yesterday at Hyattsville, Md., on a warrant charging that he abducted a 17-year-old East Riverdale, Md., girl for immoral purposes.

The suspect, James Hampson, of 2700 Lee blvd., had been sought since May 27. He was arrested by Washington detectives earlier yesterday and turned over to Prince Georges County police.

Trial Magistrate Henry O'Neill set bail at $2000 on the abduction charge, preferred by the girl's stepfather, William A. Cissel, of 5707 63d ave., East Riverdale. Additional bail of $100 each was placed on other warrant charges, one filed by Cissel charging Hampson with stealing a set of auto license tags and a second by Hampson's wife, charging nonsupport.

The warrant charging nonsupport was sworn to on May 9 by Hampson's wife, Mrs. Theresa H. Hampson, of 5726 Eastpines dr., East Riverdale, before Justice of the Peace Harry Fiddesop, of Hyattsville. Cissel's warrants were sworn before Justice of the Peace George S. Phillips of Berwyn, Md., on May 27.

Hampson was arrested at noon yesterday at a restaurant at 10th st. and New York ave.

Series of Thefts Baffles Police At Frederick

Frederick, Md., Aug. 20 (Spl.).—A series of thefts here in the last three days has police baffled.

The gas station of Robert Nation, three miles west of Frederick, was robbed of $95 early Monday. Early yesterday thieves made off with $570 in cash and $230 in checks from the office of Hershberger's Bakery.

An automobile, a $600 camera and valuable papers were stolen yesterday from Francis P. Harrison, Greenwood, S. C. The vehicle was later reported recovered by Baltimore police.

While police were busy on the other cases, Edward Hemby, New Market, reported his garage had been entered and $100 removed from the cash register. The cash register was found later on Route 40.

Top Vodka Plant Officials Guilty Of Tapping Flow

Moscow, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Under the headline "gang thieves in vodka factory," the official trade union organ Trud today told how the director and assistant of the Balashow vodka plant diverted 60,000 bottles to their own use in recent months and wrote them off as "lost in production."

According to Trud, it was a neat trick—while it lasted. The director, one Novkov, even installed his own special cashier in the plant to handle his profits. To cover his trail, Novikov personally collected the passes showing the destination of each shipment from the guards at the gates, Trud said.

He also "greased the palms" of knowing employes and regularly sent lavish presents to his superiors in the Saratov Spirits Trust, said.

A court sentenced Novkov and his assistant to 25 years' imprisonment and confiscation of personal property. Other employes received lesser terms.

Informed Public Urged for Peace

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—Only a "fully informed" public can preserve world peace, Max Fullerton, chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Baltimore, said today.

He spoke of the urgency of an internationally free press to enable men to "keep on top of national and international events" at a meeting of the Civitan Club in Carvel Hall.

"The man in the street who does not read any word on national, international and local affairs is doing himself and the community a disservice," Fullerton said.

Describing daily newspapers as the major means of "communication of thoughts and events to all the people," he said they offer readers an opportunity to evaluate for themselves the acts of world leaders.

"Never at any time has it been more important to keep fully informed every day," he declared.

Rent Hikes In District Favored by Trade Board

Landlord's Pleas Of Higher Costs And Taxes Are Held Justified

The Washington Board of Trade yesterday backed landlords seeking a blanket increase in rents to cover increased operating and maintenance costs.

In a letter to Rent Administrator Robert Cogswell, Board of Trade President John A. Reilly said that the record of the Commissioners' hearing dealing with the extension of the District Rent Control Act and hearings before the House District Committee "contain exhibits showing conclusively that maintenance and operating costs have increased substantially."

The letter said that "there can be no question of the fact that taxes have increased."

Reilly cited higher assessments and tax rate increases that on July 1 raised real estate taxes from $1.75 to $2 per $100 valuation.

Nation-wide Increases Cited

The Building Owners and Managers Association and the Home Builders Association recently sent similar letters to Cogswell urging a blanket increase.

The Reilly letter said that the "compelling reasons" that prompted Congress to grant rent increases for the rest of the country through voluntary readjustments are present in the District.

Cogswell was urged to invoke Section 3 of the District Rent Act which enables the rent administrator to increase or decrease maximum rent ceilings and minimum service standards whenever in his opinion there has been a general increase or decrease since January 1, 1947 in taxes or other maintenance or operating costs.

Reilly pointed out that the Board of Trade had recommended to the Commissioners and Congress that features of the Federal rent control law be incorporated in the District law.

He said he believed one reason that this was not done was because the District law gives the administrator the right to regulate rent ceilings.

Virginia and Maryland

Meanwhile in Virginia, the Suburban Washington Rent Office controlling rents in Alexandria and Arlington announced that 3721 leases have been filed under the Federal law granting rent increases up to 15 per cent.

All but 698 of the cases were involved in seven large apartment units, it was pointed out.

The Maryland Suburban Rent Office said that no count was kept of the number of rent increases filed there. An official estimated that they number 2 per cent of dwelling units in the area covered by the office. This area includes Montgomery, Prince Georges, St. Mary's and Calvert counties as well as Indian Head in Charles County.

Back Taxes In D. C. Total $1,813,865

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

Real estate owners and residents of Washington owe the District government $1,813,865 in back personal property and real estate taxes.

Of this amount $1,296,203 was due for the fiscal year of 1947 on March 31. The rest of the amount is an accumulation of taxes owed the District dating back to 1877.

Delinquent taxpayers are penalized 1 per cent of the principal a month on payments. Tax sale on real estate is held the first week of every January.

At the sale in January, 1947, 2943 pieces of property were sold for a total of $108,856.55. Officials in the tax office say that when the sale notices go out in November, collections take a sharp jump.

In percentage, District collections look good, Edward A. Dent, District tax assessor, reported that more than 95 per cent of the real estate levy and personal property taxes for 1947 had been paid.

All but 15 per cent of the individual income tax and all but 30 per cent of the corporation taxes are in, although the second half of the pyament is not due until October.

Currently the tax collections are running about $10,000 a day.

Total collections for the fiscal year of 1947 amounted to $66,879,449.07 as of June 30. This includes money paid into special funds. It also includes the $4,329,000 gasoline tax collection and more than three million dollars in the water fund.

$250 Collected to Pay Nurse For Girl Injured by Plane

Friends and neighbors of Martha Jane Repass, 13-year-old Gaithersburg girl in critical condition since she was struck by a propeller blade a week ago, have contributed more than $250 to pay privte nursing care for the girl.

A $100 contribution was made yesterday by the Gaithersburg Lions Club and at least another $100 had been collected from citizens by the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department. Mrs. Norman McGaha, wife of a Gaithersburg insurance agent, had also collected an undisclosed amount last night.

The drive followed disclosure that the girl's father, Stuart Repass, a tenant farmer, was unable to pay for the private nursing care, which might save his daughter's life. She was still semiconscious last night, a week after the accident. Last Thursday, she walked into the revolving propeller of a small airplane that had landed near her home.

Martha Jane, a sixth grade student at Gaithersburg Elementary School, is at Suburban Hospital. Funds collected were believed to be sufficient for about one week's nursing care. Officials of the county health fund and welfare department have indicated they would help if the need arose after that.

Bus Strike Strands Hagerstown's Workers

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—Hundreds of commuting workers were stranded here when employes of the Potomac Bus Lines walked off their jobs today, but a spokesman for the drivers said the strike will end at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

Paul V. Smith, one of the drivers who are not affiliated with any union, said the line agreed to reinstate a driver-dispatcher to his job and to negotiate a contract after the men vote on whether they want to join a union.

The line services a 20-mile radius including Waynesboro, and Chambersburg, Pa.; Shepherdstown and Charles Town, W. Va.; and Sharpsburg, Smithburg, Thurmont and Cavetown, Md.

W. Va. Firemen to Meet

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 20. Independent Fire Company No. 1, Inc., of this city will be host to the 19th annual convention of the West Virginia Firemen's Association here August 28, 29 and 30.

Fire companies from Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia will compete for cash prizes in the convention parade on August 30. Earlier that day, a baby parade will be held.

Officials expect the largest attendence in the history of the conventions. The State Fire Chiefs' Association will hold a quarterly meeting in Charles Town concurrently with the convention.

Drama Festival Listed

Abingdon, Va., Aug. 20.—The fifteenth annual drama festival of the Barter Theater here will be held from August 25 to September 6. Nine of the 12 plays produced during the summer season are scheduled for revival. Matinees have been scheduled for Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Baltimore Auto Chase

Baltimore, Aug. 20 (AP).—Three youths were caught after a wild 80-mile-an-hour chase through heavy traffic today and charged with stealing the automobile they were in. Two cruiser patrolmen took out after the trio when they spotted the car, reported stolen several hours earlier. The accused were listed as Lawrence Rice, 18, Elmer Mampia, 17, and Earl Hartman, 24, all of Baltimore. The car was owned by Hedmond Doyle of Philadelphia.

Peeper Is 'Monster'

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 20.—Police here are on the lookout for a "monster" reported to have been peering in windows and living in the Greenhill Cemetery area. Police say they have found no sign of the 7-foot character with huge eyes, in spite of persistant complaints.

Graduates to Hear Barr

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 20.—F. Stringfellow Barr, former president of St. Johns College, Annapolis, will address the University of Virginia summer graduates at ceremonies Saturday. President Colgate W. Darden, jr., will confer the degrees in Cabell Hall at 8 p. m.

The graduating class of more than 80 is the largest summer group to receive degrees in more than 10 years. In addition to baccalaureate degrees for students in the College of Arts and Sciences, professional and graduate degrees will be awarded.

Hog Smell Conceded

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—Pity the people who live near hog farms but don't censure the hog raisers.

County Health Officer William J. French offered this bit of advice today.

He informed Anne Arundel County commissioners that sanitary inspectors would visit hog farms, mostly near Davidsonville and along the Patuxent River, within the next two months. Any violations they find of new State requirements for raising porkers must be corrected within six months.

"Hogs smell badly," Dr. French conceded, and some folks would like to be as far from them as possible.

"While these people have my entire sympathy, I realize also that hog raisers have a large investment and we should not attack them arbitrarily."

Bees—a Mule—Fire

Luray, Va., Aug. 20.—Luray residents are still amazed at the chain of events that caused farmer David Strickler of Leaksville a few uncomfortable moments last week.

Srtickler was cutting hay when he ran into a bees' nest. He attacked the bees with a burning bush, and they retaliated by stinging him and his team. While his horse broke loose and ran from the swarm, his mule stood still and kicked, and Strickler dropped the bush and set the hay on fire. The Luray Fire Department arrived on the scene of chaos, put out the fire, and Strickler returned to his haying.

Foltz Heads Farm Board

Luray, Va., Aug. 20.—Irving Foltz of Leaksville was elected president of the board of directors of the Farm Bureau at their annual meeting here Monday. He has held the position for the last 16 years.

Also elected were H. S. Hite, vice president, and C. E. Brumback, secretary-trasurer. Members of the board are: J. C. Kite, R. L. Strickler, C. C. Rothgeb, E. J. Montgomery, J. William Ruffner, and S. R. Aleshire.

Low Aim Called 'Crime'

Salem, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—Thirteen graduating seniors at Roanoke College's summer session were admonished not to "lose heart when all your expectations are not realized."

Dr. M. Clifford Harrison, head of the English department at Virginia Tech, told the degree winners:

"Low aim, not failure, is crime.

"You are gazing at the horizon of youth," he continued. "As you advance toward these horizons, they will steadily recede from you. This is a good thing, for if you do not keep moving toward your aims, you will stagnate, rust and die."

President Charles J. Smith awarded the baccalaureate degrees.

Call Brings Lost Dog

Winchester, Va., Aug. 20.—Colonel, a cocker spaniel that would answer only to his master's voice, was recovered here Monday after being lost on Route 50 for 24 hours.

M/Sergt. B. L. Windsor of Altoona, Pa., called local police to report that the dog, which had been around the world with him, was lost while en route to Altoona. The dog was spotted by local residents and police, but eluded would-be captors. Windsor and his wife returned to the area Monday, went to the neighborhood where the dog had last been seen, and called him. At the sound of the familiar voice, the dog came running to his master.

Cemetery Near Limit

Gettysburg, Pa., Aug. 20.—Gettysburg National Cemetery may soon be closed to further burials, according to Dr. J. Walter Coleman, Park Superintendent.

Coleman pointed out that even removal of most of the trees and shrubs in the cemetery would not make room for the 3000 expected requests for reburial of World War II dead. Of the 3800 now buried in the 15½-acre cemetery, more than 3700 are Civil War veterans.

Filing Deadline Monday

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 20.—Monday has been fixed as the deadline for filing notices of candidacy for three supervisorships of the Tri-County Soil Conservation District composed of Stafford, King George and Spotsylvania Counties. The board of supervisors is composed of five men, three elected by members of the district and two by the State Soil Conservation Service. The election has been set for November 4.

Balm Suit Names Sister

Richmond, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Helen Louise Taylor Via of Waynesboro asks $10,000 damages for the alienation of the affections of her husband, Rufus L. Via, in a suit docketed in Law and Equity Court here and in which her sister, Phyllis K. Taylor, is named as principal defendant.

Good Days—Bad Days

Baltimore, Aug. 20 (AP).—The customer definitely was in a bad humor.

Mrs. Emma Sullivan, a lunchroom waitress, told police a man ordered a hamburger, and, meaning no offense, she asked, "How do you want it?"

"Never mind how I want it, just cook it," was the reply. Then, police were told, he:

Picked up a bottle and smashed the glass top of a cash register.

Picked up a seated patron and tossed him on the floor.

And before getting into an automobile and driving away, it was further reported the disgruntled customer struck another man outside the rstaurant.

Health Unit to Move

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 20.—The Berkeley County health unit will move from the county courthouse here to offices in the Weimer Building. Dr. G. P. Morison, part-time county health officer, said the new quarters would be occupied about September 1.

The unit in the new building will include a dental clinic and clinics for venereal disease, tuberculosis, prenatal care, child welfare, and cancer. An effort is being made to add a mental health clinic.

Brothers Held in Fight

Winchester, Va., Aug. 20.—Arthur Nicholson is being held for grand jury action on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, and his brother Ardell, has been charged with disorderly conduct, as a result of a fight between the two Sunday. Ardell's arm was severely slashed. His sentence was taken under advisement by Judge John Rice.

Late Crop Outlook Good

Winchester, Va., Aug. 20.—Barring early frosts, Winchester residents will have garden products later than usual this year. Farmers attending the curb market yesterday reported that weekend rains had freshened up gardens, and that they should bear into late fall.

Twins, 43 Miles Apart

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 20 (AP). Twins born 12 hours and 43 miles apart were "getting along nicely" today at the Kanawha Valley Hospital here.

The hospital said a baby girl was born to Mrs. J. A. Happney at her home in Stickney, Raleigh county. A boy was born just 12 hours later in the hospital.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 20.—Harold DeHaven, after 18 months as assistant manager of the Martinsburg Chamber of Commerce, today announced his resignation to accept a high school teaching position in Jefferson County.

Rezoning Aids $12,000,000 Building Plans

Apartment house and commercial construction amounting to more than 12 million dollars, is projected for property rezoned yesterday by the Prince Georges County commissioners.

Public hearings were held on 27 applications for rezoning and on 11 applications for permits to operate gasoline filling stations, nurseries, tourist camps and other commercial projects.

A 500-apartment, three-story garden-type project to cost approximately seven million dollars is to be constructed on property owned by Sidney Lust and Philip Lustine on Chillum rd. west of Queens Chapel rd., near Mount Rainier. Construction is to begin in the spring, the owners said.

Rezoning was approved to permit construction of a 200-apartment garden-type project at the southeast corner of University lane and New Hampshire ave., to cost $1,500,000.

Application was made by George A. Gude. Two other corners of the intersection also have been rezoned for large apartment projects.

Cushing and Clarke Daniel were granted rezoning of a 3.4-acre tract at Riverdale rd. and 66th ave., Eastpines, and 8 acres opposite the Wildercroft Elementary School in the same area, for erection of a 144-apartment project, a shopping center and a theater, all to cost $1,550,000.

Marion E. West was granted rezoning of the Miley property on Silver Hill rd, near Suitland rd., Suitland, for erection of apartments, a shopping center and a theater. Total cost is approximately one million dollars.

T. Hammond Welsh, jr., was granted apartment use zoning for 15.5 acres on the Amos F. Sauder estate on the south side of Chillum rd. near LaSalle rd., Avondale. Plans for the project were not immediately available.

Others for Apartment Use

Other apartment use rezonings granted:

Keith G. Gosman, for three lots on 42nd ave. near Nicholson st., Hyattsville; Wesley S. King, two lots in the 300 block of 60th ave., Fairmount Heights; Edith E. Whalen, two lots on 37th st. and Windon rd., Brentwood, which was continued from July hearings.

The commissioners refused apartment house zoning to Floyd E. Davis Co. for four lots at 49th ave. and T st. se., Bradbury Heights; and postponed hearings on the petition of R. E. Latimer Land Co. for more than 74 acres at Powder Mill and Selman rds. near Beltsville, and of nearly two acres for commercial use at Powder Mill and Cherry Hill rds.

The board granted industrial zoning to Frank M. Ewing for two lots in the 4400 block 41st st., Brentwood, and two-family dwelling classification to Joseph L. Herbert for one lot on Ardwick rd. near the George M. Palmer hwy., Ardmore.

Commercial zoning applications granted:

J. Victor Dickey, three lots on Reed st. at 60th ave., North Englewood; Abe and Harry Glickman, for part of one lot on East-West Highway near New Hampshire ave., Takoma Park; Clifford E. Boteler, for part of two lots near Prince Georges and Wicomico aves., Beltsville; Robert L. Bell, for two lots in the 200 block 65th st., Tolson Heights, Maryland Park; George W. and Carry B. Chiswell, for two lots at 3717 Rhode Island ave., Mount Rainier; Nathan Sterling, for two lots at 6106 Baltimore blvd., Riverdale; Clara L. Heal, for part of the Heal property fronting 385 feet the east side of Baltimore blvd., north of Edgewood rd., near Beltsville; Elmer and Bessie Mostow, for property fronting 96 feet on the north side of Defense Highway and 187 feet on Spring st., Bladensburg.

The application of Thomas V. and Marion M. Lake for commercial zoning of one lot on Wells st., near Baltimore ave., Hyattsville, was withdrawn, and a petition for one lot on Edmonston rd. near Kennedy st., East Riverdale, which was substituted, was granted.

The commissioners denied commercial rezoning to Bessie R. Surrat for one lot at Addison Chapel rd. and Division st., Chapel Oaks, and to Herlad F. Wilmoth and Edward L. Craft for a portion of the Vincent A. Kiernan tract on Cherry Hill rd. near the Baltimore blvd., Berwyn.

Queen Stevens, operation of a garage and filling station, for five lots in the 110 block of 60th ave, Englewood; E. S. Whitney, operation of a garage in the rear of 4519 Baltimore blvd., Bladensburg; John G. Ray, operation of a filling station for three lots on the Baltimore blvd., Berwyn; Nezer S. Cunningham, tourist home at 1201 Eastern ave., Deanwood; Dorothy Dart, day nursery at the Borchers subdivision; Riggs Mill rd., near Berwyn; Joyce Shuck, day nursery at 5002 O st., Capitol Heights; Circolo San Guiseppe Nissoria (St. Joseph's Club) to operate a private club on two acres on 6700 block of Marlboro pike, Oakland; Italian War Veterans Relief Association, to operate a private club on Brooks rd., Seat Pleasant.

Permits denied:

Margaret C. Jordan, tourist camp on six lots at Autoville, Berwyn; J. Harris Rogers, tourist camp on two acres on west side of Baltimore blvd., Lafayette Park subdivision; Biswell E. Walz, used car lot for 20 lots in Spauldings Heights.

'Sniperscope'

'Dandy Fifth' Fires New Army Rifle

Camp Ritchie, Md., Aug. 20 (AP). The 175th Infantry Regiment today became the first National Guard group in the country to fire the Army's "sniperscope," the rifle that can see in the dark.

Until recently it was one of the War Department's top secret weapons. A powerful infra-red beam mounted on a .30-caliber carbine, it makes enemy troops clearly visible to the sharpshooter within a 100-yard range.

Members of the "Dandy Fifth" took turns with the weapon for three hours' practice on the firing range.

Feature of tomorrow's program will be the Governor's Day review, when a bronze star will be presented to Col. Sidney S. Rubenstein for counter-intelligence service in the China-Burma-India theater in 1944.

A former Baltimore agent of the FBI, Colonel Runstein is a veteran Maryland National Guardsman.

Governor Lane will witness the presentation and review the Guardsmen, who will complete their training period Friday.

4 Saw Way Out of Jail At Tazewell

Tazewell, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—State and county officers searched today for four prisoners who Sheriff R. Bowen Thompson said escaped from the Tazewell jail by sawing or filing through bars of a cell window sometime last night.

Thompson said the four were:

Roy Matney, 20, Buchanan County, sentenced yesterday to serve 12 months on a forgery charge; Bobby Lewis, about 21, Harlan, Ky., awaiting trial on a truck theft indictment; Orville Hays, Tazewell, held for nonpayment of alimony, and Goldie Call, 30, Thompson's Valley, held on a drunk charge.

The four men, Thompson said, escaped from the ground floor "bull pen" where they were held along with several other prisoners. He said none of the others attempted to escape.

The escape was discovered by Jailer Trubie Heldreth when he brought breakfast for the prisoners this morning, Thompson said.

Drive Nears End

Frederick, Md., Aug. 20.—With two more days remaining in a campaign to raise $600,000 for the expansion of facilities of the Frederick Memorial Hospital, funds today totaled $516,375.

900 Marines 'Take' Beach At Little Creek

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—Preset explosives thundered on the beaches at Little Creek today in simulation of aerial bombing, naval gunfire and rockets supporting an amphibious assault by 900 members of the Second Marine Division from Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Several hundred civilians watched the landing exercise, staged as part of Operation Camid II, a 10-day program of amphibious warfare training for 780 midshipmen of the U. S. Naval Academy and 600 cadets of the U. S. Military Academy.

The midshipmen and cadets will go to sea tomorrow afternoon to observe maneuvers which will include air attacks, submarine attacks and gunnery practice. The task force will return Saturday morning for another amphibious assault—this one to be staged off Camp Pendleton at Virginia Beach—with the student officers participating rather than observing. This exercise will bring Operation Camid to its close.

Aircraft made bombing and strafing runs on the beach at the Little Creek amphibious base today and rocket ships preceded the waves of landing craft which brought the Marines swarming ashore.

After the Marines were dug in, heavy equipment was brought in from a tank-landing ship which was secured to a pontoon causeway constructed by Seabees.

Military observers today included Vice Admiral Forrest Sherman, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations; Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, and Brig. Gen. Gerald Higgins, commandant of cadets at West Point.

250 Eastern Shore Ministers Share In $10,000 Gift

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 20 (AP).—Unexpected manna, or 250 checks for $40 each, had as many Eastern Shore Methodist ministers agog today deciding how to spend it.

An anonymous donor presented $10,000 to the Rev. Hamilton P. Fox, superintendent of the Wilmington district of the Methodist Church, with instructions to divide it among the 250 pastors in the Peninsula Conference.

One decided to take his family for a vaction—the first in years, another paid off a long-standing tuition fee to the seminary which had trained him, and a third turned over his check to a sick fellow minister.

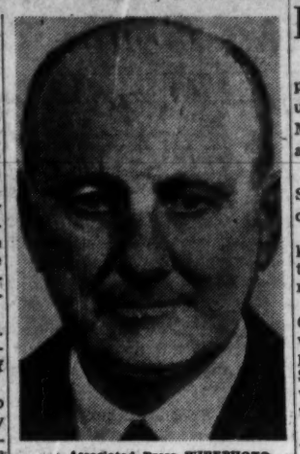
Gen. Harbord, Chief of Staff Of AEF in World War I, Dies



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
GEN. JAMES G. HARBORD

Lieut. Gen. James G. Harbord, U. S. A. (retired), 81, Chief of Staff of the AEF in World War I, died yesterday at his home in Rye, N. Y., after a short illness.

Military rites will be held at 3:15 p. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel, following services at St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church in New York City this morning.

General Harbord, honorary board chairman of the Radio Corporation of America, entered the Army as a private and rose to the rank of general despite his failure to win a West Point appointment.

Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall expressed "profound regret" last night over the death of General Harbord. Said Royall:

"A distinguished soldier who completed a brilliant military career to undertake an equally successful career in business, General Harbord was an exemplar of the American way of life."

General Habord served for 34 years in the Army. He saw duty in the Spanish-American War and Philippine Insurrection, but attained fame in World War I as chief of staff of the American Expeditionary Force in France.

Later at his own request, General Harbord became commander of the marine brigade of the famed Second Division and finally commander of the Second Division. He led the great Franco-American Soissons offensive of July, 1918, which ended the German threat to Paris.

Named Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army, under General Pershing in 1921, he resigned in 1922 to become the second president of the board of the RCA. General Harbord was elected chairman of the board in 1930 and served in that capacity until July 11 this year, when he became honorary chairman and was succeeded by David Sarnoff as president.

Born in Bloomington, Ill., in 1866, he moved to Manhattan, Kans., when he decided to enroll at Kansas State Agriculture College in 1882. After his graduation he tied for first place among 26 candidates in a West Point examination, but did not receive the appointment because of political factors. He entered the Army as a private in 1889.

General Harbord was a member of the board of directors of numerous communications, financial and railroad firms. He held honorary degrees from five colleges and was a thirty-second degree Mason.

He was a member of the Army and Navy Club of Washington, the Union League, the Knickerbocker Club of New York; the Army and Navy Club of Manila, Philippine Islands, and the Apawamis and Blind Brook Clubs of Port Chester, New York.

General Harbord married Emma Yeatman Ovenshine on January 21, 1889. She died May 29, 1937. He leaves his second wife, Mrs. Anne Lee Brown Harbord, two stepchildren, Mrs. Anne Brown Whiting and Lieut. Col. Lewis Brown, all of Rye and an aunt, Mrs. Catherine Orendorff of Heyworth, Ill.

Members of the Second Division Association, led by Ralph O. Lundgren, national president, and Robert C. Snow, national secretary-treasurer, will assemble at 2:45 p. m. today in the Fort Myer Chapel to pay tribute to their former leader.

Illegal Nets Use in Talbot Waters Denied

Baltimore, Aug. 20 (AP).—Charges by a Washington (D. C.) real estate agent that seine nets were being used illegally in Talbot County waters were denied today by Chairman John Clark of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission and also by an official of a commercial fishermen's association.

Douglas Bullock charged several weeks ago that fishermen were using nets one mile to a mile and a half long and hauled "at night, with power, and in the heads of creeks." The legal maximum is 1800 feet.

Clark said after a "routine check we found nothing to get excited about—no basis for action on our part."

Clark also denied the receipt of a petition which Bullock had claimed was signed by 200 Talbot County residents and sent to the Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

"We aren't pretending that there aren't any violators of fishery laws," the chairman said, "but the number of persistent violators is very small."

He added that any violators of Tidewater fishing laws should have their licenses revoked.

Zoners Pass 3 Buldings For Education

The Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday granted permission for erection of three educational institutions and turned down an appeal for a fourth.

Approval was given for erection o fa library for the Robert H. Terrell Law School at 1922 13th st. nw.; establishment of a cultural institution known as the American Federation of Arts at 1262 New Hampshire ave. nw., and opening of a nart school by Catherine Wy-

Denied was a petition by Elgod in rear of 1749 18th st. nw. wood Waite, 710 19th st. nw., for permission to establish a school for psychoanalysts at the 19th st. address.

Of 21 cases handled by the board, 17 were approved, two denied, one was withdrawn and one was referred to the Corporation Counsel's office for an opinion.

FOR MANY years our Ambassador to France's official residence has been a large but rather characterless "hotel" on the Avenue d'Jena. But soon Jefferson Caffrey, our present envoy, will transfer his chattels to a more magnificent setting. The United States Government has accepted the lush pink marble palace cornering Avenue Malakoff and Avenue Foch where Anna Gould de Castellane de Talleyrand staged many of her most sensational entertainments.

The Gould-de Talleyrand palazzo is tremendous, boasts innumerable salons exquisitely furnished, but, sad to say, is most inadequately supplied with plumbing. Anna Gould pulled up her European stakes back in 1934, five years later bought railroad tycoon Jay Gould's Tarrytown estate, which is handily equipped with living quarters for 60 servants.

Dumpy, swarthy as all Goulds, strung with pearls and shoddily set diamonds, she emerged from time to time into New York's Grade D social circles. Since the war she's lived in retirement on her fantastic property. Her telephone remains unanswered except between 11 a.m. and noon, and she receives none but a few intimates.

Cow to Camel

BUT IN 1895, when Anna married playboy Boni de Castellane, she crashed headlines with atomic energy. The delightful but irresponsible Boni spent as much of the Gould fortune as he could lay hands on, then when gambling debts closed in, swiped objets d'art from the pink marble palace sold them on the q. t.

Anna divorced her playboy, and to spite him married his elderly, more elaborately titled cousin, the Duc Helie de Talleyrand et Perigord. The Duc, they said, made a true love marriage—he was crazy about Anna's money.

As an old man he used to be pushed around the gardens in a wheel chair. Whenever he saw his wife, regardless of anyone present, he would mutter balefully, "Vache!" (cow). The annoyed Gould heiress, hoping to spoil his sport, tethered a cow on the lawn. The Duc first spotted the cow at a garden party. Without hesitation he turned toward his wife and hissed "Chameau!" (camel). Anna gave up.

The Last Straw

ANNA HAD TWO children, a son, Howard, who committed suicide because his mother refused to permit marriage to a girl of his choice; and a daughter, Violette, who married Jimmy de Pourtales. The de Pourtales live with extreme simplicity because Anna, displeased with the match, refused her daughter an adequate dowry.

During the war the de Talleyrand "hotel" was occupied by the German Commandant of Paris, Oberbefehlshaber Gen. von Stuelpnagel. Later, the French government turned it over to the visiting Sultan of Morocco. This was the last straw to the Duchess who, faced with a vast sum of unpaid taxes, washed hands of her beautiful white elephant.

It's amusing to think of Jefferson Caffrey, thin-lipped, taciturn as Coolidge, totally uninterested in fashionable goings-on, installed amidst all these tragic, absurd and sometimes wonderfully grand memories.

Airline Snubs Admiral

A FUNNY, almost unbelievable scene took place at the airport last weekend when a plane taxied off without its star passenger. Admiral Jerry Land, plus two friends, were flying northward for coolth on a Long Island beach. Admiral Land is president of the Air Transport Association.

Their luggage was on board, they'd been checked in, when, without warning, the plane sailed away leaving the three high and dry. The admiral voiced his opinion emphatically but with commendable restraint.

In the midst of the excitement, a public relations man from a rival airplane bobbed up and by fair means and foul, eased the three onto one of his planes. The week-end crowd was terrific, and no one knows who was "bumped off"—but the admiral and his friends reached their destinations in time for dinner. Meanwhile an almost feud has sprung up between the two lines and someone's sure to get hurt in the scuffle!

Miss Hansford Becomes Bride Of H. G. Carr

Miss Anne Carroll Hansford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wall Hansford, and Harry Gott Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gott Carr, were married at four yesterday afternoon at Central Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Graham Gordon Lacy officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white satin made over a hoop skirt. Her finger-tip veil fell from a Juliet cap embroidered in seed pearls and she carried white roses and gardenias.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Franklin Staples, who was matron of honor, wore blue taffeta with a matching Juliet cap and carried garden flowers. Miss Nancy Davis, the maid of honor, wore white taffeta with a matching Juliet cap and carried garden flowers. The maids, Miss Kate McKelway and Anne Plaskett, also wore white with white caps and carried mixed bouquets.

Allen Cox was best man and the ushers were Edward B. Sabine, Mayo Cox, George Irminger, George K. Hanks, jr., and Thomas Broughton.

Afterwards the bride's parents gave a reception at their home, 2229 39th place, nw., after which the couple left for the Virginia mountains. They will live in Washington.

The bride attended Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia at Fredericksburg and the Washington School for Secretaries. The bridegroom attended Bliss Electrical Engineering School and served for three years with the armed forces in both Europe and the Pacific.

Job's Daughters Convene Here With Colorful Ceremonies

By Genevieve Reynolds

Approximately 2800 teen-agers and 200 adults from all sections of the Nation and British Columbia teemed into the hot, humid city yesterday to attend the twenty-seventh annual session of the Supreme Guardian Council, International Order of Job's Daughters.

The opening session of the four-day conclave got under way last night with colorful ceremonies in the Scottish Rite Temple at 2800 16th st. nw.—the first time any woman's organization has been permitted to hold meetings in the temple.

In the grand entry march, supreme officers, all gowned in handsome, pink chiffon formals and flanked by 22 supreme aides wearing pink dotted swiss evening frocks and carrying frilled parasols entered to the blare of trumpets and organ music. Edith Willoughby of this city was the trumpeter.

Myra Leffingwell of Bethel No. 6 was the honored queen with two other local Bethel Queens, Lorraine Manuel and Peggy Branch, serving as princesses in the grand march.

Welcoming Speeches

Following a round of speeches given by Mrs. Esther Fleming, grand guardian of the District of Columbia, and Lester Hall, Associate Grand Guardian of the District; Mrs. Laura S. Wallace, grand guardian and Adam Trapp, associate supreme guardian, a flag ceremony was given under the direction of Ruth Lawrence, supreme guardian. Dr. John C. Palmer, grand chaplain, deputy provincial grand master, Royal Order of Scotland for the United States of America, affiliated bodies of Masonry, pronounced the invocation.

B. M. Suttler, special agent, Federal Bureau of Investigation, discussed the main causes and cures for juvenile delinquency in the main speech of the evening.

To prevent juvenile crimes, he stressed the importance of home and religious training plus discipline. "Crime prevention should begin at the high-chair age," he said. "Religious training should be started at two years of age and discipline earlier."

Suttler pointed out the necessity of making a child feel loved in the home. "This is absolutely necessary to inculcate a feeling of security," he asserted.

Misses Discipline

Mrs. Laura S. Wallace of 5406 13th st. nw., supreme guardian, IOJD, had a few observations to make on the lack of discipline among teen-agers in an interview preceding the formal opening.

"Back in 1935 when we had a supreme council session here," she said, "the groups were far more manageable than they are now. The current crop shows a definite lack of discipline.

"Boys and girls seem more confused, jittery and emotional than five years ago," she continued. "I suppose much of the trouble, however, can be attributed to the aftermath tensions of war."

To illustrate the nervous state of the teen-agers, she related yesterday's rehearsal of a George Washington pageant to be presented tomorrow night, at George Washington National Memorial Temple in Alexandria, Va.

"We were practicing the stately minuet and waltzes for the pageant," she recalled. "The youngsters considered the music too slow and insisted on changing it to boogie woogie tempo. Finally, we changed the script to permit the characters to dream about boogie woogie so the boys and girls could and would dance in the play."

Bill Earley Bids Friends to Party At Summer Home

Your Questions on Homemaking

I have several pairs of suede shoes of various colors. They now have grease and water spots on them that cannot be removed with a suede brush. How can I remove these spots without bringing injury to the suede? N. M.

Many shoe stores sell a clear liquid spot remover for use on suede shoes. There are also liquid suede finishes in various colors that should be helpful in cleaning and restoring your shoes.

Several of my good cast aluminum pots and pans have discolored with use. I would like to have something done to give them a permanent shiny finish on the outside. Would you suggest chromium plating? Where could I get this done and how effective and lasting would it be? A. L.

It's possible to chrome-plate aluminum, but experienced metal finishers do not recommend it. They say aluminum does not take a plating well and the results are not lasting. Apparently the only way to keep cast aluminum gleaming is cleaning and polishing. Fine steel wool or wool pads impregnated with a special aluminum cleaner are the most usual means of cleaning them. Avoid strong soap, alkalis or alkaline scouring powders as they darken and discolor this metal. Another cleaning method recommended for aluminum is to dip it in kerosene, then dry it by covering it with sawdust. A polish made of half olive oil and half rum is also sometimes used.

I packed some white kid gloves along with some reddish tan ones, and the red came off on the white kid. How can I remove it? M. O. D.

It would be wisest to take your gloves to an expert professional dry cleaner. Explain to him how they became stained and he may be able to bleach out the spots.

1. A fireplace set of hammered antique brass has become very rusty looking and entirely lost its finish in our damp, Revolutionary-period house. A neighbor advised cleaning it with a weak solution of salt and vinegar, and this was done some months ago. I'm wondering now if this could have eaten off the finish. Can you tell me how to restore it?

2. How can I remove a stain caused by an aerosol bomb on a curtain? The spot is brownish, and it has defied lemon juice, chlorine, and sun bleaching. V. G.

1. If you rinsed the brass well after cleaning with vinegar and salt, it shouldn't have been injured by this solution. It's a brass-cleaning method approved by many experts. A mixture of linseed oil and rottenstone is especially recommended for cleaning brass with a soft dull finish. After rubbing off the tarnish with this mixture, wipe with a soft cloth dipped in linseed oil and rub with a flannel cloth. This should be effective if the set is solid brass. However, if it's brass plated on iron or steel, perhaps the plating is coming off and it should be refinished.

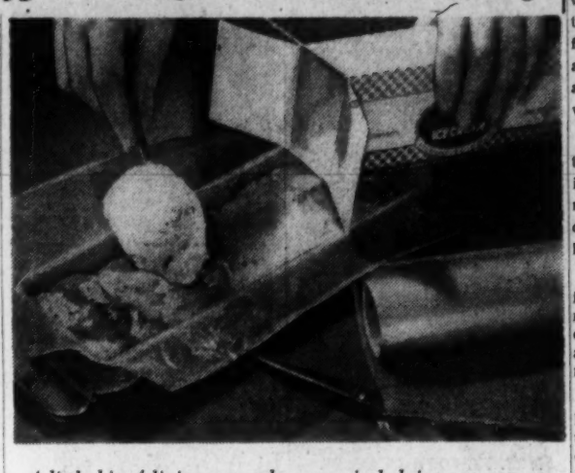
2. A good dry cleaning fluid with a gasoline or benzene base should remove the spot made by the aerosol bomb.

My wedding gown has perspiration stains under the arms which have become very yellow since it was used a year ago. I do not want to have the entire gown cleaned. It is white taffeta and net and may lose its stiffness, or the seed pearl trim may be damaged. How can I remove these perspiration stains without cleaning the entire gown? I want to wrap it up and store it away and I am afraid the perspiration will rot the material. B. B.

Your gown would probably last better through the years if you have it well cleaned now by a firm that specializes in cleaning fine materials, laces, and bead work. Such firms can be found in most large cities. However, if you want to try removing the yellowed perspiration stains yourself, you should be able to do so with hydrogen peroxide or a mixture of one teaspoon sodium perborate to one pint peroxide. Put an absorbent pad under the stains and sponge with this bleach. Then rinse by sponging with clear water.

What is the best method of cleaning a black wool felt hat that I plan to redecorate? D. C.

Brush the hat thoroughly, then go over it lightly with a rag or pad of tissue paper dipped in cleaning fluid. After it dries, rub lightly with fine sandpaper to remove discolorations and restore nap. Be careful not to rub holes in the felt.



A little bit of lining goes a long way in helping you remove ice cream neatly and completely from a refrigerator tray. Cut strips of waxed paper a little more than twice as long and twice as wide as the tray. Place these in the tray one over the other. Pack ready-made ice cream in the tray as soon as you get it home from the store and it will keep nicely until you're ready for it

Has Anyone Told You . . .

LOW-PRICED kitchen clocks which have such thin beveled edges that they look as though they fit flush against the wall have taken a bow. The case is plastic. There's a minute hand, too, which is always important in a kitchen clock.

WINDOWS that rattle can be tightened with a metal device that is easily slipped into a crack. No nails or screws are needed. These can be used on ventilators and half-screens, too.

ROACHES will stay away for at least five months after an application of a recently announced liquid coating. Brush this invisible coating over surfaces where roaches are apt to run and in three or four days, it is said, you have a complete kill. This roach killer is safe to use around pets and children.

BATH SPRAY with a new wrinkle is one that can be secured in a variety of positions in the bathtub by means of suction cups. Put it along the lower side of the tub for baby's bath. For your shampoo angle it over the tub. This is a particularly good idea for tubs that have no showers because it can be attached to any type faucet. Lightweight and flat, it is easily hung on the back of the door or laid on a shelf in the closet when not in use.

Tasty Combination

Know the Right Fork

Why do some girls get all the glamorous dinner dates, while others, equally pretty, never progress beyond the hot-dog stage? Compare their table manners—and the answer's apparent.

The well-bred girl knows that olives are eaten with the fingers, and the pits put on the bread-and-butter plate—not an ash tray. She knows enough to dip her soup spoon away from her, and lay it on the underneath plate—not in the bowl—when through eating. It goes without saying that she breaks off and butters just a small piece of bread at a time.

Contrast her, on the other hand, with the poor-mannered girl. This girl crumbles crackers into soup, spears bread with a fork, props her knife and fork against her plate, and, of course, always leans her elbows on the table.

Table manners is just one of the subjects discussed in our Reader Service booklet No. 45. Also covers introductions, movie manners, letter-writing, tips to teens, and business etiquette.

To Prevent Summer Upsets

Hot Weather Demands Vigilance in Child's Diet

By Margaret Jane Suydam

Dr. John Montgomery, interviewed below, tells how to help keep your child healthy in midsummer.—Editor.

ACTUALLY, feeding infants and children in hot weather is not so much different from feeding them at any other time of the year. But since hot weather affects both children and food and since digestive upsets and some diseases which threaten children are more prevalent in summer, we need to be more careful about observing the things we know about food for our children.

Respect your child's appetite. If he is hot, he may not be hungry. Don't urge or coax your baby or older child to eat. Offer foods your doctor has recommended and let him be the judge of how much he'll take.

Many things besides heat may account for loss of appetite. He may have reached a period when his growth is momentarily slowing up so that he needs less food. Teeth may be on the way even though you cannot see them.

Loss of appetite is sometimes the first warning of a cold or digestive upset. Whatever the cause, the safest thing to do is to let the child determine how much food he will take. If you are worried about the child's lack of appetite, call your doctor about it.

Offer the baby frequent drinks of cool, boiled water, but don't worry if he refuses it.

Don't make any changes in the baby's diet without consulting your doctor.

SERVE the pre-school child's meals at regular times. If you have been conscientious about your child's food till he was two years old, his self-demand schedule has worked itself out to regular feeding times. His small stomach has grown accustomed to getting food at fairly regular intervals. It sends up hunger signals at these times and if food is not forthcoming, they eventually subside. Then when food does appear, the child has no feeling of hunger and doesn't want to eat.

After repeated disappointments, the stomach no longer has any expectation of food at definite times and sends up signals in a haphazard fashion. Then the child will not be hungry at mealtime but will be in an acute state of hunger at odd times and most unhappy about it.

The child who is fed regularly may still be hungry between meals. That is because he has small capacity for food at one time. He has eaten as much as he can at the meals but he still has need for more food during the day. This child should have some food between meals. But these snacks should also come at regular hours and be foods that will not spoil his appetite for regular meals: fruit or fruit juices, milk, unsweetened crackers spread with cottage or cream cheese or a thin layer of peanut butter, a piece of bread thinly spread with butter. Sweet cookies, cake, bread with jam or jelly or bottled beverages with high sugar content are not recommended.

Give her foods the doctor recommends and let her judge how much she wants

Bottles of milk from the store or diary should be washed and dried before you put them in the refrigerator.

Fruits and vegetables. Run warm water over baby food cans and evaporated milk and dry. Be sure that the can opener is scrupulously clean before using it. Unwashed can openers put away carelessly are wonderful bait for bacteria. Baby foods can be stored in the can in the refrigerator and used safely for the baby within 24 hours after they have been opened.

Scrub fresh fuits and vegetables in luke-warm water and dry them with a clean cloth or paper towel. They have been sprayed with chemicals to keep off bugs and they have passed through much dirt and handling. Take this precaution even if you plan to peel or cook the food before serving, because the knife which peels can contaminate the pulp.

Remove transparent paper wrapping from packages of frozen food before putting in refrigerator. They are often dirty. Cook frozen vegetables promptly when you take them from the refrigerator. Don't thaw them first. If you don't need the whole package, break off a section and return the rest to the refrigerator immediately.

CEREALS. Buy cereals in smaller quantities in summer and keep closed with waxed paper, held by a rubber band, or store in clean glass jars closed tightly.

Eggs. Try to buy clean eggs. If you find a spot of dirt on one, wipe it off with a damp cloth and put the egg on top of your container so that you will use it first.

Meat. Remove meat from the wrapper as soon as you get it home. If you plan to use it within a few hours, put it in the refrigerator on a glass dish or wrap it loosely in waxed paper. If you do not plan to use it for a day or more, wrap in waxed paper and put directly under the freezing unit. Chopped meat should always be used the day it is purchased because the chopping process exposes many tempting surfaces to the germ-laden air.

Don't give babies and young children foods they shouldn't have. Not even tastes, because they may want more. Some foods are actually harmful; others will do the child no good. Since his stomach is small and digestion of food requires energy, he should save space and effort for nutritional foods.

Foods that are high in fat or have been cooked in fat digest slowly and do not offer enough growth factors to be worth the energy they require for digestion.

Foods with a high sugar content spoil the child's appetite by making his stomach feel full while providing few, if any, of the essential growth factors.

KNOW what summer foods are suitable for children of different ages. Children under 2 should be offered frequent sips of cooled boiled water, but no chilled drinks until after 2 and none iced before they are 6. Milk taken from the refrigerator is sometimes cold enough to cause stomach cramps. It should be warmed over low heat.

Banana milk shakes, eggnog, orange and lemonade are suitable drinks for children from 1 to 3 years old if not too cold. After 3 years they may be given chilled canned fruit juices, diluted half and half with soda water, or occasionally ginger ale.

Ice cream made with heavy cream is too rich for children under five years. Homemade ice cream made entirely with fresh or evaporated milk and with little sugar can be given the baby past 1 year. After two years, the child can have homemade ice cream made with a limited amount of light cream, sherbets and ices. Unless you know the commercial ice creams are not very rich, homemade ice creams are safest.

Fresh fruits in summer are very tempting, but we must take care in choosing them for children. Young digestive tracts may be irritated by skins and seeds. And all fruits must be in the correct stage of ripeness, not too green and not overripe. After one year, children may have peeled raw fresh peaches, apricots and plums.

PICNICS for the family. If the baby is taken on a picnic his milk must be taken cold in a thermos or packed in ice. Then the chill must be taken off by heating his bottle in hot water. Never take warm milk in a thermos. It can spoil too quickly. Take cool boiled water from home for safety's sake.

Take along his own spoon, unopened canned baby foods, a can opener, a hard-cooked egg in the shell and paper plates or cups. You can heat the food in the can in the same water that warms the bottle and feed the baby directly from the can. If only yolk of the hard-cooked egg is given the baby, mash in a paper plate or cup. These precautions should be taken for older children to protect them against diarrhea, polio and other illnesses.

Picnic lunches should be planned so that both adults and children can enjoy them. Sandwiches made of one slice of dark bread and one slice of white bread are attractive to children. Fillings of cottage cheese mixed with raisins, chopped dates or shredded raw vegetables are good. Combine peanut butter with crumbled crisp bacon, shredded green leafy vegetables or cooked salad dressing.

Sheer Wool Is Popular For Summer

Sheer wool for air-conditioned summer is the best insurance policy one can carry. Sheer wool in pastels, prints in clear sharp colors are ideal for shopping in air-cooled stores and lunching in air-cooled restaurants.

Dinner and cocktail dresses in sheer, soot black wool are appearing in New York's restaurants.

New fall suitings also are lighter in weight. The new daytime fabrics have the texture and appearance of this lovely fabric that was so popular 20 years ago, but it is much lighter in weight as are broadcloths and baratheas.

Broadcloth dinner suits are news for fall and winter, and barathea, the fabric used for men's dinner and evening clothes, is also a new fabric for women's suits. It tailors beautifully, is soft and flexible, and of course, well you know how long men's evening clothes last.

Plaids are more than ever popular for teen-agers. The newest idea is a plaid wool short dinner dress, cut with low rounded shoulders flanked by a soft collar of the same material, fitted bodice and flared skirt. It is fresh, new and looks so right.

The other plaid novelty is a brightly plaided, long, full skirted evening gown, with a tiny, boned bodice and a low neck—sleeveless.

Taming Little Sister's Tresses

It isn't easy to make a little girl look like sugar and spice. Usually it's her hair-do—or the lack of it—that turns her into something closer to a sheep dog or a Shetland pony.

One noted hair stylist has had so many bothered mothers ask him about little sister's hair that he has listed some advice on the problem.

"No permanent waves for under teen-age," he begs. Even if it looks straight young hair can usually be coaxed to curl by the right cutting, he says. Artificial waves, no matter how well done, are apt to look heavy and sophisticated.

For the young child, he suggests, the simplest of hair styles and the hair always clean and well brushed.

Natural Beauty Aids

For dry skin, apply a wet compress of lukewarm milk, rinse well and dry immediately.

For large pores, apply large slices of tomato to face; leave for half an hour, rinse with warm water.

Vacuum's a Gifted Maid

The vacuum cleaner can add a lively accompaniment to the housekeeper's song, "Dirt Stay Way From My Door."

With its many attachments, the vacuum is truly the mechanical maid of all cleaning work. Try it for picking up the lint from the bathroom floor and from other bare floors as well as for cleaning the rugs and upholstery. Use it for cleaning Venetian blinds, for dusting the window screens, and to blow dust and dirt from porch furniture. Try its spray attachments for applying moth preventatives to your clothes and rugs. You can paint furniture with the spray, too.

To keep it an efficient servant, take good care of your vacuum cleaner. You ought to empty the bag when you've finished, or at least once a week. When the bag becomes too soiled, it's time for a new one.

K-Ration Transformed Into Cocktail Spread

Who ever heard of cocktail spreads in K-ration kits? Well, our soldiers had 'em and liked 'em—only they weren't called cocktail spreads. The food processor who supplied one of the basic foods in the K-ration kit, a cheese and bacon combination, has adapted the product for civilian use. It's a tangy blend of sharp, aged cheddar cheese and bits of crisp, broiled bacon.

E. G. Jonscher Elected Bank Trust Officer

By S. Oliver Goodman

Earl G. Jonscher was elected a trust officer of the American Security & Trust Co., President Daniel W. Bell announced yesterday

Jonscher

Jonscher formerly was an assistant trust officer and an asistant secretary.

At the same meeting of the board of directors. William S. French was elevated to assistant trust officer and assistant secretary. T. Stanley Holland remains vice president and trust officer.

Jonscher joined American Security in March, 1925, following private law practice from 1920 to 1925. He is a graduate of National University Law School and is a native Washingtonian. He served as chairman of the fiduciaries section of District Bankers Association in 1943 and is a past president of the District of Columbia Life Insurance Trust Council.

SALES SPURT: The Hecht Co., which operates eight stores in District of Columbia, Maryland and New York, yesterday reported the second quarter sales of $16,258,310, a gain of 12 per cent over the $14,521,662 in the corresponding 1946 period. Sales for the six months ended July 31 totaled $31,820,162, an increase of 9.2 per cent over the $29,137,420 in the like period last year.

National advertising expenditures increased 18 per cent in first six months for all media with newspapers up 38 per cent, Printers Ink reported . . . Norfolk & Western Railway Co. plans a 4-for-1 split-up for both its preferred and common stocks.

ROUND FOUR: President William T. Faricy of Association of American Railroads countered Robert R. Young's new assault with assertion: "I don't know of any segment of private enterprise in which there is more competition than in the railroad business . . . It is so highly competitive that Congress has expressly declared against 'destructive competitive practices' lest the railroads go too far—as Mr. Young would have them do—in direction of wasteful and uneconomical practices . . . " Battle started when Young, C. & O. chairman, questioned reason for identically timed freight runs between Chicago and Pacific Coast over lines of varying lengths.

NEW OFFERING: Seaboard Finance Co., whose Eastern headquarters are in Washington, yesterday filed SEC registration for 100,000 shares of no-par convertible preferred stock with stated value of $50 a share. New issue will be offered in exchange for its outstanding shares of Series A and Series B cumulative preferred stocks. Ratio and price will be disclosed in an amendment. Pontiac, Chevrolet Output to Suspend

Detroit, Aug. 20 (AP).—The car industry's hopes for an early upturn in production received another setback today as General Motors announced steel shortages will close some of its plants and curtail schedules in others during the last week of August or the first week of September.

The announcement came just as other elements of the industry, particularly Ford and Studebaker, saw possibility of resuming full production schedules following settlement of a month-long strike in the Murray Corp. of America plants.

The General Motors statement said Pontiac division plants will close down Friday night to remain idle until September 2. Chevrolet said announcement of its closings will be made later.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—Cotton futures declined today in nervous dealings, with the market again dominated by weather developments as traders attempted to appraise additional rain reports from Texas and their effect on the cotton crop there. Final prices were 1.70 to 2.40 a bale lower.

Trading was dull until late in the session when selling expanded on private advice of heavy rain at Houston which traders felt might work further into the interior where moisture is wanted badly. There was also a possibility that the tropical storm in the gulf might bring new rains into Texas. Local traders were the principal sellers, with hedging light.

Luray, Va., Aug. 20.—The annual convention of the Page County Sunday School Association will be held at the Church of the Brethren here on September 3.

Fairfax Plans Adoption of Building Code

Fairfax County's Board of Supervisors yesterday decided to tackle county "growing pains" and began plans for the adoption of a building and plumbing code.

After considering a complaint by the Tyler Park Citizens Association on the lack of a county-wide code of standards for plumbing facilities, the supervisors instructed R. M. Loughborough, executive secretary of the board, to furnish members with copies of a suggested code for their consideration.

In the discussion of the need for the establishment of minimum standards of building and plumbing in the rapidly developing subdivision layouts, the supervisors agreed that a building code would have to be adopted shortly, too.

At the same time, the board appointed a committee to investigate the purchase of a 20-mile sewerage system from the Federal Works Agnecy for the service of residents in the Falls Church-Merrifield area.

G. Hubard Massey, consulting engineer for the board, recommended immediate purchase and the preparation of plans for the e ablishment of a sewage disposal system at the end of the line. He said that revenue from the line would liquidate the cost over a period of years.

The State Highway Department allocations for the upkeep of county roads were criticized by the board. One of the factors in the determination of the amounts is the county population, as listed in the 1940 census—a figure that has since doubled, G. Wallace Carper, board president, explained.

Seven applications for rezoning and one appeal were approved by the board.

Eastern Shore Tomato Mart Collapses

Cambridge, Md., Aug. 20 (AP)—The tomato market collapsed today.

Row on row of full baskets in the fields threatened Eastern Shore growers with loses in the thousands of dollars.

You couldn't give away tomatoes here today. Big canneries in the six-county tomato area were glutted.

The market started plummeting yesterday—from 45 cents a basket at the opening to 30 cents by mid-afternoon. None moved today.

The collapse started earlier in Wicomico and Somerset Counties, to the south. At Princess Anne yesterday the price got down to 20 cents. At nearby Laurel, Del., it was 25.

Spring Frost Blamed

Last year tomatoes brought the growers 75 cents to a dollar a basket. Some of the crop brought as much as $1.50.

Dr. H. L. Stier, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service Department of Markets, said at College Park today "we have been afraid of this" and explained what happened:

From about the middle of July until about the middle of September, Maryland growers normally market about 240,000 tons of tomatoes. The operation is spread over almost nine weeks.

This year there was frost. It wiped out a lot of early tomato plants. Growers put in another crop, but now the time schedule is all out of whack. The plantings which normally matured earlier came righe along with the later ones.

Marketing has hit its peak just in the past few days—instead of at mid-July. The big crop must be handled between now and September 15 instead of the normal nine weeks.

Despite the frost, the crop this year is figured at 221,000 tons less than 20,000 tons off the average.

Too Little Time For Canners

Although the Eastern Shore canneries have put up as much as 3,500,000 cases of whole tomatoes in a season, they can't handle this year's big crop in such a short period.

They'll be lucky to hit six million cases this year—including whole tomatoes, tomato juice, and other tomato products.

One Talbot County grower said he had 1000 baskets of picked tomatoes ready for a buyer and another 5000 baskets on the vine awaiting picking.

The department of markets arranged with the Maryland house of correction at Jessups to solve this particular problem. The State institution's cannery expects to put up 2000 baskets a day for the next week or 10 days. The canneries on the shore are working 24 hours a day.

Another thing complicating the market situation is the fact that canners still have nine million cans of tomato juice left from last year's pack. A large share of the Maryland crop goes into juice.

Consolidated High School Is Approved

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 20 (Spl.)—Loudoun County School Board voted 5 to 2 in favor of one consolidated high school for white high school students, it was announced today. The resolution, introduced by Dr. B. A. Brann of Leesburg, provided that the building be built as soon as possible, near the center of the county. The county now has four high schools.

Details will be worked out by the School Board and presented to the Board of Supervisors. The building project is expected to cost about $750,000. If a bond issue is necessary, it will be referred to to Loudoun County voters.

Voting for the proposal were: Dr. Brann, Mrs. John F. Kincaid, Leesburg country district; C. J. Ford, Jefferson District; Ben Middleton, Broad Run District, and Dr. R. L. Booth, Mercer District. Voting against it were W. T. Smith, Mt. Gilead District, chairman of the board, and L. Parson Hickman, Lovettsville District.

The following teacher appointments were made: Aldie High School, Mrs. Lucille Tucker, history, and Miss Louise Huyette, commercial; Aldie, grades 2 and 3, Miss Louise Hall; Lincoln High School, social science and English, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Vandell, Latin and Spanish, Mrs. Jean S. Reid; Carver School, principal, Alfred Talbot, jr., primary, Mrs. Elyse James Tate; Douglass High School, home economics, Miss Ruth O. Myrtle; Jeanes supervisor, Miss Westa Winn.

Garner Candidacy After Defeat Seen As Local Matter

Richmond, Va., Aug. 20 (AP)—Receipt of a formal declaration of candidacy for the State Senate from Stanley S. Garner of Newport News brought from State election officials today a statement that it was "purely a local matter."

This statement came from Levin Nock Davis, secretary of the State board of elections shortly after Garner's declaration was turned over to him. Deadline for candidates to qualify under the State election laws was midnight August 12.

Garner, former member of the House of Delegates, was defeated in the August 5 Democratic primary for nomination to the State Senate by Senator L. U. Noland, also of Newport News.

Davis quoted an opinion received from Attorney General A. P. Staples to the effect that candidates for the November election under Section 154 of the Virginia code were required to certify their candidacies with the clerk or clerks of the circuit or corporation courts in each county or city within their respective districts.

Virginia Cattle Corner Prizes At W. Va. Show

Lewisburg, W. Va., Aug. 20 (AP)—Virginia exhibitors dominated the prize list today in judging of purebred Aberdeen-Angus cattle at the West Virginia State fair.

Farms of the Old Dominion captured three of the main events, with the fourth going to Cold Saturday farm of Finksburg, Md., whose Barbaric C. S. won top prize as reserve champion bull.

Prince Sunbeam, entered by Ingleside-Ellerslie Farm of Charlottesville, Va., was adjudged the grand champion bull, while the grand champion female, Ectesa 4th, was shown by Le Baron Farm of Warrenton, Va., and the reserve champion female, Eribana of Elkton, was sponsored by Old Elkton Farm of Forrest, Va.

Other winners in the Aberdeen-Angus judging:

Class 1—Greenbrier Stock Farm of Lewisburg, first and second prizes; Modena Plantation, Savannah, Ga., third.

Class 2—Ingleside-Ellerslie, first; Cold Saturday, second, and Le Baron, third.

Class 3—Cold Saturday, first; Le Baron, second, and Old Elkton, third.

Negro Fireman Upheld in Suit For Rail Job

Richmond, Va., Aug. 20 (AP)—The Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld the right of a Negro locomotive fireman to work on the run to which he is entitled by seniority.

In its opinion, the Circuit Court affirmed the judgment of the District Court at Norfolk in restoring the appellee, Tom Tunstall, to his run and the seniority rights that had been removed as result of agreements between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Norfolk Southern Railway Co.

A district court jury awarded Tunstall $1000 damages for lost wages.

Sailor Found Dead Under Wreckage Of His Automobile

Waldorf, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—A Baltimore sailor was found dead under the wreckage of his automobile near the junction of U. S. 301 and Maryland Route 5, 6 miles north of here early today.

Maryland State police identified him as Hugh E. Williams, jr., 24, an aviation machinist's mate from the carrier Midway.

Investigators said his automobile apparently ran off the road and overturned, pinning him underneath. A step-sister told police Williams left home about 7 p. m. to return to his base in Portsmouth, Va. He had been in the Navy 5½ years.

Farmers List Outing

Luray, Va., Aug. 20.—Page County farmers will hold their annual outing at Hawksbill Pool on August 30. G. H. Clark, county agent, is in charge of all arrangements.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad-taker, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

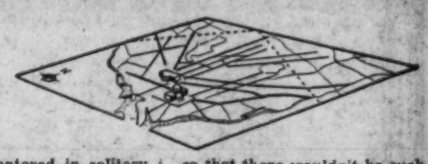
"Arab" From Boston Suggests Changes in Recipe



Gaston Lellouche wanted to know where he could get Couscous, and now I'm involved in Arabian recipes written in French.

Sergt. Robert Williamson of Bolling Field says that he learned to eat Couscous during the African campaign, and now he occasionally orders it at the Sheik Restaurant, 1008 I st. nw. Several other servicemen concur.

However, Mme. M. B. d'A. of the Dodge Hotel won't let it go at that. She suggests that Gaston contact Andre Gerard of 6805 45th st., Chevy Chase, Md., who is represented as something of an expert on Couscous.

Then Mme. d'A advises that Couscous is: "matiere alimentaire faite de grains de cereales, surtout de froment, reduits en granules par une grossiere mouture."

That eminent Arab, Joe Mooney, our office gourmet, explains that this means Couscous is made of cereals, especially ground meal. Being from Boston, Joe thinks they should add some baked beans and eat it with brown bread.

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH!

The E. L. Dulin family, of 4106 Nicholson st., Hyattsville, Md., was walking home from church last Sunday, mopping its collective brow. The sun was boiling down, as it had been for days.

Papa Dulin, kidding 8-year-old daughter Kathleen, said:

"What's the matter, Kathleen? What are you perspiring about? The weatherman says the heat wave has been broken."

Kathleen pondered the situation briefly and then replied sagely:

"Maybe so, Daddy, but I think somebody has fixed it again."

IS THIS A RECORD?

Mrs. Clarence A. Watkins of Ashton, Md., donated her fourteenth pint of blood this week —this time at Mount Alto Veterans' Hospital.

DEMOCRACY MARCHES ON!

The crowded Treasury Department elevator stopped at the third floor.

An excited little guy came rushing over to babble something to the operator about "clearing the elevator; the Secretary will be here in a minute."

The operator shooed his passengers out of the elevator, and a few moments later Mr. Snyder and an aide entered in solitary grandeur.

We watched the indicator, and noted that they rode from the third to the fourth floors, and we certainly hope they had a nice trip.

'TWAS EVER THUS

"Evil Eye Hogan" is gloating over the poor record of the Washington Senators because he was turned down in his request for opening day tickets.

He says, "I prayed that they'd wind up in the cellar so that there wouldn't be such a demand for seats next year."

They may wind up in the cellar, "Evil Eye," but I'll betcha you'd better get your order in early anyhow if you want a ticket for the next opener.

STREET SCENE

Clayton Stanley, of 211 Leighton ave., Silver Spring, Md., is our reporter for this one:

They were trying to back a truck into a garage, but the doorway was too low.

They jockeyed it back and forth several times, but there just wasn't enough clearance at the top, and every suggestion proved fruitless.

Then the neighborhood dimwit took his thumb out of his mouth and asked:

"Why don't you let a little air out of the tires?"

They looked at each other sheepishly, let out a little air and backed the truck safely through the door.

"You don't have to show us all these styles of homes—we're building a new house, so naturally we want the latest style!"

Poet Livens Up a British Soiree

New York. — Dorothy Parker tells this story of Humbert Wolfe, the British poet who supported himself by working at the Foreign Office. One day he was invited to a party given by Maxine Elliott. Present were Somerset Maugham, the Duke of Kent, Noel Coward, the Duchess of Westminster and others of equal distinction. Wolfe was invited too, and he came in a rented, ill-fitting tuxedo, tattered shoes, torn shirt and a borrowed tie. Nobody knew him and nobody paid any attention to him. He sat alone in a corner, sipping drinks and becoming increasingly conscious of the wealth and fame of the other guests . . . Finally, when he had been bolstered by sufficient drinks, the bedraggled Wolfe arose and shouted to the duke, Maugham, Coward and the duchess and others: "I have just lost a large emerald. I'm afraid I must request that the doors be locked and all the guests searched."

SHIPPING NOTE: This week Helen Hayes and Charles MacArthur are celebrating their nineteenth wedding anniversary. In honor of the event MacArthur presented a yacht to Miss Hayes. He also supplied a name for the boat, a name which he deems appropriate—"Patience & Fortitude."

POLITICS: A Democratic politician who was about to retire from office and return to the private practice of law received a number of offers from prominent law firms. He told Bob Hannegan about it and asked for advice . . . He said that the best offers came from two law firms. The second of these firms is composed of former New Deal officials. "If I were you, I'd take the first offer and not the second," Hannegan advised. "If you're a New Deal lawyer, why tie up with two other New Deal lawyers? It's like a third baseman signing up with a team which already has two third basemen."

FINANCE DEPT.: Beardsley Ruml was in the Stork Club last night, where he discussed some plans for easing the tax burden. He said that the next step which Congress probably will adopt is the Community Property Law. It now operates in a dozen States whose citizens—by being permitted to split their incomes with their wives—thereby save money, particularly if they're in the upper brackets. "If the Community Property Law is enacted there will be an increase in the marriage rate," said Ruml. "You'll find many men say, 'Honey, we've been doing fine these past five years, so let's get married.'"

LOCAL NEWS: Eleanor Holm and Johnny Weismuller may appear in London this winter in a revival of the Aquacade in which they starred originally at the N. Y. World's Fair . . . Mike Romanoff, who entertained Judge Sam Leibowitz in Hollywood, received an invitation to sit on the bench with Leibowitz when next he visits New York, Romanoff said: "Yes, I am rather curious about how it looks from the other side."

SPORTS DEPT.: Some months ago a film tough-guy saw Frank Sinatra sitting in a night club and started to taunt him. Sinatra paid no heed to him until the man suggested: "I dare you to step outside with me." . . . Sinatra got up and started to follow him outside. The man suddenly stopped and said: "Y'know, every time I do this and step outside I get the heck beaten out of me." . . . Sinatra continued to follow him outside. "Furthermore," said the man, "I got an expensive bridge on the upper left side of my mouth. I always get hit there and it costs me a lot of dough for the dentist." . . . "I got a bridge too," said Sinatra —and they both returned to their tables.

My Faithful Friend

Of all the joys that life on earth . . . Is able to extend . . . I treasure most the knowledge that . . . You are my faithful friend . . . The knowledge that you care for me . . . And keep me in your mind . . . And that your actions always are . . . Considerate and kind . . . For you have shown in many ways . . . That you are good and true . . . And that no matter what I need . . . I may depend on you . . . You have endeared yourself to me . . . Each time that we have met . . . And blessed me with a memory . . . I never shall forget . . . And though the world may offer wealth . . . And pleasures without end . . . I treasure most the knowledge that . . . You are my faithful friend.

NOT FINISHED UNTIL FURNISHED

Four walls . . . and a roof over their heads. Lucky couple . . . it's a dream come true for them, as it will be for thousands of others this year. But a house isn't a home . . . until it has all the comforts and conveniences of home . . . as we at The Hecht Co. have long known. That's what we mean when we say "Not Finished Until Furnished" . . . furnished with all the warmth and beauty that makes man's home his castle.

The Hecht Co. can provide the furnishings . . . right down to the last ash tray . . . and we're budget-wise about it, too. That's where our Budget Plan comes in, ready to serve you . . . whether you're furnishing a new home, or brightening up an old one.

Your home may be a house in the country . . . or you may be a city cave-dweller . . . The Hecht Co.'s Budget Plan always opens the door to pleasant living with the finest in furnishings. Our Credit Counselors have long experience at budgeting costs over many months, so that you have what you need now . . . instead of using makeshifts next year . . . and the next and the next. It's the simple, convenient way of paying for home-furnishings . . . which you will treasure through the years.

The handsome Governor Winthrop desk . . . the mahogany bedroom in modern or period design . . . the roomy refrigerator you've set your heart on . . . the washing machine . . . rugs . . . lamps . . . tables . . . chairs . . . and don't forget the baby furniture . . . all are made readily available at The Hecht Co. A visit to our courteous and efficient Credit Department . . . and your Budget Account will be opened with dispatch.

No need for those bleak house blues . . . no need to weep because you lack the furnishings to make your house a home . . . in every sense of the word. You finish it . . . we'll furnish it . . . make it your dream-house come true . . . with the very able assistance of The Hecht Co.'s Budget Plan designed for Happy Living.
